SECOND SPACEMAN

U.S. To Launch Next Astronaut In May Or June

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — The United States expects to rocket its second spaceman into orbit in May or June—hopefully without the dramatic complications of Astronaut John Glenn's epic voyage.

Next up in the Mercury man-in-space batting order is Donald Kent Slayton, a slender, dark - haired Air Force major who waited quietly and patiently on the sidelines while the nation made his friend and fellow astronaut its newest hero this week.

Glenn, in seclusion for a week end of relaxation with his family, remained America's darling. Next week, from the halls of Congress to the sidewalks of New York, the modest Marine will receive a thunderous tribute for his daring triple-orbit journey through space.

PLAN PROCEEDING

But almost aloof from the wave of hero-worship, the $400 million Mercury program went quietly ahead with plans to do it again. Scientists began a thorough, intensive study of Glenn's trip to prepare a space flight plan for Slayton.

In many respects, his journey should be a duplicate of Glenn's. Slayton will be launched on a three-orbit trip at roughly the same altitude—100 to 150 miles above earth. He will spend 4½ hours aloft, most of it in weightlessness.

But if all goes as planned, the man known as "Deke" will avoid the pitfalls that had Glenn busily controlling his "Friendship 7" for the last two orbits and presented the astronaut and Mercury scientists with more than one anxious moment because of technical troubles.

Slayton's flight won't be any easier, however. He is expected to try to carry out some of the experiments that Glenn couldn't get to, including getting pictures for weathermen and finding out more about the problem of eating in weightlessness.

The bell-shaped Mercury capsule that Slayton will ride into

Capital Set To Honor Space Hero

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The nation's capital got set Saturday to pay proud tribute to space hero John H. Glenn, Jr., on Monday with ceremonies usually reserved for visiting foreign rulers and victorious military leaders.

The Marine lieutenant colonel will be welcomed by thousands during a parade from the White House to the Capitol and honored by a joint meeting of Congress where he will speak briefly.

It will mark the second round of tribute accorded Glenn for his feat of being the first American to orbit the earth in a space capsule. President Kennedy personally greeted and decorated him at Cape Canaveral, Fla., Friday. On Thursday further honor will be heaped on the astronaut in New York city.

The Washington reception for Glenn will be nationally televised. Schools in the city and nearby suburban areas have been closed so that thousands of children can cheer their new hero. Government employes will be excused from work so they can line the parade route.

Glenn, his wife, and Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson will ride in the lead car of the triumphant motorcade. Other members of his family and some of Glenn's fellow astronaut teammates will follow.

Crack Marine Corps units and the Marine band will participate along with mounted police. Military honor guards will line the route and 17 bands will play.

Even Charles A. Lindbergh fell short of receiving such a Washington tribute. When Lindbergh came here after his solo transatlantic flight, Congress was not in session and no joint meeting was possible. He was received by President Coolidge at the White House and promoted to Colonel.

U.N. Council Meet Is Called

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The U. N. Security Council was summoned Saturday to meet at 3 p.m. Tuesday to deal with a new Cuban complaint alleging that the United States is preparing to invade Cuba.

U.S. Delegate Adlai E. Stevenson called the meeting as council president for February.

Cuban Delegate Mario Garcia-Inchaustegui, in a letter submitted Thursday, had asked Stevenson to call an immediate meeting.

JUDITH CATHEY

West Monroe Girl Wins Queen Title

By JIMMY HATTEN
State Editor

DELHI — A honey - blond Northeast State College student last night danced and charmed her way to the 1962 Miss Stock Show title here.

She was Miss Judith A. Cathey, 19, of West Monroe. Miss Cathey, sponsored by the Monroe Jaycees, did a modern jazz dance number as her contribution in the talent competition.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cathey of West Monroe.

RUNNERS UP

First runner - up was Cherry Janean Moberly, a senior at Tallulah High School, sponsored by the Tallulah Lions Club. She did a dance routine also. Barbara Jean McCoy of Monroe was second runner - up.

Winning the Miss Congeniality title was Peggy Ann Cook of St. Joseph.

The new Miss Stock Show, in answering questions by emcee J. J. Pullen of Vicksburg, said that she thought although the United Nations is not a perfect organization, "it is better to have a world organization, such as it is, than none at all."

Charge Security Is Affected By Viet Nam Action

TOKYO (AP)—Communist China declared Saturday its security is seriously affected by an "undeclared war" being waged by the United States in South Viet Nam and said U. S. military aid to that Southeast Asian country cannot be allowed to continue.

Similar charges, that its security was menaced, prefaced Red China's large-scale intervention in Korea in November 1950, after American troops had reached the Yalu River border between Korea and Manchuria.

WARN OF WAR

The statement by the Red Chinese Foreign Ministry broadcast by Peiping radio, however, demanded immediate international consultations "to eliminate the serious danger of war in southern Viet Nam by peaceful means."

It also demanded the immediate withdrawal from South Viet Nam of all U.S. military personnel and equipment.

The statement objected particularly to creation of the new U.S. Military Assistance Command in South Viet Nam headed by Gen. Paul D. Harkins.

The command has taken overall charge of about 4,000 U.S. military personnel engaged in the large-scale training and support for President Ngo Dinh Diem's anti-Communist army of about 175,000 men.

The U.S. force, which includes three Army helicopter companies, is not a combat outfit, but the new command could form the framework for combat operations if necessary. The Americans have orders to shoot back if fired upon.

"This command," said the Peiping statement, "is by no means merely one for military assistance, but an operational command of the U.S. imperialists for direct participation.

'Jefferson' Polaris Sub Is Launched

NEWPORT NEWS, Va. (AP)—The submarine Thomas Jefferson, soon to be armed with 16 Polaris missiles, was launched Saturday as a "symbol of independence and self-reliance."

Mrs. Robert S. McNamara, wife of the secretary of defense, christened the vessel. Her daughter Kathleen served as maid of honor.

The submarine, named for the nation's third president and author of the Declaration of Independence, will serve as a warning to the enemies of freedom, said Dr. Edgar F. Shannon Jr., president of the University of Virginia. Jefferson founded the university.

"She will be a symbol of independence and self-reliance," he said.

The Thomas Jefferson is the fourth Polaris submarine built at the Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co. Two others are under construction and four more are under contract.

The missile submarine will be commanded by Cmdr. Leon H. Rathbun, head of the Blue crew, and Cmdr. Charles Priest Jr., head of the Gold crew. The two crews are to alternate on station beneath the oceans.

STATE CASH PROBLEMS

No Special Session Call Now In Sight

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Gov. Jimmie H. Davis has remained firm against a special legislative session so far, although a few educators say privately action on money problems will be necessary before the regular session in May.

As far as can be determined, there is little weight at the moment behind the undercurrent of feeling in favor of an extra session now.

With the approach of the scheduled April 11 mineral leasing, coupled with uncertainty whether Louisiana will pick up the full $25 million in oil bonus revenues budgeted from that source, and state Treasurer A. P. Tugwell's warning of payless state paydays if something isn't done, state officials are worried.

Should that April 11 lease sale by the State Mineral Board fall flat, Tugwell has warned he will have to shut down the state general fund. The regular 60-day Legislature convenes May 14. The current fiscal year ends June 30.

Commissioner of Administration James S. Reily, the governor's fiscal adviser, has repeatedly insisted state revenue will be okay if the April 11 oil lease sales work out all right.

The big question in the minds of some officials, and parish school superintendents operating with strained budgets, is what happens if that April 11 mineral lease sale is a failure

The oil industry hasn't been showing any sign of surging forward with the boomtime pace of development in this state that marked former years.

Youths Take Court Action On U.S. Visa

Seek To Obtain Official Ruling On Tshombe Visit

WASHINGTON (AP)—A conservative youth organization took court action Saturday aimed at forcing the State Department to rule on Katanga President Moise Tshombe's request for a visa to visit the United States.

The suit was filed in District Court by Young Americans for Freedom which has invited Tshombe to appear at a rally in New York City March 7.

CLAIM DAMAGE

The organization claimed it would suffer "irreparable damage" if Tshombe did not attend.

Tshombe, who has tried to keep Katanga independent from the central Congolese government, has applied twice for a visa but no formal ruling has been made by the State Department.

However, the department has said it regards a visit by Tshombe at this time as not in the nation's best interest "because it would interrupt and jeopardize progress" toward Congo unification.

The court action is based on the contention passport statutes require the government to act on Tshombe's application. The suit said there was no reason to withhold the visa.

The suit was filed by attorney Thomas O'Malley. His request for an immediate hearing was denied by U.S. District Court Judge Edward M. Curran.

O'Malley said he may appeal Curran's ruling Monday. He added he is hopeful, in any event, the court will act before the March 7 rally.

At a news conference announcing the action, Robert Schuchman Yale University law student and national chairman of the youth group, said telegrams have been sent to the American Civil Liberties Union and the American Jewish Congress asking support. Both have criticized the State Department for failing to grant Tshombe a visa.

The government took the position that the youth group is not the proper party to seek a remedy since it does not represent Tshombe.

Officers Seize Heroin Valued At $25 Million

NEW YORK (AP) — Police and FBI agents reported seizing a Bronx longshoreman Saturday night with what was said to be the largest cache of pure heroin ever seized by police in this country — 40 kilograms valued at an estimated $25 million.

The longshoreman was identified as Anthony Fuca, 31, of 1171 Bryant Ave., the Bronx.

Deputy Chief Inspector Edward F. Carey of the city narcotics squad said six city detectives and five FBI agents nabbed Fuca as he was leaving a cellar with the narotics in two canvas-type air-line bags.

Carey said the confiscation was "beyond doubt the largest ever made by any police department in the country."

Carey said Fuca told the police only that the heroin came "from a large country in Europe."

Clear Today, Cloudy Tonight

More sunshine is due in the Twin Cities today with mild temperatures, but the sky will probably become cloudy tonight and there is a possibility of rain before Monday morning.

The forecast calls for clear to partly cloudy skies today with increasing cloudiness tonight.

The high today will be 68 with the low predicted at 46.

Heart Drive Is Scheduled Here Today

Today is Heart Sunday and the Twin Cities will join with cities across the nation in collecting money to fight heart disease, described by local Heart Association officials as the "nations Number One health enemy."

The Heart Sunday collection throughout the residential areas here will be conducted by 400 volunteers. Each volunteer will visit approximately 15 residents in his or her immediate neighborhood, presenting individual envelopes for contributions. The envelope may be sealed before being returned to the collector, and the amount of the gift need not be revealed.

FROM 1 'TIL 4

The collection will be conducted between 1 and 4 p.m. Each volunteer will carry an official identification form printed on a 1962 Heart Sunday Kit wrapper. He or she will show the identification on presenting a contribution envelope.

Approximately 1,500,000 Heart Sunday volunteers in more than 10,000 cities and towns throughout the nation will be on the march at about the same time today, according to Miss Winona McCormack, Heart Sunday chairman.

The Heart Sunday collection here is the climax in the 1962 Heart Fund campaign sponsored by the Louisiana Heart Association, an affiliate of the American Heart Association, the only national voluntary health agency devoted exclusively to combating the cardiovascular disease.

"Your Heart Sunday contribution makes possible your Heart Association's assault on the nation's leading cause of death," Miss Winona McCormick pointed out earlier this week in a statement urging residents of the Twin FIVE DIE IN N.Y.

Snow, Freezing Rain Hit Travel

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Snow, sleet and freezing rain hammered the Northeast Saturday with western New York State getting up to a foot of snow as driving conditions throughout the entire region were reduced to extremely dangerous.

Five deaths were attributed to the wind - whipped storm in New York State.

Central and northern New England received from six inches to a foot of soggy, heavy snow that caused ankle - deep slush which hardened as temperatures fell late in the day.

MANY STRANDED

Southern New England was hit with up to four inches.

Many motorists were stranded. Wind gusts up to 35 miles per hour caused heavy drifting, blocking secondary roads. Concentrated plowing efforts were made on major highways.

The heaviest snow fell along a belt from Watertown, N. Y., to Plattsburgh, N.Y. Champlain, Ellenburg and Moores Forks in New York State had a foot of snow. Oswego, N.Y., received 11 inches. Glens Falls had 10.

Practically all airlines canceled all flights.

The U.S. Weather Bureau at Boston said the skies would clear by Sunday after a night of cold weather with temperatures from zero to the middle 20s.

The roads were so treacherous in Boston city officials warned motorists not to use their cars.

N.Y. Officer Has Close Call During Rescue

NEW YORK (AP)—A motorman brought a subway train to a grinding halt Saturday just a foot short of a policeman and a man he was rescuing from the tracks.

It was a close call, said John Giehl, the motorman.

Fallon jumped from the platform and ran across two express tracks, leaping over electrified-third rails, to reach the man.

The off - duty policeman was trying to help him climb to the opposite platform when he saw the headlight of the train bearing down on them. Fallon made no effort to flee but instead tried to hoist the man from the tracks with one hand while waving with the other to attract the motorman's attention.

"I waved my hand at the train; I thought it would stop," Fallon said later. It did — just a foot from them.

The man, who identified himself as Luke Horkawchuk, 64, of the Bronx, had been trying to retrieve a hat he had dropped off the platform.

Mother Walks 23 Miles To See Baby

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP)—This time when Mae Sharon Hayes went to see her baby in the hospital her husband went with her.

Last time, awakened from a sound sleep, he commented: "You're a nut." And she walked the 23 miles.

The young Navy couple brought 11-month-old Margurite Mary Hayes home Saturday from White Memorial Hospital where she had been treated for an intestinal ailment.

They made the trip in a neighbor's car, paying for his gas with part of the $11.95 nurses at the hospital collected for the family last time Mrs. Hayes visited her daughter.

That was Thursday, the day Mrs. Hayes hiked.

Lonesome for her baby, whom she hadn't seen in two weeks, and down to her last 40 cents, Mrs. Hayes, 20, decided to walk to the Los Angeles hospital from her home in Long Beach.

She was accompanied by a girl neighbor, Alice Fazon, 16.

"We walked right up the Long Beach Freeway. People stopped. We told them our car broke down a little way back and we were all right."

Weary after the hike, Mrs. Hayes was going to walk home. But a receptionist gave her a lift.

Mrs. Hayes' husband, Roland, a radioman second class, was asleep after overnight duty when the two women started out at 7 a.m. She said she awakened him to tell him her plan and he mumbled, "ou're a nut," and went back to sleep. Six and one-half hours later, the women arrived at the hospital.

20 Moslems Shot Down, 11 Europeans

ALGIERS, Algeria (AP)—Twenty-thousand French troops moved into jittery Algiers Saturday after a terrorist bloodbath that left a score of Moslems dead in the populous European quarter of Bab-el Oued.

Throughout the city, authorities said, 11 Europeans also had been killed by sundown.

TERMED MURDER

Authorities described the bloody afternoon in Bab-el Oued as "organized murder." They said the killings were part of a rightist secret army plan to dash peace hopes in a racial war.

The Moslems, many walking through Bab-el Oued to their homes in nearby Moslem quarters, were shot down by pistol-firing Europeans. Shots came from the street, doorways and balconies. Women, some holding babies, watched the killings from windows and balconies.

Troops welded themselves in rings around the quarter and imposed a 5 p.m. curfew that banned the 50,000 inhabitants from leaving "until further orders."

The quarter, one of Algiers' most explosive for racial trouble, is inhabited by poor workers, many of Spanish and Italian origin.

The violence began early in the afternoon when a European taxi driver was shot and killed by a Moslem. Quickly, any Moslem seen on the streets was a target.

Later, long columns of trucks and armored cars moved into other points of Algiers, taking position at the limit between European and Moslem sections in attempt to forestall further outbreaks.

Area Bank Robbery Is Confessed

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP)—An Alexandria man, arrested here on a drunkenness charge Friday, has confessed to a 16-year-old bank robbery in Franklin Parish.

Richard Dees, 43, summoned jailers to his cell following his arrest and announced he wanted to confess to the $4,000 robbery of the Wisner branch of the Franklin State Bank and Trust Co. Sept. 1, 1945.

Dees' claim of being a bank robber is being checked out. FBI agents have been asked to interrogate him.

The officers of Franklin Parish Sheriff A. J. Stephens, said the bank robbery apparently was committed by three persons. In his statement, Dees made no mention of anyone other than himself.

According to deputy J. R. Brown, the bandits set fire to a barn on the edge of Wisner. The resulting excitement attracted almost everyone in the community, located some 14 miles south of Winnsboro. While everyone was at the fire, the robbers held up the lone teller. All other bank employes were at the fire. He said they made their getaway in a car stolen in West Monroe. It was found abandoned near Holly Ridge. No other trace of the robbers was found.

Dees said he set fire to the barn as a ruse to draw everyone from the bank.

U.S. To Launch Next Astronaut In May Or June

orbit already is at Cape Canaveral. Scientists who once thought they might have to use it on Glenn's flight because of troubles with "Friendship 7" have been checking out the spacecraft's seven miles of wiring and 10,000 components for several weeks.

Launching pad No. 14, where a mighty Atlas rocket hurled Glenn into space at 17,500 miles per hour last Tuesday, has been cleaned up. Within a few days Atlas No. 107-D—Slayton's rocket booster—will be put in place.

Barring major complications, Slayton will don a silvery, 20-pound spacesuit and climb into the sky within 60 to 90 days. Most estimates place the prospective launching date in June—happily, a period generally free of the weather problems that contributed heavily to 10 postponements in the Glenn mission.

Slayton, who will celebrate his 38th birthday next Thursday, has undergone the same intensive, thorough training that Glenn and five other astronauts have received during the nearly four years they have been members of the nation's first team of prospective spacemen.

There was no indication immediately as to what changes in the Mercury capsule might be made for the Slayton flight as a result of the attitude control difficulties that had Glenn handling "Friendship 7" on a "fly-by-wire"—a sort of spacecraft power-steering system.

"Before we make any positive statement . . . as to exact recommendations for future flights," said Glenn, "we need to do a lot more looking into records and data and get all the tapes back from the various stations around the network.

"We have several weeks' work to do just sitting down and analyzing the data," the No. 1 U. S. spaceman said. "I don't think I want to get into at this time any statments that I recommend this or that on the preliminary look that we have had on the information so far."

Although no less important to the nation's long-range goal of manned conquest of space, Slayton's flight—unless something unusual happens—probably will be less dramatic than Glenn's because it will be the second.

But Glenn himself said Slayton's flight will be as important as his from the scientific viewpoint.

"We are looking forward to that flight with just as eager anticipation for him as I looked forward to this one for me," Glenn said.

Glenn's contention is that "We have really hardly scratched the surface."

"We have a lot of attention focused on this right now, but our efforts really have not gotten us very far into space, if you think about it," he said. "If you think of the enormity of space, it makes our efforts seem puny at this time."

Beyond Slayton are two more prospective three-orbit flights, probably by astronauts M. Scott Carpenter and Waler M. Schirra. If the Mercury program can hold its schedule, these will come this year.

But already on the drawing boards at the Federal Space Agency and McDonnell Aircraft Co. are plans for modifying the Mercury capsule for flights of 18 orbits—about the same duration as the voyage of Russian Cosmonaut Gherman S. Titov last August.

The capsule will be boosted by the Atlas, a modified war rocket. But its oxygen supply system will be enlarged and other "life-support" equipment will be changed.

The weight of the capsule, roughly two tons with its escape tower, already borders on the maximum for the Atlas boosting ability. But Glenn indicated a possible way for more weight in the vital life-support systems in relating his success with controlling "Friendship 7" after the attitude control troubles cropped up:

"I think perhaps the difficulties that we had and the action I had to take may actually have been a blessing in disguise in one way because it showed, when we had to, a man can take over control of the various systems, operate manually, still know what he is doing, not have any ill effects in this regard from 'zero-G'. . ."

He said this meant that "we probably can go on some future flights with considerably less automation and less complexity"—a weight-saving method because the Mercury capsule is loaded with "back-up" systems in case something goes wrong.

Inspection Law Repeal Bill Set

OAK GROVE (Special) — Lonnie Richmond, West Carroll parish state representative, said Saturday that during the next session of the state legislature, he intends to present a bill asking the repeal of the vehicle inspection law.

Richmond stated, "The intent of the law is good, but a racket is being made of it. I understand that a number of police jurymen around the state are presenting resolutions also asking a repeal of the law."

ready sealed off the teeming Moslem quarters of Belcourt, Clos Salembier, Climat de France and the Casbah to guard against a violent Moslem reactions to the killings.

Runners of the rebel Front of National Liberation spread the word through the Moslem sectors that calm and discipline should be maintained.

"Do not get yourselves provoked by anything—have nerves of steel," was the word.

Lines of French troops deployed through downtown streets, where life went on as usual. Thousands of shoppers roamed the streets and sidewalk cafes were busy.

In the barricaded administration building overlooking the city, officials feared the worst period in the history of the 7½-year-old war is approaching. Moslem masses, tensely awaiting peace, also believe that murder will strike with double intensity when a cease-fire is proclaimed.

The situation is clearly in the hands of the French army, massing thousands of men and vehicles in a vast perimeter around Algiers. Headquarters for Algeria indicated that well over 50,000 men will be ready to intervene should the city be plunged into a major disaster.

For the moment, the cease-fire waits on action by the Algerian Committee for National Liberation, meeting in secret for the third day in Tripoli, Libya. The committee, the nearest thing the Algerian rebel government has to a parliament, was reported near final decision on the cease-fire terms, already approved by the French government.

Former Banker Freed On Bond

BILOXI, Miss. (AP)—Walter B. Stewart, 54, former vice president and assistant cashier of the Hancock Bank in Gulfport, named in a 5-count indictment by the federal grand jury, is free under a $2,000 bond.

He appeared before U.S. Commissioner Irene Humphreys Saturday before a warrant for his arrest could be served. Signing his bond were W. D. Alberts, J. S. Perusee and H. C. C. Thompson, all of Gulfport.

Three of the counts again Stewart charge fraudulent entries in records and two allege misapplication of funds. A total of $267,271 is involved.

When the discrepancies were under investigation last March, bank president Leo Seal said total irregularities may reach $500,000. He said then, the state Banking Department and the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp., had been called in to certify the irregularities.

terms end as early as March in the southeastern Louisiana parishes—and they haven't time to wait until the May legislature for solutions to current budget problems.

Tugwell a few weeks ago said the legislature might authorize them to borrow operating money against anticipated state revenues from the next fiscal year.

Other educators have mentioned a payless payday threat might endanger some state colleges—for unlike parish public school boards they have no way to borrow money.

Little has been said recently about the fact a special session can be called right in front of the regular session. There's no law preventing it. The governor only has to give lawmakers a five-day advance choice.

Special sessions can't be summoned on money matters 30 days before or after a fiscal legislature, without a three-fourths legislative vote, or 90 days before or after an election for governor.

State fiscal officers so far show no indication they are planning for anything but the regular session in May.

The current opinion from deep within the Davis administration apparently is that finances can be worked out without calling lawmakers before they convene in regular session.

For one thing, the governor's State Bond and Building Commission will sell an additional $15 million in bonds March 15, which could be used temporarily in any emergency.

Reily more than once has mentioned publicly the emergency possibility of tapping the $14 million earmarked as the state's payment this fiscal year toward the teacher retirement fund.

Heavy snow at Meadville, Pa., prevented the Allegheny basketball team from making a trip to Detroit for a scheduled game with Wayne State University.

A Pittsburgh man was killed near Lorain, Ohio, reportedly when he was struck by a snow plow.

Midday temperatures climbed into the 80s in Florida and into the 70s northward into southeast Virginia. The gulf region and southern Texas also had readings in the 70s. Jacksonville, Fla., had an afternoon reading of 88, a record high for any February. The old record was 87 in 1953.

Arctic air covered the country's midsection. The southern boundary of freezing weather extended from southern New England to the Texas Panhandle. Afternoon readings remained below zero in the northern plains and northern Rockies. Temperatures were at seasonal levels in the Far West.

The third snowstorm in a week swept across southern Ontario into Quebec and the Maritimes. A fall up to eight inches was forecast. The storm was blamed for two deaths in Toronto and one in Montreal.

Kennedy Gives Nod To Fallout Shelters Push

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy has decided the dangers of nuclear war are real enough to justify a massive government program to provide fallout shelters for every American citizen.

The stark decision was laid bare this week as the House Military Operations Subcommittee began investigating the Administration's Civil Defense program. It was disclosed by Steuart L. Pittman, assistant secretary of defense for civil defense, who told the congressmen the government now plans to have million upon millions of shelter spaces available by 1967. He estimated this would cost $5 billion, with the federal government chipping in $3 billion.

SCOTTY BLOOM, who plays the lisping six-year-old who sings "Gary, Indiana, My Home Town" in "The Music Man," blasts away on his horn as leading actor Harry Hickox smiles approvingly. "The Music Man" will be presented in Neville High School Auditorium at 8:30 p.m., March 7. Season memberships in the Northeast State Concerts Association, the sponsoring organization, are still available by telephoning FA 5-6361, extension 211. With a cast of more than 50, the play comes to Monroe direct from New York.

Singers From Centenary Well Received

The Centenary College Choir, the singers from Shreveport who blend colorful costuming with vocal colorings, performed at Neville auditorium Friday.

Under the direction of A. C. Voran, the group has made tours overseas and been retained by a single sponsor for seven years on Shreveport television program.

Last summer, the choir was engaged by the Radio City Music Hall in New York to sing at intermission periods during the nine - week run of the motion picture, "Fanny."

Possibly there are any number of college and university choirs throughout the country which could match the Centenary aggregation vocally. But director Voran has worked out a few additional features which have assured wide appeal and a call for repeat performances:

1. Programming. There's usually only one serious number about the middle of the list. The one offered here was a selection from the Brahms German Requiem, a notable accomplishment for a student choir. Other numbers ranged from shorter classics to themes from the movie, "Fanny," and the musical comedy, "My Fair Lady."

2. Costumes and stage presence. Three changes of tuxes and formals. These looked as fresh backstage as they did from the audience. Choir sections were shifted about — even paired off in couples — to suit the mood of the different types of music.

3. Soloists. A West Monroe student, George (Sandy) Lawn, accompanist, was featured along with Pat McFarland of Shreveport. Miss McFarland played the "Ballade in G Minor," by Brahms, and Lawn played "Impromptu in E Flat," by Schubert. For an encore, he offered the modernistic, "Excursion." But it was in the piano background part for the Brahms Requiem that Lawn's growing understanding of his instrument came through to best advantage.

It is this sort of color and variety with the fact that the students enjoy singing that has built up a solid following for the Centenary Choir. J. G. C.

U.S. Chamber Supports New Tariff Plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Chamber of Commerce threw its support Saturday behind President Kennedy's request for broad new tariff-cutting power in an effort to expand trade.

The chamber's stand was announced in a statement adopted by its board of directors.

The administration program would give the President authority to reduce tariffs on categories of products by as much as 50 per cent in return for concessions from other nations.

It also would grant authority for eliminating tariffs on goods in which the United States and the six-nation European Common Market account for more than 80 per cent of world trade.

The only reservation cited involved one aspect of federal aid to companies and workers injured by import competition.

The chamber said aid to displaced workers should be administered by the states and should not exceed benefits provided by state unemployment compensation laws.

Richard Wagner, chamber president, said a majority of the board of directors concurred in supporting Kennedy's trade measure. The statement said it has supported a trade agreements program ever since its first enactment in 1934.

Newspaper Firm Names New Manager

SHREVEPORT (Special)—Hayden Van Hoose has been named general manager of Newspaper Production Co., agent for the Shreveport Times and the Shreveport Journal.

Van Hoose, who has been NPC advertising director since the company's formation in 1953, and a veteran of 30 years in the newspaper business, was appointed to the post by William H. Bronson, president of NPC and publisher of the Times.

The appointment is efeective Monday. Van Hoose's successor as advertising director will be announced in the near future, Bronson said.

Newspaper Production Co. handles the advertising, manufacturing and distribution operations of both the Times and Journal, but the two newspapers are separately owned and edited.

The Times and Journal will occupy a modern new plant this summer. The Times is constructing the building and the Journal will install the presses and other equipment.

Bronson said that expansion of the company necessitated enlarging the organizational structure of NPC.

Van Hoose is a life-long resident of the Shreveport-Bossier City area and is well-known both inside and outside newspaper circles.

Newspaper Production Company is controlled jointly by the newspapers, each having equal representation at the officer level.

"It is a pleasure to announce the promotion of Hayden Van Hoose to the position of general manager of Newspaper Production Co. In this capacity we can take full advantage of his more than 30 years of newspaper experien e, all of which has been acquired in Shreveport," Bronson said.

Former Resident Dies Saturday

Thomas J. Reeves, 84, former Monroe resident, died in a Shreveport hospital late Saturday night.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete last night but will be under the direction of Mulhearn's Funeral Home.

Survivors include five daughters, Mrs. Cloie Jones, West Monroe; Mrs. Lucille Caseay, Monroe; Mrs. Lois Ratcliff, Clarks; Mrs. Eula Jutzi, Winnfield; and Mrs. Ethel Carr, San Jose, Calif.; two sons, Thomas Reeves, San Jose; and G. A. Reeves, Monroe.

HAROLD SNYDER, above, president of Arkansas Valley Industries, Inc., and the Arkansas Valley Bank at Dardanelle, Ark., will be the speaker at the Sales and Marketing club meeting Monday 6:30 p.m. at the Paragon club. He originated the broiler industry in the Arkansas River Valley and received the FFA American Farmer Degree while he was state president of that organization in 1932.

Sterlington Woman Hurt In Collision

A 40-year-old Sterlington woman, enroute home from the hospital after visiting her husband there, was injured in a collision on North Fourth Street last night.

Mrs. Clarice N. Broyles, of Sterlington, was rushed to the St. Francis hospital for emergency treatment by Mulhearn ambulance and because of her condition, police were unable to talk to her.

Investigating officers said that Mrs. Broyles was driving east on Rochelle Street around 8 p.m. when she collided with another car. The driver of the second vehicle Walter H. Johnson, 49 of 1312 North Third St., was driving north on North Fourth Street at the time of the accident.

His son, Walter Jr., was taken to a private physician for treatment.

No charges had been filed in the accident last night. Investigation was incomplete.

Russell Long Considering Satellite Bill

WASHINGTON (Special)—Sen. Russell B. Long, said Saturday he may try to substitute his own plan for a communications satellite for a plan suggested by President Kennedy.

President Kennedy recently sent to Congress a plan setting up a private corporation to own and operate a United States Communications satellite. Such a space satellite could, among other things, relay or transmit telephone, telegraph, radio and television signals.

The President's plan and the Senate - introduced bills on the subject will be discussed this week in hearings conducted by the space committee.

Long presided over hearings last year on the monopoly aspects of such a communications satellite, and has studied the issue closely. However, until Saturday, he had not publicly expressed himself on the subject this year.

Long stated that "unlike the President's proposal which limits ownership of one class of stock in the corporation to communications common carriers such as the world's leading telephone company, the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, and allows such carriers and other large corporations a healthy share of the other class of stock, the voting class, if the communications satellite is to be privately owned, there should be true private ownership open to individuals, rather than corporations and utilities.

"Becuase of the fantastic profit - making possibilities of such a communications satellite, every American should have a chance to buy stock in it, if it is going to be privately - owned, and that is the sort of thing I expect to advocate."

ENJOYS RELAXATION

Glenn Takes Boat Ride With Family

SOMEWHERE IN SOUTH FLORIDA (AP)—Astronaut John H. Glenn Jr., stripped to the waist in the bright southern Florida sunshine, went for a boat ride with his family Saturday.

Even during his weekend of relaxation, however, the triumphant conquerer of space was attended closely by representatives of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

With him on the boat trip, along with his wife, son and daughter, were security officer Charles Buckley, public information officer John A. Powers, and Dr. William Douglas, all of NASA.

He went aboard the boat bareheaded but wore sunglasses for the trip. His daughter, Lyn, 14, was in a bathing suit. David, 16, his son who is hoping to go skin diving with his dad over the weekend, was in swim trunks. Mrs. Glenn also wore beach attire.

Glenn chatted with Powers as the boat pulled away from the wharf.

The astronaut slept late Saturday morning and then went for a haircut. A few people, delighted to discover his identity, got autographs while Glenn was in the vicinity of the barber shop.

Officials have requested secrecy as to the whereabouts of the Glenns to give them an opportunity to rest in private after this week's whirl of events.

The family arrived at this hideaway south of Cape Canaveral a few hours after President Kennedy flew to the cape Friday to present a medal to Glenn and praise him for his courageous flight.

Nolen Will Seek Post As Mayor

SICILY ISLAND (Special)— M. B. Nolen Jr. of Sicily Island announced his candidacy this week for the office of mayor of the village of Sicily Island in which town no election has yet been called.

Nolen said, "I will qualify for the office as soon as the election is ordered by the mayor and board of aldermen."

Municipal elections have already been called by the mayors and aldermen of the towns of Jonesville and Harrisonburg. Their election have been set for June 12.

PERELMAN DATE SET

NEW YORK (AP) — The first play with a definite opening date for Broadway next season is "The Beauty Part." Producer Michael Ellis has set it down for premier Oct. 10.

The comedy by S. J. Perelman is to star Bert Lahr, who previously participated in tryout of the script at the Bucks County, Pa., Playhouse.

BY WHITE HOUSE AIDE

Cuba Trade Ban By NATO Asked

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States has informally asked its North Atlantic Treaty allies to ban shipments of arms and strategic goods from NATO countries to Cuba, officials said Saturday.

Bat the proposal was described here as a very small facet of an over-all new approach to Latin America which this country would like Europe and Canada to adopt.

Actually, U. S. experts say, shipments of arms and goods of military value from NATO countries to Cuba are negligible, if not non-existant. Ninety per cent of Cuba's trade is with the Soviet bloc.

A perhaps symbolic strategic trade ban was, however, proposed by Walt W. Rostow, former White House aide and now a member of the State Department's policy planning council, when he flew to Paris earlier this week to discuss Latin America and other subjects with the NATO council.

But Rostow's trip was, in fact, not a negotiating one. His proposal was not one calling for precise action.

His talk to the NATO council was general and philosophical and involved much more than Cuba. It was, incidentally, the longest speech ever heard in the council.

It concerned mainly a "consultative" process this country is trying to encourage in NATO—to build a more common view within the alliance on problems outside the NATO area itself.

It dealt with possible roles for Europe in the alliance for progress, in trade with Latin countries, in international commodity arrangements on coffee and other Latin products, with how NATO could back up the spirit of the Punta del Este conference isolation of Cuba, and with possible broadening of the future horizons of the OECD, NATO's economic counterpart.

The basis of the U. S. approach was that some of NATO's most serious problems have been splits among members on issues in other parts of the world. An example is the current division towards Indonesia's dispute with the Netherlands over West New Guinea.

Others in the past have been policy splits over the Congo, Cuba and the classic one over Suez.

Dropped into the middle of this analysis there was a specific Rostow proposal that NATO members declare Cuba to be a member of the communist bloc and thus bring it under international machinery which now bans shipment of strategic goods to Russia and her satellites.

The NATO reaction to the Cuban suggestion was said to be "mixed." Some delegates appeared receptive. The Dutch were said to resent being asked to cooperate on Cuba while the U. S. continues to give military aid to Indonesia.

The State Department wanted Rostow's Paris trip to be without publicity. It did not tell newsmen about it until the story broke overseas after he had already left for Paris last Sunday night.

Suitcase Theft Is Being Probed

The theft of a suitcase containing clothing and jewelry is under investigation by the Monroe police department. Mrs. J. G. Joseph told police that the piece of luggage was taken from her room at a local hotel sometime Friday.

She said it contained numerous articles of clothing and some jewelry, but gave no value on it.

Soviets Seek To Head Off U.S. Testing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Ricahrd B. Russell said Saturday that the summit maneuvers of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev are a typical Soviet effort designed to head off renewed U. S. nuclear testing in the atmosphere.

"I hope he won't succeed in confusing our diplomats again, to the disadvantage of our national interests and national security," the Georgia Democrat said.

Russell is chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and a member of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee. His comments, in an interview, reflected the private concern of some other proponents of renewed atmospheric tests.

"Mr. Khrushchev, having violated the moratorium on weapons testing without any notice to anyone, proceeded to carry out tests of unprecedented scope without regard to world opinion or the safety of mankind," Russell said.

He noted Khrushchev's bid for a summit meeting and Moscow's new willingness to discuss a test ban treaty at pending disarmament talks in Geneva next month. He said Khrushchev "has resorted to a typical Soviet policy in trying to get us off balance and prevent our renewed testing of nuclear weapons."

The Senator said that U. S. diplomats do not remind Khrushchev of his own unannounced breach of the moratorium often enough. Such a reminder could well come daily, he added.

Ever since the Russian test supplies ended, proponents of renewed U. S. testing such as Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., have predicted that Khrushchev would come up with a new diplomatic initiative just as President Kennedy was getting ready to announce new atmospheric tests.

There has been growing belief in such centers of pro-test sentiment as the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee that an announcement of renewed tests was imminent and might come sometime next week.

Highway Bids To Be Taken

FERRIDAY (Special) — Bids will be received Wednesday on a 5.5 mile road improvement project on the Ferriday-Vidalia Highway (U.S. 65 and State Route 84) in Concordia Parish, according to announcement made by Louisiana Highway Director Ray W. Burgess.

The highway director said that plans include grading, drainage structures, two new lanes of concrete 24-feet wide and bituminous hot mix surfacing on the existing pavement. He added that the expected time of completion is 18 months after the contract has been awarded.

At the same time a 4.3 mile road improvement project in Tensas Parish, the Westwood-Somerset highway will receive bids. Burgess said the first section begins on State Route 888 just southwest of the junction with state Rouge 1079, then proceed northeast along State Route 888 to its junction with State Route 575.

Burglars Strike At Law Firm

A law firm on South Grand Street was broken into Friday night and Monroe police reported that approximately $140 was taken.

The burglary was discovered by one of the partners, Ford Pipes, when he came to the office Saturady morning.

Entrance to the building, located at 316 South Grand St., was gained by breaking the glass over the rear door at the lock, and unlocking the door.

Labor Chiefs Rap Policies Of Kennedy

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP)—AFL-CIO leaders rapped President Kennedy's economic policies as overly immid Saturday, and asked his support for a yo-yo type work week adjustable to employment needs.

The federation's 29-man Executive Council issued a statement representing organized labor's sharpest criticism yet of the President's domestic program. It said recovery has hit a lull and has been the poorest following any recession since World War II.

"The situation," AFL-CIO President George Meany said, "is alarming and calls for urgent reexamination of the administration's policies and more effective remedial action by the government in the immediate period ahead.

"A more adequate and aggressive program is essential. President Kennedy's program as far as it has gone is fine, but the approach has been overly timid and will not meet the nation's needs."

Renewing prior pleas for a quick income tax cut and increased public works spending, the council also urged that the administration and Congress seriously consider a flexible work week under which job hours would rise or fall according to employment needs.

The shifting work week was advanced as a way to provide jobs for the 4.7 million presently unemployed and more work for the 2.1 million additional people now compelled to work part time because full-time work is unavailable.

"At full employment a 40-hour work week would be appropriate" the council said. "But at anything less than full employment the work week should be curtailed and (additional) workers employed, with no reduction in take home pay.

"If full employment levels return, a 40-hour work week could be re-established."

Ferriday Principal Speaker At Meet

FERRIDAY (Special) — Benjamin L. Green Jr., principal of the Ferriday elementary school, has returned from Baton Rouge, where he was a host and a speaker for the National Principals' Convention held on the LSU campus.

Green, a native of Ferriday and graduate of the local high school and of LSU, was the featured speaker on Friday for Principals from Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Texas and Louisiana.

MR. AND MRS. THOMAS J. Durham celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary Feb. 18 with an open house and reception at their home in Urania. Approximately 75 guests called to honor the event with the couple's nine children serving as hosts.

Local Chambers To Send Group To Delhi Show

Thirty-two delegates from the Monroe and West Monroe Chambers of Commerce will attend the Delhi Livestock Show next Tuesday, according to John Birdsong Sr., agriculture committee chairman for the MCC.

They will be guests of the Delhi Lions club at a luncheon, and will spend the entire day viewing exhibits.

The group will leave here from Frenchie's restaurant on DeSiard Road at 8:30 a.m. They will travel in a caravan of autos, with a police escort.

Delegates will include: J. C. Loftin, George Moses, Bert Root, John Birdsong, Willie Hines, Herschal Sullivan, Howard Griffin, Garland Shell, Slim Scogin, W. E. Whetstone, Buddy Harrelson, George Hargus, L. L. Price, Pete Goodwin.

Leslie Hamm, T. W. Humphries, Bill Watson, Paul Ransom, Eldon Arnold, J. J. Joyce, Bruce Gray, Joe Dixon, Drew Anderson, George McDonald, Cecil Hill, Shouman Nolan, W. A. Calloway, W. O. Ferguson, Sackman Marx.

Monroe CC manager Jim Williams, West Monroe manager George Wylie and MCC assistant manager Bob Oden also will attend.

UNDERGROUND STUDY

NEW YORK (AP)—A busy subway conductor is Ted Butler. He rehearses stage roles while opening and closing train doors.

Butler's latest part is in "Black Monday," an off - Broadway play about integration. He started his stage career 11 years ago and has since been in 13 shows.

Butler works his subway shift during the early morning hours.

"The riders like to hear me running through my lines," he notes, "And every so often I get a nice round of applause."

OPHS Students Win Honors At Music Festival

The Ouachita Parish High School Band earned 21 first division medals at the Louisiana Music Educators Association district solo and ensemble festival held Saturday on the Louisiana Tech campus.

Those winning medals included Jerry Clampit, trombone; Bobbie Jean Futch, twirling; Bill Gore, trumpet; Sharon Jones, clarinet; Shirley Loflin, oboe; the mixed brass quartet, the trombone quartet, the trumpet quartet, and the precussion quartet.

All other Ouachita band entries rated excellent. They included Linda Cochran, bassoon; Jerry Griggs, tenor saxophone; Neilia LaValle, alto saxophone; Shirley Loflin, twirling; Marguerite May, oboe; Janis Pardue, twirling; and the woodwind trio.

The Ouachita Choir entered three soloists and all earned superior first division medals. They are Jennie Clare Carroll, Sally Carroll and Sharon Griffith.

BUILDING FASTEST SHIP

YOKOHAMA, Japan (AP)—Construction is under way on Japan's fastest postwar cargo ship, a 10,000-ton vessel equipped with 17,500-horsepower diesel engine that will reach a top speed of 22.6 knots.

Complete Home Furnishers!

9:47 am is "GO" Time! That's when the Sale starts.... Shop 'til 8:30 Monday Night!

to GO-GO-GO!

...we've caught the "Go Fever"

Inspired by recent world shocking events, the president of Hemenway's has stolen a phrase and issued orders to all Hemenway stores: GO-GO-GO! "I want every store in Louisiana and Texas to "go". By "go" I mean I want every store to set a new all time sales record in the next 30 days. I want record selling to start tomorrow and for 30 days I want our trucks to go-go-go! Get the "go fever". See that our customers catch it! Let's all go!"

"Forget profits, if you must. We have much larger inventories than we need now and Spring shipments of new stock are pouring in. I want this goods to go-now, not later! Get a little profit where you can but be sure to mark your entire inventory low enough so it will go - and go fast - now!

GREAT "GO" SALE

Hemenway's at 132 N. 2nd has it's orders. We've marked our stock to Go! Go! Go! We've got the Go Fever... and we've done a lot of Special Pricing! Newest Shipments are Marked Down in most departments for Quick Extra Sales Volume at Short Profit!

★ Every odd piece, every old piece, damaged and soiled pieces, every discontinued piece and every slow selling piece has been slashed to near cost, exactly cost, and some even below cost. They've got to "go" - and go now - not later.

★ Our trucks can deliver $50,000 extra volume if they really "go." One Salesman can sell $50,000 extra volume if they "go". Our Credit Department can open extra new accounts if they "go". We'll grant easy terms to help our sale "go"! Everyone at Hemenway's has caught the "go" fever!

★ We've made a lot of special purchases for a great Spring Sale. Some of these buys are in and we're going to let them go - go now instead of later. Maybe it's crazy but everythings got to go, at Hemenway's!

★ There's a sales contest on between all Hemenway stores, to see which store manager wins the "go" trip to Cape Canaveral to see where the word "GO" got its new meaning . . . to see which salesman wins a trip to the New Orleans Michaud plant where NASA plans to make the moon rockets which will soon have Astronauts "GO" to the moon!

Sun Mystery Is Explained By Physicist

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A long-sought explanation for a mystery of the sun was offered Saturday by a California Institute of Technology physicist.

The mystery is this: The sun's interior has a temperature of millions of degrees. By the time this radiant energy has moved to the surface, the temperature is down to a mere 4,500 degrees.

From the surface outward, however, the temperature rises sharply again, to millions of degrees in the flames known as the corona, or crown. Instead of getting colder as they map thousands of miles out into space, the flames get hotter. Why?

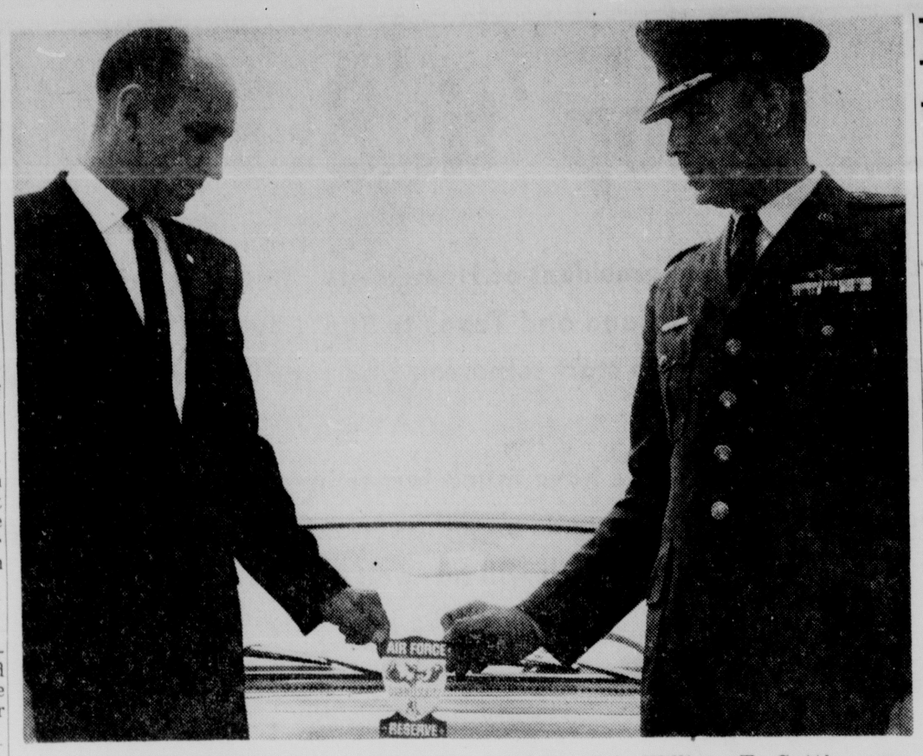
Dr. Robert B. Leighton has discovered giant ripples on the sun's surface, 50-mile-high atmospheric waves that rise and fall at the rate of 1,000 miles an hour every five minutes.

"This is the first direct detection of the elastic waves which were believed to be in the sun's atmosphere," Dr. Leighton said in a report released by the institute. "It was known that some such energy transfer mechanism would be necessary to carry the heat from the sun to its corona. The energy can be carried up by the waves and the absorption of the wave energy would heat the gases."

The professor of physics discovered the waves with a camera he devised to stop motion at great distance. The photographs were taken through the 65-foot solar telescope at nearby Mt. Wilson Observatory.

FINALLY TALKS ON PHONE

SKEGNESS, England (AP) — Mrs. Lavinia Barley has talked on the telephone for the first time in her life. The occasion: her 100th birthday.



RECOVERY SHIELDS for members of the 9425th Air Force Reserve Recovery Squadron were given this week by Capt. James B. Schuggs, Jr., civil defense representative for Area 4. Receiving the shields for the squadron was Lt. Col. William T. Gattis, commander of the squadron, right. The shields will be used as identification and permit the car and passenger to pass through man-made barriers during an emergency.

Rev. J. Evans Will Assume Church Post

The Rev. James O. Evans, who has served as pastor of the Heflin Methodist Church, will assume his new responsibilities today as minister of St. Marks Methodist here.

He will succeed the Rev. Forest Blount, who has served as pastor for the past two years.

He graduated from the Ouachita Parish High School in 1943, after which time he entered military service, where for 30 months he was squad leader for army paratroopers. After being discharged from the army, Rev. Evans entered Louisiana Tech, Ruston, and graduted with departmental honors in 1949.

After this he went into the field of atomic plant construction, and taught school for two years. During this period he was an active Methodist Layman, serving as an adult church school teacher, assistant church school superintendent, chairman of the commission on Membership and Evangelism, chairman of the Official Board, church lay leader, and finally as local preacher.

After receiving the call to preach, Rev. Evans attended Candler School of Theology at Emory University, Altanta, Georgia, and received his bachelor of divinity degree in 1958. While at Candler, he served the church at Dawsonville, in the North Georgia Conference. Since his return to Louisiana, Rev. Evans has served at Mangham and Heflin.

He is married to the former Dorothy Jordan of West Monroe, who also graduated from Ouachita Prrish High School and Louisiana Tech. The Evans' have three children, Marilyn, 15, Harold, 13, and Wayne, 11. The children have been active in all phases of church and school youth work and Harold is senior patrol leader in the Boy Scouts of America.

The Evans' will live in the St. Marks Parsonage on Bayou Shores.

Josey's Honored On Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Horace B. Josey celebrated their silver wedding anniversary last Sunday with an open house between 3 and 5 p.m.

Approximately 75 guests called at the Josey home where the honorees were assisted by hostesses Mrs. Ed Hislip Jr., Mrs. John M. Parker, Mrs. Oscar Harrell and Mrs. David Brown. Tea girls were Misses Judy Wilhite and Faye Parker.

Mrs. Josey wore a silver and white metallic sheath with matching shoes and a corsage of white orchids.

Evangelistic Film Is Slated

A full length Billy Graham evangelistic film in color, will be presented 7 p.m. Monday at Trinity Baptist Church in West Monroe.

The film, "Shadow of the Boomerange," is described as "man against God in a powerful story of . . . human emotions that spans two continents."

Lodges Give Mason Books To Libraries

JONESVILLE (Special) —Copies of a book entitled "Masonry in Louisiana" were presented this week to all parish and school libraries within Catahoula Parish by the three Masonic Lodges of the parish.

Participating is Harrisonburg Lodge No. 110, F & AM; Keystone Lodge No. 213, F&AM, Sicily Island; and Four Rivers Lodge No. 369, F&AM, Jonesville.

The book, sequicentennial history from 1812 to 1962, was written by Glenn Lee Green, a native of Clarks.

Included in the book are references made to the three lodges of Catahoula parish.

A special mention is made of the Masonic "Open air" ceremonies held yearly on top of Fort Hill in Harrisonburg which attracts masons from as many as five states.

"Masonry in Lousiiana" was commissioned by the sequicentennial committee of the Grand Lodge of the State of Louisiana, Free and Accepted Masons. It is the record of the 150 years since the first New Orleans lodges founded the Grand Lodge of Louisiana in 1812 — the same year that the State entered the Union.

The reader will find accounts of heroic Masonic deeds in connection with the Louisiana Purchase, the West Florida Rebellion, the War of 1812 and the Civil War — some of the episodes never before told. There is also the record of all Louisiana's Masons' causes — their relief lodges, the Masonic Home for Children, their promotion of public education and their generous and energetic charitable work during the 1927 flood and the Cameron hurricane disaster.

Masonry in Catahoula parish has enjoyed a long and enviable record with its beginning dating back in 1852.

Harrisonburg Lodge No. 110, F&AM was charted on January 21, 1952 and is the only one in the surrounding area that survived the Civil War. It has functioned for a continuous period of 110 years.

Keystone Lodge No. 213, F&AM Sicily Island, was chartered on February 14, 1872, and has enjoyed 90 prosperous years in that community.

Four Rivers Lodge No. 369 F&AM, Jonesville, was chartered on Feb. 5, 1918, and has made continous progress in the community, and has the largest membership of the three Catahoula lodges.

Prior to the chartering of Four Rivers Lodge 369, there was a lodge at Trinity known as Trinity Lodge No. 105, which was chartered January 21, 1852, the same date of the chartering of the Harrisonburg Lodge. Trinity Lodge, like a number of other lodges along the Mississippi and other rivers sin the northeast portion of the state, did not withstand the ravages of war and forfeited its charter in 1881.

Freemasonry is an important and integral part of the political and social history of the founding of the United States as well as almost every state in the Union, pointed out the author. A majority of the Founding Fathers — Washington, Franklin, Madison, Livingston and others — were Masons, and Masonic ideals and democratic traditions are woven tightly into the fabric of American institutions upon which the country was founded and continued to flourish, it was also pointed out.

"In the history of probably no other state is the story of Masonic influence so colorful or dramatic as in Louisiana," A Catahoula Mason said after reading the book. "Here in the early nineteenth century the traditions of three cultures —French, Spanish and American — met head on in religious, political and social upheaval. As they sought accomodation that would weld them into a single pattern reflective of American democracy, the impact of the Masonic institution was indeed decisive."

"These sidelights on American history will fascinate any reader— be he Mason or Non - Mason, Louisianian or not — as he discovers the orgin, development, progress, contributions and impact of Freemasonry on the life of Louisiana," he added.

My Answer

By BILLY GRAHAM

QUESTION: Please tell me how to 'dwell in the secret place of the Most high', for I feel that the verses of the 91st Psalm are only related to the one who dewlls there.

ANSWER: To many of us, our faith in God is just a pleasant diversion or avocation. We find a bit of social acceptance in church-going, a feeling of 'community', and respectability. One hour invested in church is not wasted, we say.

But the Psalmist said; "He that dwelleth in the Secret place of the Most high, shall abide." It is said of good musicians, "They live their music." It is said of good doctors, "They eat, drink, and sleep medicine." Ben Hogan, the golfer, is said to become suddenly mute when anyone talks of anything but his game, golf. These men excell because they live their work.

When Christ becomes the central loyalty in our lives, we then begin to "dwell in the Secret place of the Most High." His disciples 'left all' and followed Him —they moved the world for Him. We cannot expect to count for much when we are not dedicated. The law of diminishing returns operates in the spiritual sphere as well as the material.

Wildlife Unit Organization Set

HARRISONBURG (Special) — The members of the Catahoula Wildlife Unit, which recently voted unanimously to withdraw from the Louisiana Wildlife Federato after charging the parent organization had "turned its back" on the local unit, will meet Monday at 7 p.m. in Harrisonburg courthouse for the purpose of organizing an independent group.

The proposed action was outlined to members of the Jonesville Lions club by Rev. J. W. Boyd, president of the local wildlife unit, as he urged them to attend the meeting and "take part in an organization which will do something for our parish."

Boyd blasted the Louisiana Wildlife Federation saying, "It irks me to see what the Louisiana Wildlife Federation and some of the local units are doing. It gets under my skin to see how this unit has been sidestepped and neglected."

Bishop Is Slated To Attend Meeting

NATCHITOCHES (Special) — The Rev. Charles P. Greco, D.D., Bishop of Alexandria, will attend the fifth annual convention of the Alexandria Diocesan Council of the National Council of Catholic Women and will act as honorary chairman at the convention sessions.

The two-day meeting of all Catholic women in the Alexandria Diocese will be held in Natchitoches March 10 and 11, hosted by the Natchitoches Deanery Council.

Davis, Mayors Proclaim Job Security Month

Employment security month will be observed March 1-31 in Ouachita Parish in connection with the state - wide observance.

Proclamations designating the observance in Ouachita Parish have been issued by Mayor W. L. Howard of Monroe and Mayor J. Allan Norris of West Monroe. The state - wide observance has been proclaimed by Gov. Jimmie H. Davis.

The proclamations issued locally point out that "more than 3,000 of Ouachita Parish's working force is currently unemployed."

Mayors Howard and Norris also point out that "we call upon all employers, leaders of industry and labor, and members of civic, veteran and fraternal organizations to cooperate and assist the Louisiana State Employment Service to carry out a successful Employment Security Month, thus increasing both state and local area payrolls and creating the buying power necessary to maintain a healthy and sound economy throughout Ouachita Parish."

In urging cooperation and assistance with the State Employment Service, Gov. Davis points out that "more than 70,000 of Louisiana's available working force is currently unemployed."

Mississippi Field Tests Continuing

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Victor Smith ran sidewall coring and formation tests the past week to evaluate oil shows at 10,347 feet in a Cranfield field test in Adams County.

The National Gasoline Co. No. 1, sec. 67-7n-1w was drilled to 10,600 feet with the oil shows in the lower Tuscaloosa formation.

In the Yellow Creek field of Wayne County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. continued testing on the Norsworthy No. 1, sec. 18-9n-8w, but no information was released.

The Norsworthy was drilled to 12,506 feet with three strings of tubing cemented in the well. Reports indicated several oil sands were logged in deeper zones and if completed it will be the first deep production for the semi-shallow field.

The current producing formation in the Yellow Creek field is in the Eutaw formation below 5,000 feet.

In Yazoo County, production tests were underway at the Cary No. 1, sec. 23-12n-3w, drilled by Broadhead Drilling Co. and located in the Woolfe Lake area.

Operators set small diameter casing at 7,464 feet and were reported testing a zone at 7,383 feet.

The wildcat is about 12 miles north of the Tinsley oil field.

Larco Drilling Co. set production casing in a Smithdale field of Amite County, the Garner-Hewitt No. 1, sec. 21-4n-6e. Production tests were scheduled in the Dykes sand.

Also in the Smithdale field, Dave Gammill was below 5,800 feet in the Wilson No. 1, sec. 22-4n-6e, with the test scheduled to 11,250 feet.

L. O. McMillan has secured a permit for a wildcat, the Southern Package Corp. No. 1, sec. 27-1n-3w, a 13,200 foot try.

The nearest producing area to the well is the one well Morgans field of Hinds County, about 13 miles northeast. Copiah County has no commercial oil or gas production.

Two closely watched wildcat tests were underway in the Hardrock country of northeast Mississippi.

Pan American Petroleum Corp. was below 7,430 feet in the Ashby No. 1, sec. 25-13s-1e, Calhoun County.

RECOVERY SEEN

Seven New Rigs Completed In 4 District Parishes

Drillers in four parishes combined last week to bring in a total of seven new wells in widely scattered sectors of the 14-parish Monroe Oil and Gas District. Activity in northeast Louisiana, like that elsewhere, appeared in the middle of a strong recovery from earlier slumps, brought on mainly by unfavorable weather.

Three of the seven completions reported through the Monroe office of District Manager Duncan Cook centered in Union Parish — all in the Monroe Field—while Tensas Parish contributed two finals and Winn and Catahoula, one each.

Fresh activity proved even more encouraging when a total of 11 new locations were on record at week's end yesterday. One of the sites was listed in Ouachita Parish, also in the Monroe Field, but Catahoula Parish showed the way in new activity with the spotting of sites for four additional wells, two of them wildcats.

Charts on overall activity looked favorable with 22 rigs shown actively drilling or testing throughout the 14 area parishes. Figures from LaSalle and Tensas Parishes indicated drillers there the busiest and contributing a full half of total activity; LaSalle held six active rigs, Tensas, five. Four wells were active in Ouachita Parish — two wildcats and two in the Cheniere Field.

Cook's release cited six abandonments during the week, but the district's total on inactive locations held firm for the third successive week at 101. Locations numbered 44 and there were no re-completions on record.

The weekly run - down on wells completed or placed in production for the first time, new locations and active rigs looked like this:

Oil Allowables Set For State

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Louisiana set its daily oil production allowable Friday at 1,155,364 barrels for March and April, unchanged except for 16,177 barrels to take care of new wells.

This state sets its allowables on a two-month basis.

Conservation Commissioner James Gill announced the March-April figure, compared with the current 1,139,187 barrels. The new offshore allowable total, included in the overall total, is 322,356 barrels, up from the current 309,664 barrels.

The new allowables by districts: Houma 369,477 barrels, Lafayette 226,856, Lake Charles 65,791, New Orleans 371,230, Monroe 61,133 and Shreveport 60,877.

BY OIL FIRM HEAD

Sources Of Fuel Expected To Shift

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The head of the nation's largest oil marketing firm believes changing technology may dictate significant shifts among the nation's major energy sources the next 25 years.

Morgan J. Davis, board chairman of the Humble Oil & Refining Co., is confident, however, such shifts will result from changing competitive conditions rather than from an actual shortage of oil and gas.

Davis said oil and gas now supply more than 70 per cent of the nation's energy needs, compared to only 6 per cent in 1900.

"It seems likely energy requirements will double in another 25 years," he said.

"The potential crude oil and natural gas resources of the United States are adequate for us to continue to use them as our major sources of fuel for the foreseeable future provided we do not discourage the search for new fields by unwise actions."

Davis said projections for the future can be based only on a mixture of past experience and present analysis but that some of the new sources of energy lie just over the technological and economic horizon.

"And in some cases the supply appears to be almost inexhaustible," he said.

Davis made these comments about the present status of seven energy sources:

Coal and oil shale—large new resources are available at any time technology makes their costs competitive with supplies from existing sources of energy."

Nuclear fission—"It will be a long time before power from the atom can compete successfully in civilian applications. But, as economics improves through advancing technology, nuclear powed will become more important as a source of electric power generation."

Nuclear fusion—"Steam generated from the heat released by a hydrogen bomb detonated below the earth's surface could be used to generate electricity in conventional steam turbines. This theory is being tested in the government's project plowshare and the gnome shot on Dec. 10 was directed toward this end."

Natural steam wells — "Last year, in California, the Pacific Gas & Electric Co. announced its intention to build a commercial power plant utilizing this source of energy."

Solar radiation—"So far, no device has been developed which can convert and use solar energy economically, dependably, and on a large scale . . . Experiments are being conducted on solar furnaces, and some homes may one day be heated with them."

Winds and waves — "Power-hungry Europe has recently renewed its interest in these source But the problem here, as it is with solar energy, has been one of collecting and concentrating the relatively diffuse energy and then converting it to a useful form. It is simply a problem of getting the sun to shine, or the wind to blow, in the right intensity or at the right time."

Fuel cell—"Present problems which must be overcome before the fuel cell can be used economically include heat loss and corrosion. When these can be satisfactorily overcome, fuel cells may enter the energy field to furnish power for cars, trucks, buses, and other machinery which use relatively small power units."

The oil industry is giving considerable research laboratory attention to the fuel cell these days.

The fuel cell uses an oxidation process, instead of combustion, to convert the chemical energy of a conventional gaseous or liquid fuel into low voltage electrical energy.

Local Man Wins Recognition For 61 Sales Record

John V. Craft, 416 Lakeshore Drive, has earned special recognition from Burroughs Corporation for his outstanding 1961 sales record with the business machines and electronic data processing equipment firm.

Craft received membership in the Burroughs Legion of Honor and a trip to Grand Bahama Island for a convention sales meeting-vacation the week of February 22. To earn the trip, he achieved 154 percent of his annual sales quota, placing him in the top 10 per cent of the Equipment and Systems Marketing division's 2,000 - man field sales force.

Ray R. Eppert, Burroughs president, will head a delegation of top company executives which will host the award - winning salesmen at the Grand Bahama Club for three days.

A nine - year Burroughs sales representative, Craft is married and the father of two boys and one girl.

Awarded

Three employees of Louisiana Power & Light Company's Northern Division recently were awarded Company service pins.

They are: J. W. Jackson, serviceman in the West Monroe District, and Alvis A. Hicks, lineman in a Northern Division construction crew, both 15-year pins; and Marvin A. Kemp, groundman in the Northern Division, 10-year pin.

Open House

WINNSBORO (Special) — The Franklin State Bank and Trust company held open house from 2 to 6 p.m. Thursday in celebration of the completion of their quarter-million dollar expansion and remodeling program.

In addition to enlarging and completely remodeling the building, two windows have been added to provide drive-in service for customers.

T. J. Owen of Winnsboro was contractor for the project which was designed by John W. Baker, Associates, Architects-Engineers, of Winnsboro.

The Bank was established in Winnsboro 54 years ago on August 3, 1908 with a capital stock of $20,000. Capital stock today is $539,583 and deposits at the beginning of this year totaled $6,504,572.

Announcement

Connecticut General Life Insurance Company today announced it now owns more than 94 per cent of the capital stock of Aetna Insurance Company, and its offer to Aetna Insurance Company stockholders has been extended to 4:00 p.m. Eastern Standard Time, March 13.

The extension is for the benefit of Aetna Insurance Company stockholders who have had problems in tendering their shares, the Company said.

There will be no further extension.

Elected

Earle F. Lingle has been elected assistant secretary - treasurer of the First Federal Savings & Loan Association.

He was elected to the post Thursday at a regular monthly meeting of the association's board of directors.

O. N. McNeil, secretary - treasurer, pointed out that Lingle's post was created by the board, "due to the growth of the association."

The First Federal Savings & Loan Association now has two assistant secretary-treasurers. Mrs. Minnie F. Thompson also serves in that capacity as manager of the office and accounting departments. Lingle will be in charge of the loan department.

IN NEAR FUTURE

Air Service Seen For 2 Area Towns

CROSSETT (Special) — Application has been made to the Civil Aeronautics Board, Washington, D.C., by Cotton Belt Airways for scheduled air service from Texarkana, Ark., to Birmingham, Ala., with intermediate stops at Magnolia, El Dorado, and Crossett, Ark.; Greenville, Greenwood, and Columbus, Miss.

If the application is approved Crossett will have two scheduled flights each way daily with twin-engine Aero-Commander aircraft.

A radio beacon, which will operate on a 396 kilocycle frequency, is being installed at the Crossett Mnuicipal Airport in order that planes can come in on a radio beam. The installation is being connected into Crossett where it will have a 24-hour monitor.

Robert Fisher, president of the Crossett Chamber of Commerce, announced that the Chamber fully supports scheduled air service for Crossett and has written a letter to David M. Segal, Denver, Col., owner of the proposed Cotton Belt Airways, supporting the application.

RUSTON (Special)—The possibility of passenger plane service into Ruston will be discussed with top representatives of Trans Air Lines of New Orleans by Ruston businessmen at 10 a.m. Wednesday, according to Lundy Cavender, Ruston Chamber of Commerce Manager.

Two advance representatives for the airline were in Ruston Wednesday to set up plans for the meeting next week. They are W. P. Wigley and J. W. Godwin.

Scheduled to be in Ruston next week to discuss what needs of Ruston are and to determine scheduling of flights and other factors are John Frieberg, president and owner of the line, and Richard Barber, general manager of Trans Air.

According to correspondence in the past, the firm hopes to provide a six-passenger flight from Shreveport to Monroe with stops in Ruston and Minden. These flights would tie in with flights on to Baton Rouge and New Orleans in such a way that an individual could go to either city and transact business during the day and return the same afternoon.

Contract Awarded Firm At Ruston

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—The Army Corps of Engineers has announced the awarding of a $689,123.26 contract to T. L. James & Co. of Ruston, La.

The contract for airfield paving at Barksdale Air Force Base, Shreveport, La., includes construction of a taxiway and access apron, removal and replacement of pavement, installation of drains, and repainting of taxiway markings.

Big Telegraph Construction Program Set

Western Union's annual report revealed today an estimated 1961 - 64 expansion program budget amounting to $373,000,000 for construction, training and preparing for future growth. The budgeted program for the four years is almost triple the company's average growth rate during the preceding decade.

Western Union concentrated in 1961 on its construction program, designed to fill the rapidly growing telecommunication needs of industry, government, and the public, Walter P. Marshall, president of Western Union, said in his message to share owners.

Work is well advanced in building the transcontinental microwave system, extending the new Telex service, and installing the Air Force DATACOM network (Phase I - COMLOGNET) and other new systems, Marshall said. He also stressed new voice, data and broadband switching communications systems as future growth areas for Western Union.

The first of five centers for the Air Force DATACOM system is scheduled for service in the second quarter of 1962, and the others before year end. The report termed DATACOM "the world's largest and most advanced digital communication system." Revenues from this system are expected to be more than $20,000,000 annually.

Western Union reported expansion of Telex, its two-way direct dial printing telegraph service, to 43 cities in the United States, with service to 181 cities planned by the end of 1964. Worldwide service was inaugurated late in 1961 by interconnection with overseas facilities.

A nationwide nuclear - bomb detecting system is being installed for the Air Force "following the successful engineering test of a prototype system," the report said. The network will add about $4,000,000 annually to private wire revenues.

An Emergency Message Automatic Transmission Service (EMATS) has been placed in service for the Joint Chiefs of Staff, which will automatically flash top priority instructions and orders to major military commands around the world. It permits pushbutton command of the system's worldwide telegraph facilities for immediate transmission of vital messages. A similar system was also installed for the Air Force.

Reading Group Slates Meeting

The Northeast Louisiana Reading Association will hold a meeting at Northeast Louisiana State College on Friday and Saturday, March 9-10.

The meeting will be held in Biedenharn Hall Auditorium.

Dr. Walter B. Barbe, professor of special education at Kent (Ohio) State, will be featured speaker. His topic will be "Why Children Have Difficulties in Reading."

Dr. Levelle Haynes, president of the Association, will open the meeting in an assembly at 7 p.m., March 9. The Rev. T. Earl Ogg, pastor of College Place Baptist Church, will give the invocation. A business session will follow. At 7:20, Dr. Barbe will speak.

The Saturday session begins at 9:30 a.m., with Gene Hardin, vice president of the Association, "I'm sure the teachers did what they felt had to be done," said Varney. "It might be a little lack of judgment, but in my point of view it's not such a terrible thing."

Glenn To Visit In Home Town

NEW CONCORD, Ohio (AP)— Villagers, receiving word Saturday that Lt. Col. John H. Glenn would visit them for 4½ hours next Friday or Saturday, planned a celebration of "John H. Glenn Jr. Day."

Mayor James K. Taylor said although the astronaut's home town folk have not been told when the astronaut will arrive in New Concord, he received word from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration that Glenn will be available for the homecoming activities from noon until 4:30 p.m. Friday or Saturday. No specific date has been set.

Crossett Negro Released From Police Custody

CROSSETT, Ark. (Special) —A Negro woman was released from custody Saturday after Coronor William M. Jones, ruled that there was no "evidence of foul play" in the death of Lee Burton.

Gussie Keys, 47, was held by the Ashley County sheriff's department after Sheriff B. A. Courson said Monday that he had evidence of possible murder of Burton.

However, the coronor stated, "Burton appeared to be alive at the time of the fire." Burton was found dead in the ashes of his burning home Feb. 17.

Prosecuting attorney Frank Winn dismissed the charges Saturday after receiving the autopsy report.

SUMMARY

The coastal storm which dumped heavy snows on Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine was located well off the New England coast by late evening Saturday moving farther to sea. Accumulations of new show ranged as high as 10 inches at Portland, Maine, and 11 inches at Burlington, Vermont. However the fall dwindled rapidly and only light amounts were picked up over the New England area last night. Blustery winds raking the coastal shores should gradually slacken during the night hours. Just to the west, periods of light snow or flurries continued over parts of New York state, western Pennsylvania and Ohio. Looking to the rest of the country, wet weather occurred in the form of showers in southern California and as scattered snow from the central plateau region across the central Rockies into upper portions of the plains and Mississippi Valley. Also, northern Florida experienced intermittent shower activity.

Fast fading warm air over the southeast sent the midafternoon mercury into the 70s or 80s along the Gulf and south Atlantic states, including southeastern sections of Virginia. Richmond hit a high of 72 while in the sunshine state of Florida, record highs for the month were set at both Jacksonville and Lakeland with readings of 88 degrees. The city of Orlando, Florida, posted a summerlike top reading of 90 degrees. Meantime, compensating cold weather gripped the northern third of the country where most temperatures remained well below freezing. Freezing values also dipped down into northern sections of Oklahoma and the Texas Panhandle. Near zero levels cast a frigid touch across the Montana-Dakota area.

The outlook for Sunday — Predominantly sunny but chilly weather is in store for most of the nation. A few showers are likely over the far southwest and scattered light snow from the southern and central Rockeis into upper portions of the plains and Mississippi Valley. Snow flurries are expected to linger near the northern Appalachians. A slow warming trend over the central and upper midwest should moderate somewhat the cold spell that has taken hold of this region.

Parents Ired By Strappings

SUDBURY, Ont. (UPI)— Irate parents Saturday called for an investigation into the strapping of almost an entire class of school children as punishment for throwing snowballs.

They complained that between 25 and 37 fifth and sixth grade pupils at Adamsdale Public School were lined up and strapped in succession Thursday.

The process was described as "the police state method" by one parent.

School Board Chairman Cyril Varney said that according to the corporal punishment register, 22 youngsters were strapped.

Police Charge Pair In Slaying

NEW YORK (AP) — A doctor's widow and a 19-year-old auto mechanic, whose relationship police said "surpassed close friendship," were charged Saturday with slaying the doctor.

Police said they had an eyewitness to the killing.

Deputy Chief Inspector James E. Knott said the Dec. 7 slaying of Dr. Joseph Difede, 39, was planned while he was visiting his mother in Italy. He was killed eight days after returning.

Police booked the widow, Jean, 36, and the auto mechanic, Armando Cossentino, on charges of homicide and held them for arraignment Sunday.

T. FITZHUGH WILSON

U.S. Attorney Retires; To Return Here

T. Fitzhugh Wilson, United States Attorney for the Western District of Louisiana for the past eight and one-half years, will retire on March 3. He has served for two terms, both of which were under the appointments of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Wilson, who lives at 1109 N. 4th St. in Monroe, will return to Monroe where he will enter the private practice of law. Presently, his offices are in Shreveport.

Prior to his appointment as federal attorney, Wilson was with the Federal Bureau of Investigation for more than 25 years, having joined the Justice Department as a special agent of the FBI in November of 1936. From 1940 to 1953, he served as senior resident agent of the FBI at Monroe.

Wilson is a member of the Bars of the United States Supreme Court, Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals, U. S. District Court for the Western District of Louisiana and all of the courts of the State of Louisiana. He is also a member of the American Bar Association, the American Judicature Society, Shreveport Bar Association and the Louisiana Peace Officers Association.

Active in the Episocpal church, Wilson is past senior warden and member of the Vestry of Grace Episcopal Church in Monroe, chairman of laymen activities in the Diocese of Louisiana, and for the past four years vice-chairman of the Fourth Province, which includes southeastern United States from Virginia and Florida to Texas.

He received his bachelor of science and LLB Degrees from Tulane University and is a member of the Delta Tau Delta and Phi Delta Phi fraternities.

He is a member of the Bayou DeSiard Country Club, Monroe Rotary Club, and the Louisiana Society of the Sons of the American Revolution.

Stepdaughter Of Actor Held

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)— Actor Robert Taylor's stepdaughter, Manuela Theiss, 18, was arrested Saturday, police said.

She was booked on suspicion of being "under the influence of some intoxicant other than alcohol." Detectives said they were not sure what the intoxicant was.

Taylor said he would make arrangements for her release. "She's been in this kind of trouble before," he told a newsman.

Transition Time

While winter's drab cloak lies over hills and flatlands, flowers of many varieties are adding touches of color to yards around the area.

Blossoming trees stand in contrast to sturdy pines and others that have held their greenery throughout the cold season, and to those that are awaiting the spring for costumes of foliage.

Warm days that are spared the touch of rain, bring out many persons who are seeking the balm of the great out — of - doors. And tiny tots give swings and outdoor play facilities a workout.

There is an increase in the number of visitors to parks and to the zoo at Bernstein Park in Monroe.

Besides bringing out fishermen, golfers, flower gardeners and others, the patches of sunny weather also bring out the camera bugs in search of good subjects for photographs.

He also caught her on film in in a special open - mouth expression of merriment. It was a good day, camerawise and otherwise.

Fogleman, who took the pictures on "35 milimeter plus X film rated at 200," passed along the information to camera fans, that they were developed in microdol X.

Use Electronic Devices

Air Police In Rugged Job

EDITOR'S NOTE—Air controllers are the cops of the air. They use the most precise electronic equipment millions of dollars can buy, not whistles, to guide giant jets, not jaywalkers.

By CHARLES STAFFORD

NEW YORK (AP)—Pete Bernhard has a shepherd's heart.

He watches over his flock, leading them safely home, and when he misses one "I get a sinking feeling. I don't want to believe it."

Bernhard is an air traffic controller, a guide to the thousands of airplanes that ride the four winds daily into the aerial fold of New York. When the weather closes in, they mill about in the clouds over Newark Airport, LaGuardia, and Idlewild—Bernhard's home base. And men like Bernhard keep them apart.

The shepherding system seldom fails.

SINKING FEELING

But that sinking feeling came to Bernhard about midmorning Dec. 16, 1960.

"Roger," a controller at LaGuardia told Trans World Airlines flight 266, inbound, and added: "That appears to be jet traffic off your right now, three o'clock at one mile, northeastbound."

For a moment, there was the whisper of 266's open mike. Then nothing.

Across Long Island's bulging middle, Peter Bernhard was sitting at the elbow of a less-experienced controller, checking out his work in the eerie green light of the Idlewild radar room. About that instant in time when the LaGuardia controller said "Roger," Bernhard was listening to a routine call:

"Idlewild approach control, United 826, 'proaching Preston at 5,000."

"United 826. . .United 826. . . United 826. . .United 826. . .

Bernhard's heart began its descent.

The planes had collided. One of the worst aerial tragedies in the nation's history wiped out 137 lives. (A final report of the investigation is expected soon.)

Somehow the United Jet had jumped an imaginary fence between the Idlewild and LaGuardia territories. When it reported " 'proaching Preston," it was 11 miles northeast of where it was supposed to be.

QUESTION

Pilot error? Faulty equipment in the plane? Or did something go wrong with the radio beam intersection called Preston?

It was a month before Bernhard returned to work, a month filled with hearings trying to establish the cause.

On his first day back, he answered a call from a woman at a small Long Island airport. "Do you have an aircraft missing?" she asked. "One of my pilots sighted wreckage off the coast."

The Bernhard heart descended, the check began. An American Airlines jet had crashed during a training flight. Five men were killed.

"They almost lost me then," says Bernhard.

Sometimes, he says a crash does end a controller's career. A man on duty when a Capital Airlines plane collided with a National Guard plane near Washington, D.C., was hospitalized for more than a year. When he returned to work, he could no longer do his job. The sight of two ships approaching each other on a radar screen terrified him, even though he knew they represented planes at widely separated altitudes.

HAPPIER MOMENTS

But there are happier moments.

The general didn't speak English. Bernhard doesn't speak Russian.

With the help of an American major aboard the Soviet plane, who stood at the general's elbow and translated, Bernhard brought the plane down by radar to a safe landing with eight minutes of fuel left.

Next day, the general showed up to shake Bernhard's hand.

There are 17,500 controllers working for the Federal Aviation Agency in 234 towers, 36 air route traffic control centers, and 412 flight service stations in the United States. They direct traffic in skies cluttered with 22,000 military, 2,000 commercial, and 80,000 private aircraft which travel at speeds varying roughly from 60 to 600 miles an hour.

STARTING POINT

The air control system dates back to early 1936 when 10 men met in a dingy office under the tower cab at Newark airport to found Air Traffic Control, Inc.—an airline-financed venture to make the airways safe for flying. On July 6, 1936, the government took it over.

There are 37 controllers assigned to Idlewild tower, which averages 1,059 operations — landings and departures—a day.

Adult Education Low

Evidence that Louisiana's high school graduates do not measure up to the national average can be found in results of examinations given high school students as they enter college. This is more true among the Negro graduates than white. But even at the University of Southwestern Louisiana, where almost all freshmen are white, in 1960-61, for example, 85 per cent of the entering freshmen ranked below the national average in the Cooperative Test on Mathematics. The year before 84 per cent ranked below the national average.

At Louisiana State University, as at other colleges, tests given entering freshmen are used to determine whether the freshmen must take remedial work before they can go on to college level work. The size of LSU's remedial problem is indicated by the fact that 519 freshmen were enrolled in "remedial" English and 633 in "remedial" mathematics in the first semester of 1960-61 (out of a first-time enrollment of 3,455).

In the final analysis, one unshakeable evaluation of the quality of the high school program is the ability of high school graduates to perform in college. The graduates of certain Louisiana high schools undoubtedly get an excellent education, and it is felt that all high schools can benefit from a study of the methods by which this excellence is attained.

It is because several of Louisiana's high schools have consistently graduated students with very good preparation that the first phase of PAR's study of the high schools will be a study of excellence —a study of these superior schools to determine what factors have contributed to their good records. Such a study, it is believed, can be very helpful to other high schools throughout the state.

Any reasonable appraisal of Louisiana's public educational program in the years since World War II must conclude that vast progress has been made. Yet, in spite of the substantial progress, Louisiana has made no real advance on the other states.

PAR's executive committee has approved the expenditure of $250,000 for the purpose of making a study of the educational needs of Louisiana high schools.

Parents and grandparents certainly have a direct and personal interest in the public schools. There can be no doubt that the quality of the public schools leaves its mark on every segment and every phase of our lives.

As citizens, we have a right to inquire into the operations of the schools we support.

For more than 20 years, Louisiana has ranked high in per capita expenditures for education. How long can we allow this state to rank close to the top in expenditures for each scholastic and near the bottom in adult education? Somewhere along the line we must see a vast improvement in our adult education rating or we must come to the conclusion that a large part of the money we spend on education is wasted. Twenty years or more of high expenditures for education is a long time to go without an improved ranking in adult education.

Undoubtedly an inquiry of some sort is mandatory. The probers must find out why we seem to be getting less for our educational money than do the other states.

Louisiana must speed up its efforts toward attaining higher quality in the public schools if our state is to take its proper place in the nation.

The PAR inquiry into the educational needs appears to be the best hope that is being offered at this time. It deserves the fullest support.

Despite the huge sums that have been and are being spent in Louisiana on education, figures released by the Louisiana Public Affairs Research Council disclose the shocking fact that education among adults in this state ranks almost at the bottom of the whole United States.

This seems incredible but we are told that figures don't lie, so those who have been claiming we get our money's worth for what we spend in Louisiana on education may be practicing some deception.

Median school years completed in Louisiana among adults were listed as follows: 1940, 6.6; 1950, 7.6; 1960, 8.8 Louisiana ranking among all states for those years was: 1940, 48th; 1950, 49th (tie); 1960, 48th (tie).

Those with less than five years of schooling for those years in the same order were set at the following percentages among adults: 35.6; 28.7; and 21.3. Rankings among states were: 48th, 50th and 50th. (Alaska and Hawaii were counted for 1950 and 1960 but not for 1940. In each case this placed Louisiana at the bottom of the list.

Under no schooling for adults, percentages for the years were: 12.8; 9.1 and 6.6. In 1948 Louisiana ranked 48th and in 1950 and 1960 it ranked 49th, tying for last place.

For those having at least four years of high school in Louisiana for the respective years, the percentages were: 17.5; 21.6; and 32.3. In the state ranking Louisiana placed 43rd, 44th and somewhere between 41st and 43rd for 1960. figures for that year not being complete.

For those having four or more years of college, the per cent of adults in Louisiana was 3.5 for 1940, 4.7 for 1950 and 6.7 for 1960. The ranking among the states was a tie for 39th in 1940, 42nd in 1950 and somewhere between 33rd and 38th in 1960.

Although progress has been made in Louisiana, the state's relative position has not improved, except possibly in the matter of adults with college training.

PAR pointed out that the poor rankings Louisiana holds in the states in educational attainment of its adult population do not constitute an evaluation of our present public educational program. Rather, they are the result of our negligence toward public education in past generations, for only a small fraction of today's adults have gone to school since 1950.

PAR has done a great deal of research in many fields of government during its 11-year history. But regardless of whether this research has been in the field of education or not, it has become increasingly clear that solutions to our many problems will not come so long as our population has such a low level of education.

Louisiana's unemployment problems, its lagging economic growth, its very low per capita income, its huge welfare rolls, its political instability and immaturity are all clearly traceable to the fact that Louisiana's adult population has been the poorest educated of all the states in the nation for a number of years.

Few people realize or can even bring themselves to believe that Louisiana's adult population ranks at the very bottom of the nation in educational attainment. And the frightening thing about it is that despite the progress that has been made in this state, Louisiana has made no significant gains on the other states in the past two decades.

This lack of education has been sharply felt. Louisiana ranked 48th in the per cent of selective service registrants failing the mental test in 1959, with exactly half of the registrants failing. Over the nation, only one-fourth of the registrants failed.

In the 20 years during which the National Science Talent Search has been carried on, Louisiana has had only one winner out of the 800 winners, and only 22 honors students out of 5,616 honors students. On the basis of population alone, Louisiana should have had 15 winners and 101 honors students. Of the 88 Louisiana high school students participating in the Science Talent Search in 1959-60, 18 scored above the national norm and 70 scored below that norm.

Call Them Bolshevicks

Monroe, La.

To the Editor:

We, between Canada on the north and Mexico and the Gulf of Mexico on the south, and the world are told that if we can call "the leaders" of Russia "Communists" and their forced-on - the - Russians way -of -life "Communism" we will hurt our "foreign relations" with them and may drive away "the dove of peace".

In 1917, Czar Nicholas II quit by firing squad in a basement room. Two groups of an - ark-ists (anarchists) appeared: the Whites and the Reds; the Reds won the set-to.

The Russian language has two common, everyday, words: menshe — small, less, minority; bolshe — large, more, majority. "Viki" is the word for "people".

The Reds took over and called themselves Bolsheviki, and their roughneck way of life they called Bolshevism. They have worked these 44 years to convince the plain Russians, the Menshevik Russians, their neighbors, and their neighbors, and the world, that they are here to stay — even by killing off more than 20 million Russians (plain and Menshevik). They are proud of themselves, their name, and their way of life.

"To give the devil his dues" they should be, more and more, more and more openly, called Bolsheviks, and their way of life Bolshevism — it is their own choice of names.

The Bolsheviks were too tough to read the Bible — religion was not for them. But a fun - loving Bolshevik found a copy, and read some in it. In the Book of Acts, in chapter 2, verses 44-46 he found something they could use to make Bolshevism "taste better", "go down easier" for the world:

"And all that believed were together, and had all things common; and sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all men, as every man had need. And they, continuing daily with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart. . . ."

They re - wrote that for the world to find and believe and love as: "From each according to his ability; to each according to his need". The world believed that the Bolsheviks were sweeter-natured than it had supposed. So that "Communist" and "Communism" don't hurt the Bolsheviks; it tickles them to know the world sings to them: Let us call you sweetheart, we love you . . . Let us call you sweetheart, please, please do-o-o-o.

We surely did like the way to put in "The Fisherman's Corner" in Friday's paper and "Little Man's Corner" in Sunday paper.

Dilapidated City Hall

MONROE, LA.

To the Editor:

Frequently the writer receives requests from organizations of the City Court room for their meetings and from student bodies of local schools to visit the Court while in session.

These requests are always cheerfully granted but with extreme embarrassment because of the dilapidated, wornout, termite infested ruins of the building that almost antedates the ruins of Ancient Rome.

Have you ever tried to negotiate the stairway leading to the Court room? If you have a heart condition, don't try it!

I hope very much that I can finish my present and final term as your Judge without the tower of Babel toppling over to bury all the occupants of this ancient structure. I understand this tower has been condemned as an extreme hazard.

Let me admonish all citizens, when showing our otherwise fair city to visitors, to bypass City Hall or be prepared to answer humiliating questions.

To The Editor:

I am writing this letter as I wish to make some friends in your country through correspondence. Don't you think it's a good idea if we could understand each other by exchanging some stamps, cards or news and information about school life, daily activities or even the world events?

It has been said that our Japanese world view is narrow. Maybe it is true. That's why in the past our fathers and mothers made many mistakes. But we youth want to associate with different peoples of different countries and have wider views.

Understanding is, I think, the first required thing before starting anything. The friendship built upon such understanding can really serve the way to the brighter life and the world peace later. My very writing of this letter is for that purpose. Up until this time I did not know how to do anything like this, but as I was told by the Youth Council For International Contact (201- Chome Jimbo - cha Chiyoda - len, Tokyo, Japan) recently that the best way is to write to the editors of some newspapers. So, here I am writing this.

Perhaps it might be too much to ask you but if you insert this letter somewhere in your pages, of if you can introduce me to some boys or girls, it would be more than appreciated.

Yours very truly,
TATSUKO HANAWA

P. S. Let me introduce myself and our organization here:

I am 16 years old and attend Tauchuera High School. I am a member of the above - mentioned orgainzation and it has tens of thousands of members all over Japan. Its purpose is to promote the exchange of good will and friendship of the youth throughout the world.

Bobby In 1968?

Attorney General Reportedly Would Like To Seek Presidency

Belief grows among Administration insiders that Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy is planning to leave the Cabinet, may do so as soon as he returns from his present around - the-world trip, or as soon thereafter as he can testify before the Congressional appropriations committee for funds to launch a crime - fighting program. John Seigenthaler, Attorney General's Administrative Aide and closest associate, will leave Department of Justice and go to Democratic National Committee, in what may be first step toward Kennedy's Cabinet exit. Sure-shot Kennedy successor: Byron R. (Whizzer) White, of Colorado, now Deputy Attorney General.

BOBBY IN 1968—There are some signs that Attorney General Kennedy, not Edward, the youngest Kennedy brother, will be the candidate for the Democratic nomination for the United States Senate from Massachusetts this year. One reason: Massachusetts politicians think Bobby would be a sure winner, Edward's success doubtful. Also, belief increases that Bobby is going after the Democratic Presidential nomination in 1968, wants to seek it on a record made independently for himself and not as a member of his brother's Cabinet.

CENSORSHIP DIFFICULTIES —Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara's reluctance to invoke the doctrine of executive privilege to avoid naming individual censorship went deeper than his fear that it would be misunderstood as something like taking the Fifth Amendment. Kennedy brothers, President and Attorney General, feared political effects, that it could lead to belief Administration if "soft on Communism." Moreover, both Kennedys have a record of having accused the Eisenhower Administration of hampering Senate investigations by misusing executive privilege and they did not want same tag fixed on Kennedy Administration.

ROCKEFELLER GAINING (?) —Some important Republicans think Governor Nelson A. Rockefeller is making definite gains as the possible 1964 Republican Presidential nominee, despite his marital troubles. Reaction to his fist ups speech at Republican fund raising dinner, in which he accused President Kennedy of "political fakery" on Urban Affairs Cabinet post, raised Rocky's political stock with conservative wing of the G. O. P.

TEXAS SQUABBLE — New York, California, Ohio and Michigan gubernatorial races had top billing until this week. Indications now are that the bitter Texas gubernatorial Donnybrook will have most of the spotlight. It could create a party division which might send a Republican Governor to Austin for the first time since Reconstruction Days. Administration policy intelligence reports and soundings went awry. They were that Governor Daniel would not come into the race, but no one claims any promises from Daniel not to run. Most Texas forecasts on the Democratic primary outcome are cautious, but some timid suggestions were that labor-backed Don Yarborough and Governor Daniel might be the two to qualify for the finals. There were other private guesses that Daniel and former Navy Secretary John B. Connally would face each other in the run-offs.

ANTI-FULBRIGHT DRIVE — Look for a renewed conservative drive in attempt to line up a primary opponent against Senator J. William Fulbright Arkansas, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Statement submitted to Senate committee investigating military "muzzling" by Lieut. Gen. Edward M. Almond, (Retired), who was McArthur's chief of staff in Japan, is counted on to aid the effort against Fulbright. Almond's declarations add up to a charge that pressure from Fulbright has halted all cold war seminars under military sponsorship since September 1, 1961. Conservative hope centers of Governor Oval E. Faubus as the Fullbright opponent. Deadline for filing as a candidate in Arkansas primary is May 2.

U. N. BOND ISSUES — Administration proposal for the United States to buy half the $200,000,000 in bonds to be offered by the United Nations hasn't been helped by the disclosure that other future issues are to be offered by the U. N. Members of Congress had believed it was merely a one time device to take the U. N. over after its heavy expenses in Congo. New revelation has lost some votes for the Administration proposal, although the chances still are heavily on the side of passage after extended debate.

FLORIDA PROBLEMS — President Kennedy considers his March 10 Miami speaking engagement one of the most important political forays he will make this year. Florida has gone Republican in the last three Presidential campaigns and Democratic prospects there have not brightened. Immediate fear of the Democrats are that G. O. P. candidates will carry at least two of the new Congressional seats gained by Florida as a result of growth shown by the 1960 census. Democrats think Florida is the Southern State most likely to develop into a two-party State, maybe most likely to become a permanent Republican State in Presidential elections.

GEORGE SOKOLSKY

Rightist Battle

Advantage Of Free Country Is That No One Need Be Silent

The advantage of a free country is that no one need be silent. When the Left Wing was moving public opinion back in the days of Franklin D. Roosevelt, there were so many splinter groups that neither Karl Marx nor Bakunin would have recognized any of them as socialistic.

Now there is a Rightist reaction and the same splintering excitement is making a fierce noise. What is wrong is that there are no definitions. A man calls himself a conservative and immediately he is in a wrangle, principally with other conservatives.

What, for instance, does a member of the John Birch Society stand for? Well, he is opposed to Marxism in any form; he wants to restore what he calls "Americanism," which leads to confusion because he does not quite mean Jeffersonian Democracy or the inherent equality of man as expressed in the Declaration of Independence, although he is not opposed altogether to either. He believes in the Constitution but not in the authority of the Supreme Court because he does not trust the Chief Justice, Earl Warren. He feels that the people should have freedom of choice, but not to vote for anyone named Kennedy. As one reads the material provided by Bob Welch, he reaches the conclusion that this is a sincere form of vigilantism.

Dr. Fred Schwarz is apparently a brilliant orator who can stir the emotions of great masses, but whereas the published works of Robert Welch indicate an inclination to study problems, what I have seen of Schwarz's effort indicates anger, excitement but no philosophic approach to anti-Marxism. It angers Dr. Schwarz's followers to question his intellectual prowess, they believing that he is the greatest living authority on the subject. Although Dr. Schwarz is a Baptist evangelist, reports from Australia indicate that he is of Jewish origin.

In the center stand many groups who may be said to follow the "National Review" and the philosophic concepts of Bill Buckley, Jr. The most notable expresssion of this group is YAF, a body of students who write, make speeches and are very active in their attack on Communism. Within YAF (Young Americans for Freedom), cliquism has manifested itself as it should, but it is likely that in time, several organizations will derive from this one.

Also in the center stand the ancients, the anti - Communists who have been battling Marxism since 1917 or more recently and who have long strategic and tactical experience in the fight. Many of them are former Communists and, on the whole, they have a clear perception of what the quarrel is about.

Shouting, yelling, booing, mass-meetings, the raising of enormous funds — these are not the means for saving the world from the terrorism of revolution: nor will counter - revolution change much in the circumstances of current armaments, nor will vigilantism serve any other purpose than to expose the Right to ridicule and contempt.

What is needed is to rebuild our economy so that the private enterprise system is restored to greater strength. Arresting the trend toward socialism will not be easy when we are forced to spend huge amounts of our national increment for war, but if we do not find a means to achieve that end, there can be no advantage in opposing Marxism.

We must recognize that the basis of our way of life lies in the first hundred or so words of the Declaration of Independence, which give to this nation a philosophy of life based upon Natural Law which must mean that all human beings are created by God equal in His sight. If the word, America, does not mean that, it means nothing. It is this sense of equality under the law that is growing increasingly offensive to some Americans who feel that there is peril for them in this idea.

They dare not face the moral and intellectual consequences of the word, created, which, once accepted, shatters Marxism. Those who call themselves conservatives, however, dare not abandon the thousands of years of history that have preceded us and have given to our period its particular character, which rightly is called the Judaic - Christian civilization, for it is based upon the hereditary lore of both Jews and Christians to which is given the word, "the Bible."

This then is the weapon for fighting Marxism — a weapon not of hate but of love.

HOLMES ALEXANDER

Peace Preached

Nobody Ever Achieved U.S. Presidency By War-Mongering

WASHINGTON, D.C. — It is easy to understand why politicians love peace. Nobody has ever achieved the presidency by war-mongering.

In 1812, Governor De Witt Clinton tried to get the milksop Madison out of there, but the country preferred a self - styled peace-lover as Chief Executive even in wartime. In 1816 Henry Clay, one of several "war hawks," tried to succeed Madison on the argument that the War of 1812 had been a big success, in that it satisfied American honor and helped to make a mature nation of us. As late as 1916 old Theodore Roosevelt was acting toward Wilson much the same as Clinton had toward Madison.

But early and late, politicians have preached peace, abhorred war, even when they knew it wasn't that simple, in order to please the public. Today, the formal position of the Kennedy Administration (regardless of what JFK may privately feel) is that peace is a must, war is obsolete.

It is charitable to excuse politicians who have a professional morality of their own, but a reporter is not paid to look for silver linings or to tranquilize the population. Evidence comes before me almost daily that would exactly reverse the political equations. It often seems that peace is not imperative, but war is. And that war is not obsolete, but peace is. Should I write it any other way?

Never mind for the moment the familiar cases of Cuba, Vietnam and Berlin. If all the situations were miraculously settled pacifically in our favor, the war on the main front between the West and World Communism would not pause. The trend would not waver one whit. Today I have an example on my desk — tomorrow will surely bring another one — of a business survey from Switzerland which describes in detail the Russian economic offensive against West Europe's petroleum supply.

It is an offensive which our side cannot successfully counter by peace, only by war. In 1960 the Soviet Union began a vast pipe - line system of almost 3,000 miles from the Volga River at Kuibyshev, far to the east of Moscow. The line extends to East Germany, Poland and the borders of Austria, on the very verge of West Europe.

By the end of next year, these pipe lines will be bringing 15 million tons of crude oil to the frontiers of NATO. Today Khrushchev is dickering to tie his pipe lines into the Western supply system at Vienna and Genoa. He is pushing for more port facilities in Finland and elsewhere in Scandinavia. In discussing the advantages of the Communist system over the capitalist system, Khrushchev recently applied his answer to petroleum marketing, saying:

"However far world market prices are lowered, we shall go still lower."

All this is happening while Europe is rapidly moving from coal to oil as a basic industrial fuel. It is happening while Europe is steadily increasing its dependence for oil upon the shaky Middle East and while France is in doubt about keeping the Sahara oil fields.

A WINTRY SMILE

Story On North Viet Nam Leader

By JOHN RODERICK

TOKYO (AP)—The news from South Viet Nam must bring a wintry smile to the leathery face of Ho Chi Minh, the cloak-and-dagger revolutionary who presides in Communist North Viet Nam.

The United States has sent about 4,000 soldiers, helicopters, specialists in antiguerrilla warfare and is helping South Viet Nam build an army up to 200,000 men to fight the estimated 20,000 guerrillas that Ho directs.

Eighteen years ago Ho was on the other side. As an Indochinese nationalist — his Communism carefully disguised—Ho led his partisans in warfare against the Japanese from hideouts in northern Indochina and accepted aid from America.

Before leading his partisans into Indochina with American approval, he worked as a translator in the U.S. office of War Information at Chungking, the Chinese wartime capital.

Ho—his name means "the enlightened" — has spent much of his lifetime dealing with Americans, the French and other Western statesmen—and often fooling them.

In 1919 he made his entry into world politics, urging the Versailles conference that wrote the World War I peace treaty to give Indochina freedom from France. Soon after that he joined the Communist party. Ho is believed to be about 70 years old.

Now he is one of the world's senior citizens of communism and has set his bright old eyes with fresh enthusiasm on his 43-year gola, the unification of Viet Nam, and probably Laos and Cambodia too, under Communist rule. These three areas made up the area long known as Indochina, and for many years was ruled by France.

The shadowy Communist leader, posing as patriot, quickly proclaimed a "democratic republic of Viet Nam" in Hanoi when the Japanese surrendered in 1945, but had to bide his time. In 1946 he launched his guerrilla war against the French.

"For every 10 of our men you kill, we will kill one of yours," he warned the French. "Eventually you will have to give way."

His prophecy came partly true in 1954 at the Geneva conference, which agreed to a temporary division of Viet Nam, with the northern part going to Ho's Vietminh. An all-Viet Nam election was supposed to be held later.

The next year he began his campaign for the rest of Viet Nam. Clinking glasses with Red China's Premier Chou En-lai, who charged the United States with plotting to prevent the unification of Viet Nam, Ho declared, "These plots gravely threaten peace."

Ho's hair and thin beard are streaked with white; the crow's feet around his eyes have deepened. Though he no longer fights beside his fanatic, dedicated guerrillas, he directs the battle for South Viet Nam through a younger man, Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, commander-in-chief, defense minister and victor at Dien Bien Phu, the battle that broke the French in the Indochina war in 1954.

As Ho did in the seven-year struggle against the French, Giap has borrowed heavily from China's Mao Tze-tung in directing the tactics of the Viet Cong guerrillas who murder, pillage, and terrorize South Viet Nam's peasants.

Ho controlled his anti-French underground from 1946 to 1954 through a pyramidal structure whose base was the village committee. Its top was his Vietminh party. The Viet Cong pyramid until recently had no peak in the south. Now Ho has supplied one, creating the Viet Nam People's Revolutionary party.

Across the border, Red China's Mao watches with satisfaction. A victory in South Viet Nam would be a blow to his most hated enemy, American "imperialism." And it would enlarge the power of his old friend, Ho, who came to his defense last year when Premier Khrushchev denounced little Albania — and by inference Red China—for being too Stalinist.

In December, a Chinese army mission headed by Marshal Yeh Chien-Ying, toured North Viet Nam, pointedly stopped off at Dien Bien Phu as a reminder of that earlier victory of the Vietminh, helped by the Chinese Communists.

To underline the point, Defense Minister Lin Piao said the Red Chinese army resolutely stands by to help in the "just struggle against U.S. imperialist intervention and aggression."

Lin Piao's warning may have touched off some echoes in Washington where men with long memories could recall that the United States poured two-billion dollars into the futile French war against Ho Chi Minh.

List Top Song In War-Weary Asian Nation

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—A sentimental soldier's song, currently close to the top of the Vietnamese hit parade, has touched off a wave of controversy.

The title translates as "A Rainy Evening near the Frontier."

Government objection apparently stems from the dreamy, homesick mood of some of its verses. They are held to be inconsistent with the need for aggressive, strongly anti-Communist feelings.

Psychological warfare teams providing entertainment for troops are forbidden to play the song, and South Viet Nam's military radio station has stopped broadcasting it. The civilian radio station, however, has proclaimed it the most popular song in South Viet Nam for 1961.

Lyrics are set in a military outpost in the Plain of Reeds near the Cambodian frontier. Part of the song's popularity may be due to the fact that several battles between government and Viet Cong forces have been fought in the Plain of Reeds during the past three months.

Sung to a beat with a strongly Western flavor, part of the song goes:

"When the sky is turning rose,
And the jungle path is emptied of shadows,
And you change into your warm clothes,
Remembering those in the far distance
And his heart is full of love,
But there are too many rains and winds in his way."

LOGAN DEFENDS U.S.

NEW YORK (AP)—Joshua Logan has a fast reply for anyone "who feels sad or embarrassed that musical comedy is this country's most importatnt contribution to the theater."

The writer-producer points out "the form goes all the way back to the ancient Greeks and to Shakespeare, who weren't ashamed to use music to enhance drama."

At the present time, Logan adds, "the American theater is the most experimentally alive theater in the world today."

Jones Moves From Jeans To Ermine

By RONALD THOMSON

LONDON (AP) — Antony Armstrong-Jones, once a member of the jeans and sweater brigade, will don ermine robes next Wednesday and swear an oath of allegiance to his sister-in-law.

In all his finery as the new Earl of Snowdon, the husband of Princess Margaret will formally assume his seat in the House of Lords that day.

This is the final step to establish him in Britain's upper crust. Unless he has lost his old, gay outlook on life, however, he will go through the centuries-old ritual with tongue in cheek. He will still be Tony, rather than Antony.

He is unlikely ever to make many appearances among his fellow peers.

The 700-year-old upper house of Parliament, an apparently indestructible institution, is something of a joke in Britain—often derided as a haven for politicians who have known better days.

Tradition is the watchword. One peer on taking his seat inquired why a mysterious piece of red ribbon was attached to his cloakroom hook.

"That, my lord," said a steward, "is to hang your sword on."

This is the kind of outdated procedure that Tony Armstrong-Jones and his Bohemian friends laughed over before he married into the royal family. Now he's caught up in it with a vengeance.

At approximately 3:45 p.m. on Wednesday he will be escorted into the oak-timbered chamber by two peers of the same degree—the Earls of Leicester and Westmorland.

Bars of ermine will be stitched to his rich, red robes, denoting his rank as the 135th living earl of the realm entitled to sit in the Lords.

He will pronounce this solemn oath before the assembled house: "I swear by Almighty God that I will be faithful and bear true allegiance to her majesty Queen Elizabeth, her heirs and successors according to law, so help me God."

That done, Snowdon will take his seat and then—probably within a half hour—leave the house after shaking hands with Lord Kilmuir, the lord chancellor.

He is entitled to make speeches but if he ever comes back, except for ceremonial occasions, it will surprise most Britons.

The former society photographer and man about town, 32 next month, won't get a salary. Members receive an expense allowance of 3 guineas ($8.82) a day when they bother to drop by for debates.

The earl won't feel the lack of such pin money—he is earning perhaps $28,000 a year as artistic adviser to the London Sunday Times. Some of his camera work has appeared there with the credit line "pictures by Lord Snowdon."

A general term for all peers, dukes, viscounts, earls, etc., is "lord."

The earldom was conferred on him by Queen Elizabeth last October when Princess Margaret was expecting her first child.

He long resisted being ennobled, friends assert, but was finally persuaded it just wouldn't do for a princess' offspring to be born a commoner, especially with a surname like Jones.

Prince Philip, the queen's husband, has never returned to the House of Lords as an individual member since he was formally introduced as a duke in 1947.

The House of Lords includes judges, archbishops, land owners, field marshals and retired public men. Various acts of Parliament have trimmed its onetime authority. There are signs, however, that the House of Lords has plenty of life left. A government committee is studying ways of reforming it into a more useful and effective chamber.

The recent introduction of "life" peers — titles die with them instead of passing on to sons—has injected new blood into old veins.

Many members take pride in the fact that lady life peers, several with controversial views and sharp tongues, have become a fixture in what used to be an all-male sanctuary.

BRITISH GUIANA

Clouds Of Hate Cover Big Issue

By RICHARD G. MASSOCK

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP) — A heritage of hate clouds the future of British Guiana.

Premier Chaddi Jagan has survived an attempt to overthrow him but racial animosity has deepened in the wake of the fire riots that swept part of Georgetown.

On one side are Asian Indians and their descendants.

On the other side are descendants of slaves who came from Africa in the 18th Century.

These two groups make up most of the population.

After the abolition of slavery in 1833, Indians and Portuguese were brought in as laborers. The Indians, with a higher birth rate, became the majority people. Jagan is their political leader.

The Dutch first settled this area on the north coast of South America. The British took over in 1814. They have been moving toward granting full independence, possibly this year, but now that seems farther in the future.

British Guiana, the size of Kansas, grows sugar and rice and produces aluminum ore. The per capita income is about $232 (1960).

Jagan, an admirer of Marx and Castro, came a cropper this month when he introduced an unpopular financing scheme.

That set off a general strike. This might have forced him out of office if wild mobs had not burned and looted the business heart of Georgetown. That gave Jagan a reason to call in British troops to restore order.

Jagan promised labor leaders to modify his budget and they called off the strike.

Negroes, led by Forbes Burnham, and Europeans headed by Portuguese-descended Peter Daguiar indicate they are only waiting for another chance to topple Jagan.

The political opposition to Jagan is based partly on anti-communism and partly on the ambitions of rival leaders. His enemies charge he would make a "red hell" of British Guiana if it gained independence under his rule. He insists his plans are simply socialistic.

The People's Progressive party, which Jagan has led to victory at the polls since 1953, is largely made up of East Indians on the sugar estates and rice paddies of the interior. The Africans in Burnham's party predominate to such an extent in Georgetown that Jagan's party did not put up candidates here in last August's election.

It was a hostile Georgetown which tried to force Jagan to resign under pressure of a general strike.

Jagan had proposed to cover a deficit and raise $13 million for economic development through increased import duties, lower income tax exemptions and a compulsory savings scheme under which the people would have to invest 5 per cent of income in government bonds.

Jagan's critics argued against import duties as an indirect consumer's tax, and said the lowering of income tax exemption to $600 a year would make even the common laborer with a minimum wage of $3 a day pay taxes.

But underlying all this was racial rivalry. When shots were fired and tear gas used on demonstrators, mainly Negroes, outside Jagan's headquarters, mobs vented their anger on the business houses of Indian merchants.

Now the Negroes feel that only the presence of British troops is preventing Indian reprisals.

One of their leaders says: "The country now is divided as never before. Portuguese Africans and Chinese will never accept complete rule under Jagan. If independence comes while he is in office, all Georgetown will burn."

Daguiar, a rightist, and Burnham, an avowed non-Communist leftist, attribute the violence to Jagan's own party and its Progressive Youth Organization patterned on the Young Communist League—of which Jagan's Chicago-born wife was a member.

"Jagan called on the armed might of the United Kingdom to protect a Communist revolution," said Daguiar. "We lost a round in the battle."

"Jagan brought troops to intimidate us," declared Burnham.

Jagan indicated he planned to keep British troops here indefinitely to maintain order. He repeated an old charge that "funds have been coming from the United States — not necessarily from the government — to help Daguiar."

He has pending a request for $100 million in official U.S. aid.

Without Cuban purchases of rice, paid for by letters of credit, British Guiana would have suffered serious depression, Jagan said.

The premier said he plans to get "people of good will, predominantly non-Indians," to appeal against racial prejudice in an effort to heal the hostility between East Indians and Africans.

"It is not I who has made the split," Jagan said, "I have made all kinds of attempts in the past to heal this breach."

Middle-Of-Road Now Italy's Path

The country's ruling Christian Democrat party chose this path in the hope of solving the nation's problems.

The Roman Catholic Church, Italy's state religion, shows signs of concern. Italy's Western allies are watching, though they have been assured of continued loyalty to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

For the Christian Democrats and Premier Amintore Fanfani, it is a calculated risk.

For Pietro Nenni, the grizzled Socialist leader, it is a victory. His political career has involved him in the rise and fall of fascism, Spain's Civil War and Italian communism's bid for power. Now he and his Socialist party will have the strongest position they ever held in Italy.

The new government will depend upon Nenni's Socialist votes for leverage to put across a broad program of social and economic reform. The Socialists have 88 seats in the Chamber of Deputies, where the Christian Democrats' 271 seats are 27 short of a majority.

Fanfani, who has long sought the turn to the left, speaks of a five-year program that includes nationalization of nuclear and electric power.

The Fanfani platform also provides for expansion and improvement of the school system—attendance is compulsory only through the fifth grade—and for tightening up the tax structure—many big money-makers now submit low returns that enrage the little man whose taxes are deducted from his pay.

Social reforms in some ways have not kept pace with the post-war boom that has given Italy the highest standard of living in its history. The boom has emphasized the spread between the prosperous and the poor.

Nothing has shown this more dramatically than an internal migration—to the north from the impoverished south. This has simply aggravated the south's problems an dadded to the north's.

Fanfani's program aims at meeting the challenge of an age in which a 10-acre farm cannot provide the desired automobile and television set.

For such a program, Nenni has pledged his support: "We plan to throw our support behind a government based on a broadly democratic program, seeking to bolster social reforms and open a new trend in the countr."

Some are asking: "What's in it for Nenni?"

Actually, a great deal. He and his party will be able to claim credit in such a program. That will almost certainly be reflected in next year's general elections.

About all that Nenni stands to lose are the chains that bound his party to the Italian Communists in an old pact for united political action. Nenni says this is a thing of the past. Not everybody is entirely convinced.

Pope John XXIII has pleaded for social reforms and a more even distribution of wealth. It is no secret that the church would prefer to see this accomplished without Socialist cooperation.

The Vatican's L'Osservatore Romano and Il Quotidiano, organ of Italian Roman Catholic action, both have said: "No one can be a good Catholic and at the same time a true Socialist."

Architect Advocates Universality

ANONYMOUS (20th CENtury). By Leonardo Ricci. Braziller. $5.

This book is a product of a yeasty mind. Some of the vaporous results of Ricci's mental brew may seem a little irrational, but they seldom fail to be stimulating.

Primarily, the author is an architect. He also is a painter. Fortunately, he is the sort of creative artist who is compelled to ask himself, and the world, a lot of questions about what architecture and painting can do for the human spirit.

It would be hard to quarrel with his thesis that mankind presently is in a state of transition. He assumes, and no doubt rightly so, that we have had to scrap traditional concepts and seek others.

He is the sort of artist who tries to understand people before he can design places for them to live and work. He has some scalding things to say about town planning, and about the "new" architecture of such modern pioneers as Wright, van de Rohe and Le Corbusier.

His central thesis seems to be that personality, and genius, are dangerous things because they betray the artist into impressing his own spirit into his works, which according to Ricci would be much better if they had the universality of the anonymous artist. Ricci himself is a highly opinionated man, but he professes to distruct opinions and personality, preferring to believe that somewhere in this century we shall achieve a state in which the artist creates living reality in much the same way that an anonymous Egyptian created a sculpture thousands of years before Christ.

It may be that Ricci is politically naive, with little understanding of social man, about whom he is so concerned. It also seems that he is a left-field idealist in presuming that a creative artist can blend himself so thoroughly with social man that he loses his own specific identity.

This Book On People Is Good

THE DARK LABRYNTH. By Lawrence Durrell. Dutton. $3.95.

This book was written in 1945 by the man who later became well known for his "Alexandria Quartet."

Durrell has a great skill as a writer, and a searching imagination for the things that show how people tick.

And he has brought together here an enticing assortment of characters — among them a painter, a medium, an adventurer, and English lord who writes poetry and an archeologist. As it happens, several of these characters have been patients of an unusual London psychiatrist named Hogarth.

The plot uses two fruitful devices. One is to have most of his characters turn up on a cruise ship, thrown together. The other is to have them stop at Crete and explore a labrynth which rises upward to a lofty and inaccessible cliff. When an earth slide occurs in the labrynth, these assorted characters meet equally assorted fates.

One couple stumbles into a world that somewhat resembles a Shangri-La, and in this respect the novel is typical of the human quest for release which arose at the end of the war. Durrell carries off this idyllic scene pretty well, and without insulting the reader's intelligence.

Some of his wit and philosophy are keyed to the fact that several of his characters are trying to reconcile themselves to life and death — the painter is trying in the midst of his creative urge to find his own direction; the medium has lost his grip on the other world; the lord has been faced with a medical prognosis of imminent death.

GUIDE TO GOOD READING

Array Of Books Now In Library

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

An amazing array of interesting books have been added to the collection of the Ouachita Parish Public Library this past week. Probably the outstanding title in the field of fiction is "Bull from the Sea" by Mary Renault. This book is based on an old Greek legend. It is carefully researched and beautifully written. It is a book for the serious reader and will find an interested audience. "The Peacemakers" is the title of the new book by Marquis Childs. This is an exciting story of international politics and diplomacy. Action is confined to a 24 hour period of a big four conference at Geneva. The author, a special correspondent of the St. Louis Post Dispatch portrays with keen insight, understanding and appreciation the personalities of the principals, their staffs and their families. "Monmouth" is the title of a new novel by Charles Bracelin Flood. It portrays the events of the winter of 1777 which Washington spent at Valley Forge and the Battle of Monmouth. Carefully researched background and skillful combination of historical and fictional characters have combined to make a most satisfying historical narrative. "The Tiber was Silver" is the title of a modern novel by Michael Novak. It has it's setting in Rome and will appeal to all who love that City. For readers of westerns there is one new title "Gopher Gold" by Todhunter Ballard. Mystery enthusiasts have two new books this week. One is "County Kill" by William Gault and the other is "Pay-Off in Blood" by Bret Halliday.

Non - fiction offerings will appeal to many different readers. "Hidden Channels of the Mind" by Louisa E. Rhine is a new book in the field of extra - sensory preception, a subject in which may people are interested. "Color Psychology and Color Therapy" by Faber Birren deals with the use of color in psychology.

"Parents Without Partners" by James and Janet Egleson is an excellent guide for divorced, widowed or separated parents. "Growing Old, the Process of Disengagement" is an excellent study of the process of aging by Elaine and Henry Cumming. This is a book that everyone who deals with old people should read. "Soviet Economic Power" by Robert W. Campbell gives a good picture of conditions in present day Russia. Reginald Parker is the author of "Guide to Labor Law; Basic Facts, Questions and Answers and Pertinent Statues." "Democracy Versus Communism" by Kenneth Colegrove is a title which should be widely used, for many people are searching for concrete information in this area. "Handbook for Independent School Operation" is a most timely book written by William Johnson. If you are a young man looking for an interesting career, you might read "Careers in World Affairs; at Home and Abroad" published by the Foreign Policy Association. A very interesting addition to the field of literature in the history of education is "The Medieval University" by Lowrie J. Daly. A perfectly beautiful book is "Mr. Pullman's Elegant Palace Car" by Lucios Beebe. This is a book which shows the luxury of the great days of railroads. Everyone who took his early trips by train, will want to see this book.

An interesting new book in the field of anthropology is "It Began in Babel" by Herbert Wendt. Similar to it is "The Abominable Snowman" by Ivan Sanderson. This is the story of sub - humans on five continents from the ice age until today. There are four new titles in the field of health and medicine. "Strong Medicine" is the name of a book by Blake Donaldson, which deals with modern miracle drugs "Countdown" by Victor Lindlahr offers another easy way to reduce "Minds That Came Back" by Walter C. Alvarez is an account of recoveries from mental disorders. "Road to Modern Surgery" by Hugo Glaser is an excellent account of the development of this science.

"Straight Up" by Richard Hubler is an interesting new book in the field of aeronautics. "Mexico Through My Kitchen Window" by Naria De Carbia is a very interesting book on Mexican cookery. The author was assisted in the preparation of this book by Helen Corbett of Nieman Marcus fame. Another good cookbook is the one edited by Sigrid Schultz called "The Overseas Press Club Cookbook." A book in the field of child care which should be eagerly received is "Your Preschool Child or Making the Most of the Years from Two to Seven" by Dorothy Kirk Burnett. Two lovely new books in the field of beautiful objects were edited by Leonard Ramsey. They are "The Connoisseur New Guide to Antique English pottery, porcelain and glass" and The Connoisseur New Guide to Antique English Furniture." Both of these books may be borrowed

RUNNING THE SCALES

'Birdie' Sets Off Chain Reaction

By JOHN CALE

Playgoers turned out in festive mood for Thursday night's opening of "Bye Bye Birdie." The presentation as well as the mood was well merited. Theatre in Monroe has gone a long way in a short time both in the quality of productions and material facilities, not the least of which is the new Strauss Playhouse.

Co - producer of the New York production of "Birdie," L. Slade Brown and Mrs. Brown, former Monroyans came to town to give the local effort a grand send-off. Brown, interested in a wide range of musical pursuits from organ playing to singing, appeared here in Little Theatre musicals "The Boy Friends" and "Pajama Game" several seasons back.

So with the musical comedy season in full swing, "The Music Man" will pick up the ball for a one - nighter on the Northeast Concerts series Wednesday March 7. This is a traveling company of the Meredith Wilson Broadway hit.

The new date for Schiller's "Mary Stuart" on the Louisiana Tech series has been set for Friday, March 16, at 2:15 and 8 p.m. Faye Emerson, who stars in the drama of Mary, Queen of Scots, is a native of Louisiana born in Elizabeth.

Also, just received from the Tech association headquarters is the announcement that "I Musici," an Italian chamber music group, will appear on the series there Friday, March 9, as a bonus attraction in addition to those already listed.

This doesn't create a conflict, but look at this line-up for next week:

Wednesday, March 7, "The Music Man," at Neville Auditorium on the Northeast Concerts series; Thursday, March 8, "Madame Butterfly," opera on film at the Paramount Theatre in Monroe; Friday, March 9, the "I Musici" chamber music group at Louisiana Tech.

Nor does that whirlwind of activity for next week leave the next few days high and dry. "Birdie" will run through Thursday at Strauss Playhouse with not one but two performances on the schedule for today.

Also the Southwestern University Choir will present a choral and instrumental concert tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall of the First Presbyterian Church.

SYMPHONIC

The Monroe Youth Symphony, now boasting a set of woodwinds to augment its former status as an all - string group, has slated a telecast this afternoon, according to its director, Roger Di Giulian. The presentation will be at 12:45 p.m. on KNOE-TV.

In the field of symphonic music, it would be fitting at this time to pay tribute to one of the giants in that cultural sphere —Bruno Walter — who died last week at the age of 85.

Walter, who certainly merited the status, did not wish to be called a "genius" because he said the term implied too much responsibility. Yet as a symphonic conductor, he took the responsibility of bringing to life the music of such masters as Beethoven, Mozart, Brahms and Mahler in his stride.

Such was his standing among musicians until he was one of the first persons German music devotees inquired about following World War II even though the Hitler government had driven him from that country in 1939.

He became an American citizen and continued his practice of letting the music — rather than his own tricks with the baton—outshine him. He was a perfectionist, not a showman.

This generation is fortunate that Bruno Walter's art of orchestral interpretation in preserved on recordings of the highest quality for future study and enjoyment. His pursuit of perfection set the highest of standards for arts and crafts in any field.

Exhibitors, Animals Jam Town For Four-Day Event

DELHI (Special)—This Northeast Louisiana town will be "The Livestock Capital" Monday through Thursday as it unfurls the 22nd annual performance of the Northeast Louisiana Livestock, largest district show in the state.

With a weather eye peeled, show officials are hoping that the crowds will be as large as last year. This would go a long way toward making the exposition a success, although it is operating for the second consecutive year without state aid.

All the other ingredients were assured. Earlier this week, 10 exhibitors with 100 head of livestock had entered in the adult division and by the time the show was ready to get underway, it was expected to reach much higher.

The junior division, although it was expected to show a decrease in number of cattle, was showing an increase in Angus and Hereford breeds. Swine entries were expected to be about the same as last year.

In the horse show division, it seemed there just wouldn't be enough stall space to hold all the prospective entries.

Although there were no state funds on which to operate, some premiums were higher than last year. Mix these items with good weather, show officials believed, and they could have their cake and eat it too.

The seventh annual Miss Stock Show beauty pageant last night started festivities off in high spirits, and the tempo was expected to increase during the week, ending with the livestock sale Thursday.

A parade at 2 p.m. Monday was scheduled to bring in the governor of the state and other high officials.

Delhi, located 40 miles east of Monroe on U. S. Highway 80, is saying "Welcome" this week.

"To all our exhibitors, and to the thousands of cattle people who will attend the 1962 exposition, we extend a sincere welcome to the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show," were the greetings tendered by E. W. Sehon, president of the show.

Small Couple Weds At Church

STUDIO CITY, Calif. (AP) — Billy Barty, 3-foot 11-inch character actor, and Shirley Bolingbroke, who is four inches taller, were married Saturday at the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter-day Saints here.

Barty, 37, met Miss Bolingbroke at a convention of the Little People of America, in Las Vegas in 1960. Both were officers in the organization, which stipulates that members be no more than 4 feet 10 inches tall.

Miss Bolingbroke, 23, a commercial artist, attended school in Malad, Idaho. Barty plays "Baby" on the Peter Gunn television series.

Special Award Being Offered To Youngsters

DELHI (Special) — In addition to show premiums being offered at the livestock show at Delhi Monday through Thursday, the Northeast Louisiana Power Cooperatives will offer a special award.

The organization has a page inserted in the catalog and premium list describing the award.

It says, "A prize of $15 to the most deserving 4-H Club member and $15 to the most deserving FFA member in each of the parishes in which the cooperative operates" is being offered.

"These parishes are Morehouse, East Carroll, West Carroll, Tensas, Madison, Richland and Franklin.

"It was recommended by the board of directors that this money be offered for any of the activities the club members participate in and that the county agents select the 4-H club winners in their respective parishes.

Award presentations will be made Thursday.

Senator Urges Exchange Visit Of Astronauts

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Clifford P. Case, R-N.J., suggested Saturday an exchange visit of American astronauts and Soviet cosmonauts as one way to reduce East-West tensions.

This would be a first step toward cooperation between the two countries in space sciences, said Case, a member of the Senate Space Committee.

"An exchange program of this kind would demonstrate that no country has a monopoly on courage and scientific capability," he said in a statement.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev suggested after the successful orbital flight earlier this week of Col. John H. Glenn Jr. that the Soviet Union and the United States cooperate in space exploration.

President Kennedy, Case said, should consider this suggestion seriously. "If we are ever going to make headway in the race for survival, it is most likely to come in areas such as this," the senator added.

The exchange visit he suggests would involve not only Glenn but also astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Virgil I. Grissom who made this country's first two suborbital space flights.

The Russians, in turn, would send Yuri Gagarin and Gherman Titov to the United States for a similar goodwill visit.

DELHI (Special) — Here is a day by day account of last year's Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show at Delhi:

SATURDAY, FEB. 25—The elements cast a favorable vote with balmy sunshine and a warm spring day as thousands thronged the streets to view opening events of the 21st annual Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show.

Leading the parade were 16 lovely Miss Stock Show entrants, followed by floats from commercial, civic and school organizations, bands, riding clubs, and the Northeast Louisiana State College ROTC drill units.

Winners in the various parade classificiations were:

School float group, first, Andrews 4-H Club; 2nd., Monticello 4-H; third, Delhi Elementary School; fourth, Delhi Kindergarten; fifth, Andrews FFA sixth, Holly Ridge 4-H.

Commercial division, first, Mulhearn Flower Shop, Delhi; 2nd, Big Creek Kennels, Epps; third, Hammett Furniture, Delhi.

Riding clubs, first, Vicksburg Riding Club; second, West Monroe Riding Club; third, Franklin Parish Riding Club.

Band Division, Class A, Ouachita Parish High School, first; Class B, Winnsboro first; Oak Grove second; Rayville, third. Class C, Holly Ridge, first.

MONDAY, FEB 27 — Forty-six 4-H and Future Farmers of America livestock judging teams, including 138 area youths, competed in the first day of the 21st annual Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show with the Newellton High School FFA chapter taking top team honors.

The winning team scored 777 points out of a possible 900, followed by the Sicily Island FFA Chapter's score of 744, the Winnsboro FFA team's 735 and the Bastrop 4-H team's 720.

Top individual judging honors went to Bruce Craven of the Bastrop 4-H team, which was first place winner last year. Craven made a perfect score of 300, highest possible for individual judging.

TUESDAY, FEB 28 — The family of Lowery Russell, Winnsboro postman, swept livestock honors in the junior division judging, with a total of five championships and three first places won.

His young daughter, Shonnye, capped honors as first in showmanship and her Guernsey was Reserve Champion of her breed; brother Larry won first in showmanship with his two-year-old stallion, which took first place in his class; and four other Guernsey heifers and calves walked off with championships in their classes, then the heifer won Grand Championship of the beef breeding group.

Benny Burnside of Newellton won the reserve Angus steer championship and led the Angus on to win the reserve championship of all steers in the show. He also won first place with his Angus calf, in class.

WEDNESDAY, March 1 — The 2,800-pound Santa Gertrudis bull "Apache", owned by Hi He Kah Ranch in Arizona walked off with top prize as best of Santa Gertrudis males.

Besides this breed, adult Hereford, Shorthorns and Aberdeen Angus were judged in the show arena, followed by halter judging of horses.

More than 100 horses were entered in the two nights of showing.

Hereford female, Jack R. Malone, Meridian, Miss., with "JRM Silver Heiress 13"; reserve champion female, McLain, McHaney and Haggard of Missouri.

Mississippi State University took grand championship of the Shorthorn bulls with "Kickapoo Highland Chief" and the grand championship of the female Shorthorns with "MSU Collynie III."

THURSDAY, MARCH 2 — Dollar-a-pound pork, 70-cent lamb and 60-cent beef were the order of the day as the auctioneer shouted "sold!" in the sales arena, ringing down the curtain on what E. W. Sehon and other show officials termed one of the most successful showings in history at Delhi.

Alwood's yearling steer, weighing 890 pounds, had already won a purple (first place) ribbon in the show, and was previously named top hereford in the show.

A dollar for each of the 230 pounds of the show's grand champion market barrow, owned by Archie Pippin of Winnsboro and member of the Franklin Parish 4-H, was bid by Barthel Packing Co. of Rayville.

The Hampshire barrow, six months old, had already won the purple ribbon.

Horse Show Pushes Late Into Night

DELHI (Special) — One segment of the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show at Delhi usually runs late into the night and sometimes into the early morning hours.

It is the horse show, which last year ran as late as 1 a.m., and which may run even later this year.

But, according to show officials, as long as the performance is on, there will be a full house watching.

The quarter horse show is approved by the American Quarter Horse Association and is open to world-wide competition.

According to John H. Parks superintendent of the show, a total of 135 entries had been received the latter part of the week, and difficulty was seen in securing stall space for the animals.

Judging will be held in the halter classes 1 p.m. Thursday while judging for performance classes will be held 7:30 p.m. Wednesday and Thursday.

The entries come from eight states, Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, Alabama, Virginia, Mississippi and Louisiana.

According to Parks an attraction will be the appearance of the grand championship stallion from the San Antonio Livestock Show.

Parks said this year's show will feature "the biggest and best quality horses we've ever had."

Some of the horses are worth $20,000 each, according to show officials.

Fire At Barn On Grounds Of Show Recalled

DELHI (Special) — The Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show has not been without its catastrophe.

A huge metal barn, filled with cotton, went up in flames back in 1953, show officials recalled.

The cotton had been placed in the open near the barn by farmers and it was decided to place the cotton inside the barn, to afford protection from the weather.

The fire, using the cotton as fuel, was a spectacular display of destruction, it was recalled.

The barn has since been replaced by a new building. The fire did not occur at the time of a livestock exposition.

Former Senator Dies At Age 66

NORWICH, N. Y., (UPI) — Irving M. Ives, who introduced several measures to wipe out racial and religious discrimination during 12 years as a U. S. Senator from New York, died Saturday at the age of 66.

Ives, a Republican, served 16 years in the State Assembly before being elected to the Senate in 1946. The only election defeat of his career came in 1954 when he unsuccessfully opposed Averell Harriman for governor of New York.

After that defeat, he never again ran for office.

The retired lawmaker entered Chenango Memorial Hospital here last Monday for treatment of a stomach ailment. He had been in poor health in recent years and left the Senate in 1958, at the end of his term.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller issued a statement in Albany praising Ives as a leader who "made his influence felt importantly in writing the nation's laws."

Exiles Say Castro Guarded By Reds

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Exile leaders maintaining contact with Cuban underground sources believe they have the answer to a question currently on many lips —where is Fidel Castro?

"Castro is in Cuba, but closely guarded by Communists," said a Cuban Revolutionary Council source Saturday.

Another group, which declined use of its name, said its "intelligence agents" in Cuba reported that Castro is at a country estate near the Havana airport.

"A Communist party guard has been added to his own guard, and follows him everywhere," a spokesman for the group said.

He said families in the immediate vicinity of the estate, called "Mulgoba"—the name for a species of mango—have been ordered to move.

Castro has been out of the public eye for two weeks.

As a result, Miami's large Cuban colony, never short on "bolas," the Cuban term for rumors, has been having a field day.

The most persistent report has been that Castro took refuge in some embassy in Havana.

But a spokesman for the Cuban Revolutionary Council, principal anti-Castro organization in exile, pointed out that the embassies are filled with persons trying to escape Castro. His first president, Manuel Urrutia, is in asylum in the Mexican Embassy.

"How would Fidel fit into such company?" the spokesman asked.

Other rumors, largely discredited, are that Castro has gone to Moscow or has been killed.

The feeling is general among exile leaders that Castro's authority has been superseded by tha tof Communist officials. Also that such a step-down is not relished by Castro. A diplomatic source reported that Castro has taken to drinking rum excessively.

PLANS VISIT TO U. S.

Jimmie Davis and his horse "Sunshine" at the lead.

N.O. Begins Parades For Mardi Gras

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Two parades started the 1962 Carnival season Saturday as New Orleanians began their annual 10-day pre-Mardi Gras blow-off.

Three more parades were scheduled Sunday with night parades due to begin Monday.

The big day, Mardi Gras, a week from Tuesday, will see seven parades with half a million persons crowding the streets to celebrate before the onset of the 40-day Lenten season.

The Krewe of Choctaw, with a theme built around the legendary pirate Jean Lafitte, paraded Saturday on the Mississippi River's West Bank in the city's Algiers section.

The Krewe of Helois, meanwhile, cavorted through the streets of suburban Metairie in neighboring Jefferson Parish with a toyland theme.

On Sunday, the Krewe of Carrollton and the Krewe of Okeanos will parade in the city proper, while the Krewe of Alla marches on the west bank.

The New Orleans Tourist Commission has reported a record number of inquiries from prospective Mardi Gras visitors. Most hotels were expected to be filled by the weekend.

The various Krewes were hopeful that the mild, spring weather, which New Orleans had enjoyed since January's record-breaking cold spell, will continue. The weather bureau seemed cooperative and said despite cool nights a continuation of mild weather was the prospect.

Molotov Loses Red Party Ties

MOSCOW (UPI)—Former Foreign Minister Vyacheslav M. Molotov was reported Saturday to have been finally expelled from the Soviet Communist party as a leader of the Stalinist "anti-party" line.

The old bolshevik, believed still living quietly in his Moscow apartment, almost certainly will not return to his job in Vienna now.

He was recalled last November from his post as permanent Soviet representative to the Atoms-for-Peace International Atomic Energy Agency there.

The reports of his dismissal from the party were not verifiable officially. But they were con-

Show President Points To Stock's Importance

DELHI (Special) — According to E. W. Sehow, president of the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show, Inc., "For the past several years, livestock has played an important part in the agricultural economy of Louisiana.

"This year, as in the past, the livestock inustry has showed marked improvement over previous years, and it becomes more apparent to all that livestock will continue to improve in the state, not only in numbers, but in quality.

"In the face of crop failures affecting other parts of the state agriculture economy, it is doubly important that shows such as this one continue operation.

"Although this is the second year that the Northeast show will be operating without the benefit of any state funds, the directors of the show have actually increased some of the premiums offered, rather than cutting any."

Davis Reports Plans Definite On Delhi Show

DELHI (Special) — Gov. Jimmie H. Davis will definitely appear at the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show here.

Sehon, a former legislator and a friend of the governor, said he called Baton Rouge the latter part of last week to make sure that Davis could arrange his scheduled to appear in the show.

Davis assured him that he would be here. "Sunshine" will arrive Monday morning, ahead of Davis, who is scheduled to arrive by airplane later in the day.

If weather permits, Davis will land at Delhi. If not, his plane will touch down at Monroe, he will go by car the remaining 40 miles to the livestock exposition.

Other officials scheduled to appear are Commissioner of Agriculture Dave Pearce, Superintendent of Schools Shelby M. Jackson and Comptroller Roy Theriot.

Reward Offered For Data About Missing Texan

HOUSTON, Tex. (UPI) — A $1,000 reward has been offered for definite information about what happened to a Memphis, businessman who was one of three persons lost a month ago in a private plane flight from La-Fayette, La., to Houston.

The reward was offered by the wife of R. R. Ruyl of Memphis, who was a passenger aboard a Cessna 180 that was piloted by Murray Rogers, vice president of Continental Midwest Trailways.

The third passenger was Mrs. Jean Lowe, a Houston businesswoman.

The three disappeared on Jan. 3 after they had taken off at 8 p.m. from the Lafayette airport. An extnseive search between here and Lafayette failed to turn up any trace of the missing persons or their plane.

Records Show Sheriffs Lax On Regulation

JACKSON, Miss. (UPI) — Records reveal that 70 of Mississippi's 82 sheriffs failed to comply with a regulation that they report their annual incomes to the Secretary of State's office.

The subject of sheriff's salaries was raised last week by Sen. W. B. Alexander Jr. of Cleveland, who introduced a bill separating the offices of sheriff and tax collector and putting both on a salary basis. Presently sheriffs get a percentage of the taxes they collect and Alexander complained that many make more than the governor.

Four of the 12 who reported their 1961 incomes said they received more than the governor's $25,000 salary last year.

Net incomes reported were: Warren County $35,990, Washington $30,699, Coahoma $29,876, Sunflower $25,234, Monroe $20,886, Attala $16,546, Jefferson Davis $15,966, Pearl River $11,858, Wilkinson $8,995, Benton $8,905, Tunica $7,723, and Webster $7,319.

Senators Wait For CIA Data On Powers Quiz

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some of the mystery surrounding U2 pilot Francis Gary Powers may be cleared up for senators next week.

Sen. Richard B. Russell, D-Ga., told a reporter he expects a complete and detailed report within the next few days from Director John A. McCone of the Central Intelligence Agency on the secret questioning of Powers.

Russell said the Senate Armed Services Committee which he heads may decide Thursday whether Powers should be called to testify after it receives the report on him at a closed session.

Several senators, including Stuart Symington, D-Mo., a member of Russell's committee, have urged that the spy pilot be questioned, possibly in public.

Powers' high-flying intelligence plane was downed in the Soviet Union in May 1960. He was sentenced to 10 years in prison, but was exchanged Feb. 10 for Soviet spy Rudolf Abel.

Expect Big Crowd For Grand Parade

DELHI (Special) — Again this year, thousands are expected to line the streets of this Northeast Louisiana town to view the grand parade of the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show, Inc.

Numerous bands, riding clubs, and floats are entered. Prize money totaling $420 is being offered in various competing divisions.

The parade gets underway on the first day of the exposition, Monday, at 2 p.m., and will feature Gov. Jimmie H. Davis, on his horse "Sunshine" in the lead.

School bands entered include Winnsboro, Crowville, Columbia, Bastrop, Holly Ridge, Ouachita Parish Junior High, two Delhi bands, Thomas Jefferson Junior High of Monroe, Tallulah, Neville High of Monroe and Rayville.

Riding clubs in the parade will be Sterlington, Franklin Parish, Vicksburg, West Monroe, and possibly Natchez.

The Northeast Louisiana State College ROTC Pershing Rifles will stage a 15 - minute performance before the parade begins.

Also entered in the parade will be eight floats, several commercial exhibits, junior twirlers and cub scouts.

4 Die As House Trailer Burns

NORTON, Va. (AP)—A mother and her three children died Saturday in a fire that destroyed their house trailer.

The victims, who apparently suffocated, were identified as Phyllis Tomblin, 28, her daughters, Lauran Carol, 5, and Shirlam, 18 months; and a son, Stephen, 3.

Firemen said the fire apparently originated in an oil furnace. The mother's body was found in the living room, and those of her children in a bedroom. The interior of the trailer was heavily damaged.

Weather Looms As Big Factor At Stock Show

DELHI (Special) The weather will be of extreme importance when the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show is held here Monday through Thursday.

In fact, according to show president E. H. Sehon, it could mean the difference between operating in the black or the red.

Sehon pointed out that the show is operating without the benefit of state aid for the second year in a row this year.

Last year, the show was blessed with good weather, and the crowds were large, he recalled. If the weather is good this week, it will mean more large crowds, Sehon hopes.

And if there is a good gate, it will be a huge step in the direction of self - support for the show. Prior to last year, state aid was utilized to help support the show.

But funds were subsequently cut off, and the show has had to go it on its own.

The weather is the key. In 1960, while state support was still being advanced to the exposition, the weather was bad — wintertime weather.

"If it were possible, we would rather operate on an independent basis," Sehon says. But he isn't sure if this is possible. If the show cannot make a go of it without help, Sehon thinks that the state will eventually come through with help once more.

It is an intricate set of events that will determine whether or not the state will be the force that will keep the show going at its present pace.

And looming as the largest factor of all is man's oldest aid and enemy — the weather.

Cite Beginning Of Delhi Event

DELHI (Special) — How did it start, this livestock show which annually causes such a stir among stockmen and residents of Northeast Louisiana?

An interview with E. W. Sehon, president of the Northeast Louisiana Livestock Show, Inc., and secretary-treasurer Harry Callaghan brought the answer.

The livestock show at Delhi, which will put on its 22nd annual performance beginning, Monday, was started as a project of the Delhi Lions Club, they said.

Among its more active founders back in 1941 were former Delhi mayor W. H. Farmer, C. C. Cutler and W. P. Martin.

An old compress building was used to house the animals. It was located on the same grounds where the show will be held this week.

The livestock show area has grown since that time, as evidenced by the seven buildings sprawling over about five acres.

According to Sehon, "The livestock show has expanded tremendously in recent years."

Shrimp Boats To Move Base Of Operations

BAYOU LA BATRE, Ala. (AP) —Seventeen shrimp boats from Louisiana and Alabama are scheduled to cast off Monday and move their base of operations to Colombia, South Carolina.

Declining shrimp production along the Gulf Coast was given as the reason for the move.

"We just can't make it here with these type boats," said Harold King of Morgan City, La. The boats are 62 to 70 feet in length and are double rigged for trawling in deep waters of the Gulf of Mexico.

"Shrimping has played out in the upper Gulf," King added. He estimated production last year dropped about 35 per cent.

The shrimpers will operate under contract with a Colombian seafood firm. They had to obtain approval of both the United States and Colombia governments for the move. "There's been a lot of red tape," one said.

Athens Captures Regionals On 61-60 Squeaker

Marion Champion In Girls Division

By RICK BRYAN
World Sports Editor

In front 59-56 with 3:30 left, the defending state champion Trojans stalled successfully until the Eagles stole the ball and Mike Collins sank a fielder to narrow it to 59-58 with 1:15 to go.

Calmly the Trojans went into the freeze again and controlled the ball until all-state guard Don Henry was fouled with 20 seconds remaining.

Henry, whose 39 points and all-round playing excellence made the difference in the game, sank two charity tosses and it was 61-58.

Lisbon, which had a hustling bunch that never quit, came back and did all it could.

With five seconds remaining Dave McAdams, who paced the Eagles with 16, sank a fielder from the corner, but there wasn't time for more.

MARION WINS

Marion took the girls championship, defeating Ogden 37-27.

Elaine Binford sank 19 points and Wanda Brasher 16 to pace the win as Marion grabbed and 9-5 first quarter lead and increased it to 17-7 by the half.

ALL-REGIONAL

Named to the all-regional boys team were:

Henry and Dwight Carpenter of Athens; Ronnie Rolen, Sikes; Eugene Harper, Eros; Glenn Saulters and McAdams, Lisbon; Tad Wilson, Monterey; Dewayne Cassels, Enterprise; Don Reeves, Marion; and Sidney Eppinette, Start.

Girls all regional selections were Hatten, DeBlisar and Adams, Ogden; Wanda Brasher, and Elaine Binford, Marion; Linda Stroud, Bandy and Franklin, Atlanta; Hudson and Corley, Georgetown and Morace, Monterey.

SEMI-FINALS

Henry scored 28 points to pace Athen's semi-final win over Enterprise, but he got a good bit of help from three others.

Rickey Spurlock and Glenn Chandler tied for second behind Henry with 16 apiece, and Carpenter added 13.

Enterprise got balanced scoring from four boys, William Guyon with 12, H. C. Lewis and David Ainsworth with 11 apiece and James Stewart with 10.

Saulters led Lisbon in its afternoon game with 21 points, while McAdams and James Rich had 14 apiece.

Wilson scored 18 for the losing Monterey team and Roddie Crouch had 16.

Athens jumped off to a 27-9 first quarter lead in the semi-finals and coasted from there for the win.

Lisbon in turn, led only 16-14 starting the second period, in its semi-final action, but moved out to a 36-24 halftime edge.

BOYS FINAL

In the first quarter alone the score was tied five times and changed hands even more. And when the eight minutes were up it was deadlocked again, 15-15.

Henry, who is probably an even better defensive player than he is a shooter, paced the Trojans through this stage with 12 of their 15 points. Lisbon got balanced scoring from Saulters, James Rich and McAdams.

The Eagles took the lead at the beginning of the next quarter and held it until 5:55 were left, when Athens forged in front 23-22.

The Trojans then went ahead by as much as seven points and entered the dressing room with a 34-29 lead.

Though Lisbon lost both Saulters and Rich by fouls in the third period, the Eagles stormed back to go in front 52-20 slightly before the buzzer. The score was tied 52-52 starting the final stanza, but Lisbon grabbed the lead once more, 54-52 with 30 seconds gone.

It was then that the Trojans bounded back in front on four charity tosses and a field goal by Henry to take a five point lead before Lisbon narrowed it to 59-56 with 3:50 left.

This set the stage for Athens final clutch freeze that in the end meant the victory.

Rebels Turn Back Tulane With 5 Men

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP) — Mississippi used only five men Saturday night in turning back Tulane 83-76 in a Southeastern Conference basketball game.

After Tulane came from behind twice to tie the game at 2-2 and 4-4, Mississippi went ahead to stay. At the half, the Rebels were in front 44-32.

The Rebels bottled up Tulane's Jim Kerwin with a collapsing zone defense and held him to six points in the first half. Jack Ardon ended as the Green Wave's top scorer with 27 points.

Tulane came within three points midway in the second half before the Rebels began stalling.

Mississippi converted 58.3 per cent of its field attempts and 61.9 per cent of free throw attempts. Tulane made good on 40.5 per cent from the floor and 57.1 per cent from the foul line.

Norris, Lovett Lead McGuffie To 88-62 Win

DRY PRONG (Special) — L. V. Norris singed the nets for 30 points here last night to lead McGuffie Construction Co. of Monroe to an 88-62 victory over the Alexandria All-Stars in an independent basketball game.

This was the third straight win without a setback for the Monroe quintet.

James Hattaway hit 18 and Merle Walker got 17 for the All-Stars.

Dry Prong Boys, Dodson Girls In Meet Victories

WINNFIELD (Special) — Dry Prong captured the boys division and Dodson took a thrilling win from Winnfield's girls to take top honors in that division here last night in the Winnfield Junior High tourney.

In Dry Prong's 50-49 victory over Ringold, Johnson hit 12 points. Thrash popped in 22 for the losers.

Dodson's 31-27 overtime win from Winnfield was led by Temple who netted 13 points. Dalby got 14 to pace Winnfield.

Chappell Scores 42

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)—Len Chappell, a 6-foot-8 senior making his last collegiate appearance before the home fans, scored 42 points as Wake Forest defeated South Carolina 97-85 in an Atlantic Coast Conference basketball game Saturday night.

Recreation Jr. Tourney To Be Held This Week

The Monroe Recreation Department will hold its annual Junior League basketball Tournament Friday and Saturday in the Lee Junior High School gym.

All boys 18 and under that participated in the Junior League are eligible to enter.

Anyone desiring to enter a team should contact the Recreation Department at FA 2-2170 before noon Wednesday, which is the entry deadline. A lineup of all games will appear in Friday's paper.

Play begins Friday night and concluded Saturday afternoon. Championship trophies will be awarded to the winning team.

2ND FASTEST INDOOR MILE

Beatty Scorches Boards In AAU

By ED CORRIGAN

NEW YORK (AP) — Jim Beatty, the world's only indoor sub-four-minute miler, won the National AAU mile in 4 minutes 00.2—the second fastest ever on boards—before a screaming crowd of 16,864 Saturday night in Madison Square Garden.

Beatty, the little Los Angeles Track Club star, took the lead at the halfway point, and pursued by Gary Wiesiger of the Quantico Marines until he was a lap from home, never really was in danger.

Wiesiger was clocked in 4:04.6, the fastest he ever has covered the distance.

Two weeks ago in the Los Angeles Times meet, Beatty ran the mile in 3:58.9 to break the indoor four-minute "barrier." Then last week in the New York A.C. meet here, he ran the distance in 4:00.9. This marks the third straight race in which he has broken Ron Delany's listed indoor record of 4:01.4.

Villanova dethroned the New York A.C., which had won the title the last four years, as the team champion with 18 points. The Winged Footers were second with 17 points.

Henry Wadsworth of the U.S. Army won the pole vault, clearing 15-4. Ronaldo Cruz of Villanova also got over 15-4, but Wadsworth got the decision on fewer misses. Dexter Elkins of Southern Methodist missed three times at 14 feet. He was the favorite.

John Thomas, the dethroned world king of the high jumpers, got off his first 7-footer of the season and showed signs of regaining some of his old form.

But Ralph Boston, the top broad jumper in the universe, was defeated by Charle Mays, a 21-year-old junior from Maryland State College who got off a 24-10¾ leap.

The mile was three-quarters of an hour late getting off the mark and Beatty said that hurt.

"I got cold waiting around," said the 5-6 University of North Carolina graduate. "In fact, I was so sore when I found how late it was going to be, I didn't care if they ever ran it."

"I don't blame him," said A.A.U. Chief Dan Ferris.

But once he started out, Beatty must have forgotten his ire.

Pete Close of the Quantico Marines led him to a 59.7 first quarter. Then Jim took over and hit the half in 1:59.9 and three-quarters in 3:01.2.

But while Close faded, Wiesiger, who never has gone under 4:08, dogged his steps. With three laps to go, Beatty was a mere two yards in front of the Marine Corps lieutenant.

With two laps to go, he had opened another yard. But then Wiesiger tired and Beatty opened up. By the time he crossed the tape, he was 25 yards to the good. The victory was Beatty's 13th straight indoors over a period of three years.

Delany, his arch rival, was forced to scratch because of a sore achilles tendon in his left foot.

Jim Irons of the Toronto Olympic Club finished third in 4:14.7 and Bob Vinton of the Baltimore Olympic Club was fourth in 4:15.

After Thomas cleared his 7-footer, he went for 7-2½, which would have broken the meet record of 7-2 he held jointly with Russia's Valery Brumel. But he missed all three times.

Bob Avant, of Saugas, who also is in the 7-foot class, was second with 6-10.

Bearcats Breeze Over Wichita 5; Assure MVC Tie

CINCINNATI (AP) — The University of Cincinnati Bearcats breezed to an easy 84-63 win over usually troublesome Wichita Saturday night, assuring themselves at least a co-championship in the Missouri Valley Conference.

The Bearcats jumped out to an 8-0 lead at the start and never trailed. Sharp on both defense and shooting, they set the tone of the entire contest in the first half, hitting 16 of 32 from the field while Wichita scored on only nine of 34.

Iowa Wins, 68-63

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP)—Iowa jumped to an 18-1 lead and held off a second half Michigan surge for a 68-63 Big Ten basketball victory over the Wolverines Saturday night.

JOHNSON HITS FOR 32

Tribe Scalps Badgers To Stretch Win Streak

MOBILE, Ala. (Special) —Lanny Johnson, the Gulf States Conference's leading scorer, pumped in 32 points to lead the Northeast State Indians to a 92-85 triumph over the Spring Hill Badgers here last night.

The non-conference victory extended the Indians' winning streak to nine and brought their season mark to 17-7.

Coach Lenny Fant's Tribe, which has already wrapped up the GSC championship, closes its 1961-62 campaign Tuesday night with a league contest against Southwestern in Lafayette.

Gerald Lewis, a 6-3 senior, was high point man for Spring Hill last night with 28. Ken Dalton fired in 10 field goals for 20 more points for the Badgers.

Stewart Toms, Northeast's 5-11 ball - handling wizzard, was the second high man for the winners with 17. Jerry Snelling, one of the two seniors on the club, added 11, and big Robert Cook, the Indians' leading rebounder, assisted with 10 points and 14 rebounds, the high for that department.

Milton Linder, a 6-3 junior who played his prep ball at Fort Necessity, and Bob Groves, a 6-2 sophomore who was a standout at Neville High School, did an excellent job of defensing Joe Nolfe, Spring Hill's leading scorer, and held the 6-1 scoring ace to only 12 points. Nolfe was unable to sink a single field goal in the first half and managed only two in the final period. However, he cashed in eight of 10 shots from the free throw line. When Northeast defeated the Badgers, 83-70, earlier this month in Monroe, Nolfe ripped the nets for 32 points.

Northeast won last night's contest at the foul line. Spring Hill outshot the Indians from the floor — hitting 29 of 66 against 23 of 68 for Northeast — but the Tribe dropped in 36 of 47 charity shots while the Badgers took advantage of only 27 of 35 chances.

The Indians outrebounded Spring Hill 48-44.

Northeast led most of the intail half, but Spring Hill moved ahead for the first time in the game at 43-42 with 1:58 remaining in the period. However, John Varino, a 6-3 freshman who was All-State last year at St. Matthew's hit a pair of free throws, and Linder connected from the floor only 35 seconds before intermission to send Northeast to the dressing rooms with a slim, 45-44 advantage.

In the second half Johnson sank two charity tosses to knot the count at 54-54 after Spring Hill had pulled slightly ahead. The Tribe retained a three of four point advantage until the closing minutes of the contest.

Then, with 3:50 playing time remaining and Northeast ahead, 80-79, the Indians started employing ball - control tactics to run out the clock and preserve their narrow margin.

Toms, Snelling, and Irby Gamble, a 5-7 sophomore, did a fine job of ball - handling to kill most of the remaining time.

The Indians steadily increased their lead, and held a seven - point advantage, 92-85, when the final buzzer sounded.

Mississippi State Whips LSU, 58-48

By VAN SAVELL

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) — Fifth - ranked Mississippi State offset a 20-minute cold streak from the floor with a barrage of free throws and whipped Louisiana State 58-48 Saturday night for its 10th straight Southeastern Conference basketball victory.

The Maroons held their biggest margin of the night, 23-11, with 10 minutes left in the first half. A field goal by Leland Mitchell was the only two-pointer for Mississippi State again until 10:21 to go in the second half.

LSU cut the lead to 35-33 in 17 minutes behind the shooting of George Nattin and Ellis Cooper.

Gold scored 22 points, 12 of them free throws during the cold streak, to lead Mississippi State scoring. Mitchell added 14 points and Hutton 10, most of the n in the last 7 minutes.

Cooper and Drummond hit 14 points each for LSU and Nattin added 11. LSU's 6-foot-10 Tom Conklin was shutout and played less than 15 minutes.

Mississippi State hit only 16 of 56 field goal attempts for 28.6 per cent but 26 of 35 free throw attempts offset the percentage.

LSU hit 21 of 56 for 37.5 per cent and added 6 of 10 from the charity line.

MSU remained atop the SEC league standing with a 11-1 record. They are 22-1 for the season. LSU is 7-5 and 14-9 overall.

Nash Scores 30 Points; Carries Kentucky To Win

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (UPI) — Sophomore sensation Cotton Nash poured in 30 points and his Kentucky teammates controlled the backboards with authority Saturday night for a 73-65 win over hustling Alabama.

It was a vital Southeastern Conference win for the nationally third-ranked Wildcats, now 10-1 in the conference and 19-2 overall.

Fifth - ranked Mississippi State, with an 11-1 conference mark, has all but cinched the SEC title but is expected to turn down a tournament bid for racial reasons.

Kentucky clashes with Auburn Monday night for second place in the conference and a probable NCAA bid. Auburn beat Tennessee Saturday 60-51 to boost its conference record to 10-2, a shade behind Kentucky.

Boys' Baseball Registration To Begin Tomorrow

Boys eight through 12, who will not have reached their 13th birthday by August 1, will be eligible for Little League. Boys 13 and 14, who will not have reached their 15th birthday by August 1 are eligible for Dixie League.

There will be three leagues for Little League — Northside, Southside and Eastside. Dixie League will have two leagues — Northside and Southside.

Although the inclimate weather has stopped progress on the Southside Dixie League field, it is hoped that it will be ready for play this summer.

Deadline for registering boys has been set for April 1.

Syracuse Now In Playoff Spot

UTICA, N.Y. (AP)—The Syracuse Nats moved closer to a National Basketball Association playoff spot Saturday night by overcoming the New York Knickerbockers 120-117 on the strength of a 41-point third period.

Calvin Girls Clip Logansport In Bi-District Game

LONGANSPORT (Special) — Substitute forward Polly Carpenter dropped in eight of 10 free throw attempts in the final three minutes to help Calvin to a 37-30 victory over Longansport here last night in a Class B bi-district playoff match.

Calvin will host Sterlington Tuesday in an 8 p.m. regional playoff contest.

Francis Wells was high for 1-B champion Logansport with 15 and teammate Jan Oden added 12.

Sterlington's sextet copped the 3-B crown and advanced in the state playoffs with 47-34 triumph over Forest Friday night.

Oak Grove Gets Top Honors In Own Cage Meet

Oak Grove's boys raced over Tallulah, 68-35, in the final game of the tourney. In the championship contest, Mitchell Broadway fired in 18 points for the winners and Don Ater scored 12 for Tallulah.

Oak Grove took the girl's title with a 41-35 victory over Transylvania. Sharon Ainsworth and Brenda Smith teamed to score all 41 of Oak Grove's points. Ainsworth fired in 21 and Smith was close behind with 20.

Oak Grove's boys advanced to the finals with a 58-27 win over Bonita and Tallulah stopped Epps, 63-62 to get a shot at the title.

Lake Providence Meets Ringgold In Regional Play

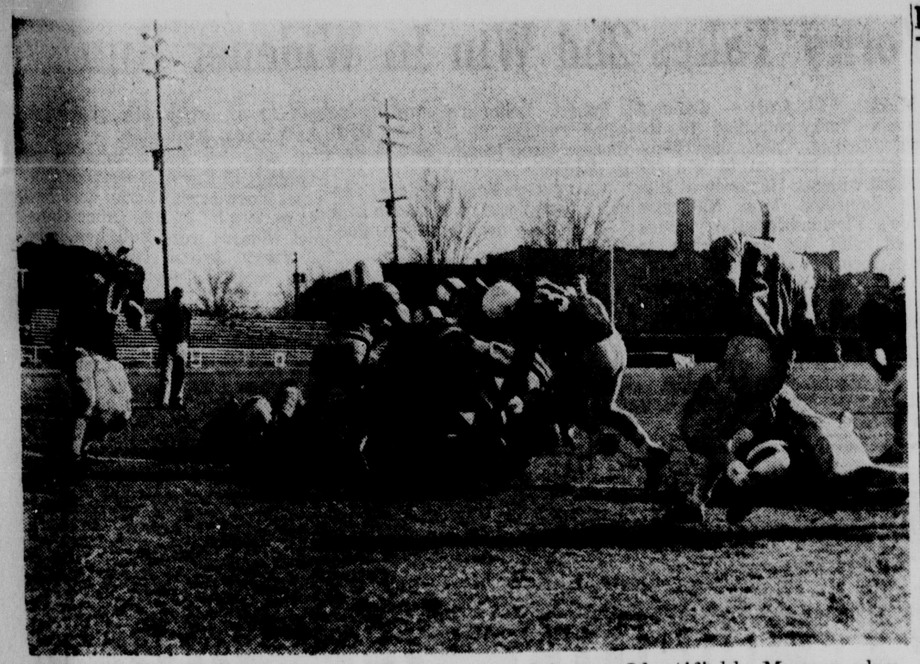
Tipoff time is 7:30 p.m. in the Lake Providence gym.

Lake Providence advanced to the regional playoffs with a 69-51 triumph over Spearsville Friday night. They won the 4-B title with a 6-1 record and have compiled a 26-1 overall mark thus far.



AN UNIDENTIFIED Maroon back is stopped short in his bid to score in this action in yesterday's scrimmage at Northeast State. The Maroon club tallied several plays later for one of three touchdowns. FOR 102-79 WIN

Buckeyes Storm Past Illinois Five

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio State stormed through a leaky Illinois defense Saturday for a convincing 102-79 Big Ten victory which practically wrapped up a third straight Western Conference championship for the top-ranked Buckeyes.

It was practically no contest as the Ohioans swung away to an 8-0 lead in the regionally televised fray and added to their advantage until they were out front by 88-55 with seven minutes to go.

The Buckeye second and third stringers took over at that point but Illinois failed to menace the big Ohio lead.

All the Buckeye starters scored in double figures with Capt. John Havlicek leading the way with 19. Dave Downey, Illinois' fine junior from Canton, Ill., paced all of the point getters with 21.

The Bucks with the first stringers on the bench for the last seven minutes of each half scored 52 points in the first session and 50 in the second as they raced to their 11th conference win of the season, ran their over-all record to 21-0, scored their 26th straight Big Ten win and their 33rd conquest in a row here.

It was the third straight game in which Illinois has surrendered 100 or more points. In the two previous the Illini were dumped 100-88 by Purdue and 103-100 by Wisconsin.

Jerry Lucas, Ohio's two-time All-America who has fouled out of only one game in his collegiate career, chalked up four personals and sat out much of the last half. He wound up with 13 points, his lowest showing against the Illini in four previous games. He had scored 35, 27, 30 and 31 against Illinois.

Bill Burwell, 6-foot-8, 235-pound junior from Brooklyn, N.Y., also scored 13 in his head and head duel with Lucas but he got eight of them in the late going after Jerry was benched. Burwell also was handicapped as he picked up four personals in the opening half.

The loss gave Illinois a 6-5 conference record and 14-6 over-all.

The game was the 10th straight sellout here, witnessed by a throng of 13,497. The other game against Loyola of Chicago attracted only 13,491, six shy of capacity.

Ohio seniors now have won 73 of 77 games over the last three seasons.

Ohio State scored over 50 per cent from the field, registering on 46 of 90 attempts while Illinois made only 28 of 70 throws.

Ohio had a huge 56-36 lead in rebounds, Lucas taking 16 to lead the way.

Rowan Fairly Pleased With Indian's Drill

"The boys looked pretty good in spots, but they were also very ragged," commented Head Coach Jack Rowan following Northeast's full-scale grid scrimmage at Brown Stadium yesterday afternoon.

"We've been working with the boys individually most of the time so far and our teamwork is not what it should be," said the athletic director, "although it's as good as we can expect at this point."

"I think Ken Newton looked good," Rowan went on. Newton scored the first of three Maroon team touchdowns on an 85-yard run.

"And Dean Mann also turned in a good run or two," he added. "In the line, Ross Nolan did a good job and so did Jim LaCoste."

The coach also praised fullback Devone Payne. Payne, he said, ran well until he was hurt.

The Monroe fullback injured his back midway through the scrimmage and was taken to a hospital. Rowan did not know the extent of the injury last night.

Another back coming in for the coach's praise was Willie Ragan, an all-GSC fullback last year, who was switched to quarterback this spring. "Ragan is the type of player," Rowan said, "who can play anywhere and do you a good job."

One of Ragan's best plays yesterday resulted after a miscue. The Gold squad blocked one of his punts, but before they could recover the ball, Willie raced back, got it, and took off up field, running over one man, before he was upended after a gain of around 25 yards.

The Maroon team got off a couple of good quick kicks and Rowan singled out John Kelly for several long punts.

"His leg isn't in real good shape yet," said Rowan, "but when he's in shape, he can solve out punting worries."

Rowan also indicated the Maroon defense looked good at times. "All the boys were hitting hard," he said, "on both sides."

RODGERS BALLOONS

Wininger Takes Lead At New Orleans Meet

By BEN THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Handsome Bo Winninger, playing the "sorriest round I've had in a long time" took the lead in the $30,000 Greater New Orleans Open Golf Tournament Saturday with a 54-hole total of 213.

The 39-year-old Wininger had a 1-over-par 73 on the 6,656-yard City Park layout, but it was good enough to move ahead of the field.

Peppery Phil Rodgers, the 23-year-old Californian who led after the second round with successive 69s, ballooned to a 76. He was tied for second place—one stroke behind Wininger—with defending champion Doug Sanders and pudgy Bob Rosburg. Sanders had a 72 while Rosburg carded a 71 for a 214 total.

Two strokes behind Wininger at 215 were Dan Sikes, a 31-year-old Jacksonville, Fla., lawyer who had a 70, and Don Fairfield, the consistent Champaign, Ill., swinger who fired a 71.

Wininger quit the PGA tour 30 months ago to take a plush job as a public relations man for an Odessa, Tex., oil well supply firm. He now plays in about 10 tourneys a year.

"It was spooky," Wininger said, referring to his round. "I was grabbing the wrong clubs and misjudging. But my putter saved my life.

"It (the putter) was unbelievable. I sank some real long ones just to get pars."

Wininger started out the round with a birdie on No. 1 when he sank a 4-footer, then collected a double bogey on No. 3 when he missed a 3-foot putt, and was one over on No. 6. He picked up a birdie with a 15-foot putt on the 13th to card a 39-34.

Rodgers, who has won two tourneys this year, and Sanders both had trouble with their putters. The wind continued to cause trouble again, although it was not as stiff as Friday.

The field was cut to the top 63 pros and 10 amateurs for Sunday's 18-hole finals.

The day's best rounds—all 69s—were turned in by Doug Ford of Vernon Hills, N.Y., Jack McGowan, East Bay, Fla. and Bert Weaver of Beaumont, Tex.

THE SPEEDY STYRONS

BY SEVERAL SPRINTERS

Styron Visualizes 9.2 Century Runs

Northeast State's Dave Styron thinks several sprinters will run 9.2 100-yard dashes this spring—and hopes he'll be one of them.

The 9.2 100, long one of track's most elusive records, was run for the first time last summer by Frank Budd in the National AAU meet. Robert Hayes, a Florida A&M sophomore, ran the only other 9.2 century two weeks ago.

Dave Styron was one of the sprinters Budd defeated when he ran his 9.2 last summer. Styron finished fourth with a 9.4 clocking.

"I think several boys will hit 9.2 this spring, Dennis Johnson of San Jose and Canadian Harry Jerome for two," Styron predicted.

"I'm also aiming for a 9.2 century this spring, as well as a 19.9 220," Styron said. "I expect the 19.9 220 will be a lot easier to get than the 9.2."

The Northeast athlete has run the 100 in 9.4 several times and ran a 9.3 with an aiding wind. He ran the 220 in 20.2 last year. He ran the 100 in the Sugar Bowl Meet Dec. 31, 1961, finishing second to Ralph Alspaugh with a 9.8 time on a wet track.

Both Dave and twin Don had outstanding indoor seasons this year. Dave equaled the world records of 6.0 in the 60-yard dash and 7.0 in the 70-yard sprint. His best last year in the 60 was 6.2.

Don, world record holder in the 220-yard low hurdles, this winter matched the world marks of 7.0 in the 60-yard high hurdles and 6.7 in the 60-yard low hurdles.

The Styrons and their State teammates open the outdoor season in the Southwestern Recreation Meet in Fort Worth next Saturday.

HOMECOMING VICTORY

Centenary Beats Oklahoma, 99-91

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — Centenary extended its basketball season record to 16-8 Saturday with a 99-91 homecoming victory over Oklahoma City.

Sophomore Stan McAfoos of Centenary took scoring honors with 27 points. Teammate Dale Van Bibber had 18.

Don Ensley, 6-foot-3 Centenary junior, was the outstanding playmaker of the afternoon on either side. His two successive steals and layups in the final minutes broke open a tight game and put it out of reach of Oklahoma City.

Centenary made good on 49 per cent of its field goal attempts and 75 per cent from the free throw line. Oklahoma City, which entered the game with a team percentage of 49, had to settle for 46 from the floor and 60 per cent at the free throw line.

The loss dropped Oklahoma City's record to 13-12 for the season.

Baseball Briefs

Houk Will Keep Off

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Manager Ralph Houk reaffirmed Saturday his decision to keep hands off in the salary dispute between home run king Roger Maris and the New York Yankees.

Maris, the Yanks' lone unsigned player, is reportedly seeking a contract calling for $75,000 as a reward for hitting 61 homers last year. He has been offered in the neighborhood of $10,000 less.

Houk, asked if he was involved in any of the discussions between Maris and General Manager Roy Hamey, said, "It's not my business. My job is to work with the players who come out in uniform. I will not get involved."

Colts Invite Veterans

APACHE JUNCTION, Ariz. (AP)—The youth-minded Houston Colts have invited veterans Dave Philley and Ned Garver to report for tryouts.

Both are expected here Monday when Manager Harry Craft adds 40 infielders and outfielders to the spring training camp that has included only pitchers and catchers since Feb. 16.

Both Philley and Garver received unconditional American League releases after the 1961 season.

Surprise For Hinton

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (AP) —The Washington Senators will have a surprise for outfielder Chuck Hinton when he reports with the remainder of the squad on Thursday. They've bought him a first baseman's mitt.

Bud Zipfel will not be released from the service until late March, and with Dale Long still unsigned, the Senators might be without a first baseman for their early exhibitions. Hinton has played second and short, as well as the outfield.

Hutch Likes Ellis

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—Cincinnati Reds' Manager Freddie Hutchinson said Saturday if any rookie hurler can make the jump to the big time this year, it's Reds' rookie Sammy Ellis.

Ellis is a 21-year-old right-hander with less than one season of minor league ball under his belt. At this time last year the slender, scholarly-looking 6-footer was a sophomore at Mississippi State University.

Athletics Add Kern

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics, looking for more right-handed hitting, added Bill Kern, a 27-year-old outfielder, to their bulging spring training roster of 55 men Saturday.

Kern batted .280 last year for Shreveport of the Southern Association. He hit 24 homers and drove in 91 runs.

Manager Hank Bauer said he was considering Kern principally for pinch-hitting duty but added that if he could do the job he could win a regular spot in the A's outfield.

Sox Need Hurlers

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Manager Mike Higgins said some jobs are open on the Boston Red Sox pitching staff as he greeted the pitchers and catchers Saturday.

Gene Conley was the only missing member of the mound crew of six as spring training officially started. Conley is playing basketball for the New York Tapers in the American Basketball League and won't report until March 1.

"I hope that some of the young pitchers here in camp realize that its possible to win a job on the staff," Higgins said. "In fact, I'm hoping some of these youngsters can show enough out here to win a job.

Jackie Brant Reports

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Center fielder Jackie Brant reported to Baltimore's spring training camp five days ahead of schedule and immediately intrigued Manager Billy Hitchcock with his whiplash hitting Saturday.

Meanwhile, Jim Gentile, the slugging first baseman, also early at his own request, joined the walking wounded on three counts —a jammed right thumb, an infected ingrown toenail and three painful open blisters on each hand.

None of the ailments was believed serious, but Gentile was forced to lay down his bat during hitting drills for treatments by Billy Weidner, the Orioles veteran trainer.

Alou Boys Arrive

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP)—The Alou boys, Felipe and Matty, arrived in the San Francisco Giant camp Saturday and big brother Felipe immediately put on a hitting show.

Felipe hit nothing but line drives in his first time in the batting cage. One of his shots was a screamer to straightaway center that went over the 425-foot mark on its first bounce.

Arrival of the brothers from the Dominican Republic plus that of rookies Gil Garrido, Manuel Moto and Dan Rivas raised the number of men in camp to 44.

Missing are Orlando Cepeda and Jack Sanford, the only two holdouts on the Giant roster, plus relief ace Stu Miller. Miller was given permission to report Monday.

The Alous tried to be in camp for Friday's spring training opening, but airplane trouble delayed them—first when no landing could be made in New York and then when engine trouble forced a return to Chicago.

Rocky Won't Sign

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — The financial differences of Rocky Colavito and the Detroit Tigers deepened Saturday when the handsome slugger sent back his third contract unsigned.

Colavito was reputed to have been paid $35,000 last year and had been offered an increase of approximately 40 per cent, bringing the total close to $50,000. He is understood to be holding out for well over $50,000.

Harrisonburg In Bi-District Win

HARRISONBURG (Special) — Harrisonburg's powerful sextet, champions of District 5-B, continued to roll here last night with a 68-40 win over Colfax in a Bi-District tilt. The victory was the 40th of the season for Harrisonburg against four defeats.

Last night, All - Stater Helen Randall bombed in 46 points to lead her teammates to victory. Nancy Humble chipped in 16 for the winners.

Winnsboro Girls Meet Coushatta In Bi-District Tilt

WINNSBORO (Special) — The Winnsboro High School girls' basketball team travels to Coushatta Monday to tangle with the Coushatta sextet in a Class A bi-district playoff game.

Action is slated for 7:30 p.m.

Winnsboro finished second in District 2-A with an 8-2 and currently posses a 16-7 overall mark. Both of their league losses were to Ferriday, which won the crown with a 10-0 record.

Coushatta edged Winnfield for the District 1-A title.

Spartans Defeat Indiana, 97-85

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Michigan State footballer Lonnie Sanders waited until the Spartan's last home game to put together his best scoring effort of his basketball career as Michigan State defeated Indiana 97-85 Saturday night.

Sanders scored 22 points in boosting the Spartans past their Big Ten rival for State's third conference victory.

Michigan State took a 47-42 lead at the intermission, but relinquished it to the Hoosiers 2 minutes after the second half started, 48-47. The Spartans jumped right back on the scoring of Ted Williams, Sanders and Gent.

The Big Panel

Four pertinent points about the current waterfowl problems stood out in Monroe Friday night when a panel of wildlife officials from six states discussed the future of waterfowl at a public meeting sponsored by the Ouachita Wildlife Unit.

The panel, which was the best we've seen, was brought together by the local club because of the past tight restrictions on duck hunting and because of the drouths in the Canada grounds.

While there were numerous facts established in this complicated subject of waterfowl, the basic point was made by Art Hawkins, the Mississippi Flyway representative for the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service, of Minneapolis, Minn.

Hawkins said, "Ninety per cent of the potholes (in Canada) have dried up."

He was speaking of the potholes that feed the Mississippi Flyway, and, of course, this was Point No. 1.

But in respect to this, Louisiana Director L. D. Young pointed out that there have been drouths in Canada before, emphasizing that eventually the wetlands will undergo a normal, rainy season.

With this in mind, he said it was "too early to push the panic button" about the future of waterfowl, contending that the "tight restrictions" and even the closing of the season would not be of great benefit.

The Louisiana view, shared by Arkansas Director Nelson Cox and Mississippi Director John Camp, was Point No. 2 — that considerations of closing the season in the Mississippi Flyway are off base.

In line with this, Hawkins, with the help of slides shown to the estimated crowd of 250 sportsmen, explained that tight restrictions were enforced on hunters in the states of the Mississippi Flyway because of the fact that the nesting grounds that provide ducks for the flyway have undergone the most serious trouble of a lack of water.

Point No. 3 was brought out in the various and varied views presented by the panelists, especially when they got into the business of discussions at the flyway council meetings.

Most duck hunters do not understand that the state wildlife departments are not the final authority on the seasons. As we have emphasized a great many times, each state sits in on the Mississippi Flyway Council, which serves as an advisory board to the Fish & Wildlife Service.

After the service takes recommendations from the council, the service then makes its recommendation to the U. S. Department of the Interior, which in turn hands down the framework for the seasons to the states. The states then set the seasons from within the framework drafted by the federal government.

Point No. 3 is this — there is not enough information released by the states and the Fish & Wildlife Service about the council activities. States attending the council meetings should release statements explaining the events of the meetings.

Some sportsmen may want to do whatever they can to help the duck picture, if they are properly informed. In line with this, the states, including Louisiana, should keep their sportsmen informed of the conditions in Canada.

Education of the sportsman is a great need and in our opinion this was one of the basic facts brought out by the panel.

Point No. 4, we're sad to say, was established actually by the turn-out of sportsmen at the meeting. While Monroe is a hotbed for duck hunters, the crowd wasn't much over 250 hunters.

Perhaps, if the meeting had been held in December or January, when hunters still had the fever, the attendance would have been greater, especially for such an unusually good panel to be assembled for local consumption.

But, if those very men who complain about the duck hunting aren't interested enough in the future of the sport to come to a meeting and learn the facts of the subject, then they don't deserve any more than the 19-day season that Louisiana got last year.

Basically, there was a wide difference of opinion on the panel between the U. S. Fish & Wildlife Service and the state directors. While the service obviously leans toward closing the season, the states lean toward keeping it open.

The states, the directors pointed out, have too much money invested in waterfowl to let it fade from the American scene. The service feels the same way.

Still in all, the Ouachita Wildlife Unit performed a service to the public by assembling the panel. Lloyd Voorhees, the president, and those who helped him did a tremendous job extremely well done.

And for those non-sportsmen who may smirk with the impression that this is much ado about something as small as a duck, then we can only say that the sportsman is no crazier than the man who plays golf or tennis or drinks beer and plays poker on Saturday afternoon.

The Sportsman's Voice

Louisiana sportsmen who would like to have the opportunity of speaking out on everything from the seasons to the game programs will get their chance.

In Monroe Tuesday night, at 7:30 p.m. at the Virginia Hotel, the Ouachita Wildlife Unit will be open for resolutions, which of course will be presented to the Louisiana Wildlife Federation at the 23rd annual convention at Alexandria, March 16-18.

The meeting Tuesday night comes on the heels of the big waterfowl session held Friday night and no doubt the attendance will be off. But the local club felt that sportsmen, other than duck hunters, were entitled to the regular monthly meeting, especially since it will be the last one before the convention.

So if you want to be heard, if there is a change that you would like to see made, then come to the meeting Tuesday night. Your views then will be represented by the club's delegation at the convention.

And the Ouachita club should be able to carry some weight at Alexandria, since it is the largest in the state again — with a membership of about 1300 persons.

That's Tuesday night — the resolution session.

The Little Man's Corner

The little men kept their eyes on the clouds to make news afield when the sun peeped out.

Fishing, in general, hasn't been bad and in some spots it's been pretty good. But the luck of the fisherman all depends on the weather.

And of course we've had some bad days lately.

Bill Minor, in a Thursday report, said the specs began to tear it up that day, especially around the trees in Black Bayou. Fishermen were using shiners.

Getting their kicks out of the specs were Ed Villa, Bill Rambin, Chuck Barkalow, Bill Watson and Arnold Franklin and according to Bill Minor, a "bunch more."

From Monroe, Jasper Haddad had a good day with the bass in Bayou DeSiard. Biologist Jim Davis, whose crews kept a careful watch on the bayou, said DeSiard is getting a big play, especially that section of the bayou just off Raymond Drive.

The bass are striking around the buttonwillows. Specs are biting above Parker Dam.

Meantime, Bussey at Bastrop is still the best spot in the Monroe area, although Cheniere is not so bad on specs. Cheniere has been a bit muddy.

Russell White of Monroe landed a big bass in Bussey—7 lb., 6-oz., which may be a record. Most of the bass that have been caught in Bussey are small, simply because Bussey, built by International Paper Co., is still a youngster.

White perch are biting around the tree lines at Bussey. W. E. Perry and Nelson Payne landed 20 bass on the Mirrow Lure there while L. C. Aycock and Dr. J. R. Fowler of Ruston caught 22 large bass on the Heddon Sonar.

Having good luck with the specs were Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Pennington, who landed 35 on shiners, plus six bass. E. A. Sistruck and his son caught 40 on shiners.

Other bass fishermen included Ralph Dunn, 15, on the Mirrow Lure and River Runt, and Tony Hartsell, 15, same bait. From Monroe, Ira Cagle and Tommy Agnew and their crowd had a good trip to Bussey, catching nice strings of bass.

From Tensas, the barpits at St. Joseph are good for white perch. Lake St. Joe is too. Lake Bruin is fair for white perch and a Baton Rouge angler landed six bass on a blue worm.

A group of four Winnsboro fishermen had good luck at Lake St. Joe. Jack Miller and Dub Armstrong used shiners and caught 43 white perch while Si Willing and Albert Greenwald used red worms and got a nice string of 20 bluegills.

And at Tallulah, Brushy Bayou there in town is good for white perch with minnows. Bud Malone, Lloyd Evans and Lenell Bradley have landed some nice ones.

The woods lakes, like Bear, Buck, and Doe, aren't right yet. Clear Lake in Richland Parish is good for white perch, although it's high.

Running streams like Bartholomew, the Tensas and Beouf are too high, muddy and fast. You can't get to Ervin's Lake north of Bastrop.

Lake St. John is good for bream and bluegills on worms and crayfish while in the Columbia area Davis Lake is okay for bass on the upper end. Woolen isn't right yet.

Around Ferriday, Lake Concordia has been good for bass. Harold Case reports that one fisherman landed a big one that weighed 8-lb., 2-oz. Fishermen are using the plastic worms.

Harold says the grass line on Concordia has extended from three to four yards since last year.

At Winnfield, Saline is good for white perch — bass on the white H&H, water normal.

And in the Jena area, Deacon Walker reports that several lakes around Jonesville are good — Willow, Horseshoe and Black River Lake, as well as Tew Lake.

From Lake Providence, Jim Baur caught 13 bass that weighed a total of 45 pounds. He was fishing with the Mirror Lure close to the cypress trees on the lower end of Lake Providence.

And here's a note for turkey hunters. Check to see if you have your turkey tag. If the weather remains warm, afraid the gobblers will be gobbling early this year.

FROM BASEBALL SCENE

Casey Tells His View After Year's Absence

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —How does baseball look to Casey Stengel and vice versa after a year's temporary separation?

To Stengel, baseball looks good —"But I can't say that I am happier than I was banking. Fact is, I'm fairly well satisfied any place I work or without working as long as I feel good naturally."

To baseball, Stengel looks the same only more so—hands stuck in his pants pockets, the same slouch, the same fractured grammar, the same outpouring of philosophy, even the same number (37) he wore as manager of the triumphant New York Yankees.

But this time Stengel, who will be 72 July 30, is manager of the New York Mets, an added starter this year with Houston in the National League. As Yankee manager, he won 10 pennants in 12 years. The Mets have no such hope.

He approaches the monumental problem of fielding another big league team with tremendous pep and a willingness to work long hours, but this time he can't call on the system the Yankees had perfected for mass producing stars.

But he is hopeful.

"What team has this opportunity?" he asked of no one in particular and then answered the question:

"Who are our regulars? They don't know. We will carry 25 players and, if they put out, they can make the team. Besides, there's a better chance here than on the other clubs.

"It's a new organization. If you are old you have a great chance to get a job in the future, in the office or scouting. If you are young—and you have it—all you have to do is to be sure to get into condition.

"We got some fairly good players. Our coaching staff is talking to the players and the players are talking back to the coaching staff, and that's good.

"The spirit of the pitching staff is good. They don't have the handicap the way a pitcher feels on a strange ball club.

"My job is to get spirit on the field. Everybody says it takes five years to put a ball club together but the clubs in the National League hope we can do it under that. They need a good club in the big city.

"The owners are high lass people in sportsmanship. But, now, can I be successful with the players?"

He is reputed to be back in baseball after a year as a bank vice president in Glendale, Calif., only because of his close friendship with George Weiss, who was general manager of the Yankees during Casey's long reign, and, like Casey, was finally cast adrift.

Stengel turned down several big league offers, but finally gave in to Weiss for a salary reputed to be around $50,000. Money was not a big object with him, as he has independent means.

For at least the first season, Stengel and his Mets will be playing at the Polo Grounds, former home of the New York Giants, just across the East River from Yankee Stadium. If anyone can field a rival attraction to the Yankees and Mickey Mantle and Roger Maris, it is undoubtedly the Old Professor, Casey Stengel.

Physician Scores Upset In Santa Anita Handicap

ARCADIA, Calif. (AP)—Physician, a rank outsider who ran as an entry with Prove It, and Olden Times, scored a spectacular upset Saturday with a 2½-length victory in the 25th running of the $145,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

Physician, a 5-year-old gelding who probably would have been a 100-1 shot if he had run alone, came tearing out of nowhere in the stretch and was pulled away from Olden Times and the favored Four-and-Twenty at the wire.

Four-and-Twenty, a 3-5 choice, was third. Sparrow Castle, a 16-1 shot, was fourth.

Physician, who had won two minor stakes at the nearby Pomona track, covered the mile and one-quarter in 2 minute 02 3-5 over a track rated as good.

Physician's owners, Mr. and Mrs. Lynn Boice, said the horse almost was kept out of the race.

Physician won $47,776 last year but had won only $3,700 this meeting before Saturday. This victory was worth $100,000.

Olden Times picked up $20,000 for his second-place finish and Four-and-Twenty won $15,000. Sparrow Castle earned $10,000.

Yorky Takes 2nd Win In Widener Run

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Calumet Farm's Yorky stormed to the front turning into the home stretch and held on to win the $134,800 Widener Handicap at Hialeah Saturday. Mrs. Katherine Price's Florida-bred Carry Back closed with his usual rush to finish second by a neck.

Yorky, carrying 120 pounds and given a masterful ride by the veteran Steve Brooks, ran the mile and a quarter in 2:02 on a fast track and won this rich race for the second year in a row.

It was his first victory since the Widener of 1961.

Calumet's Beau Prince, an entry with Yorky, was fourth in a field of 12, a neck behind Ambiopoise.

The Calumet entry was second choice to the even money favorite, Carry Back, and returned $9.60, $3.40 and $3.10 in the $2 mutuels. Carry Back, under top weight of 127 pounds, paid $2.80 and $2.40. Ambiopoise, carrying 121 pounds, paid $4.60.

It was the eighth time in 25 runnings of the Widener that Calumet has won and Yorky enriched his owners by $87,620. Other Calumet winners were Bull Lea, sire of Yorky, Armed (twice), Coaltown, and Bardstown (twice).

Intentionally's recent victory in the Palm Beach Handicap at Hialeah was the fourth in that race for trainer Johnny Nerud. He won with Delegate in 1948 and with Switch on in 1956 and 1957.

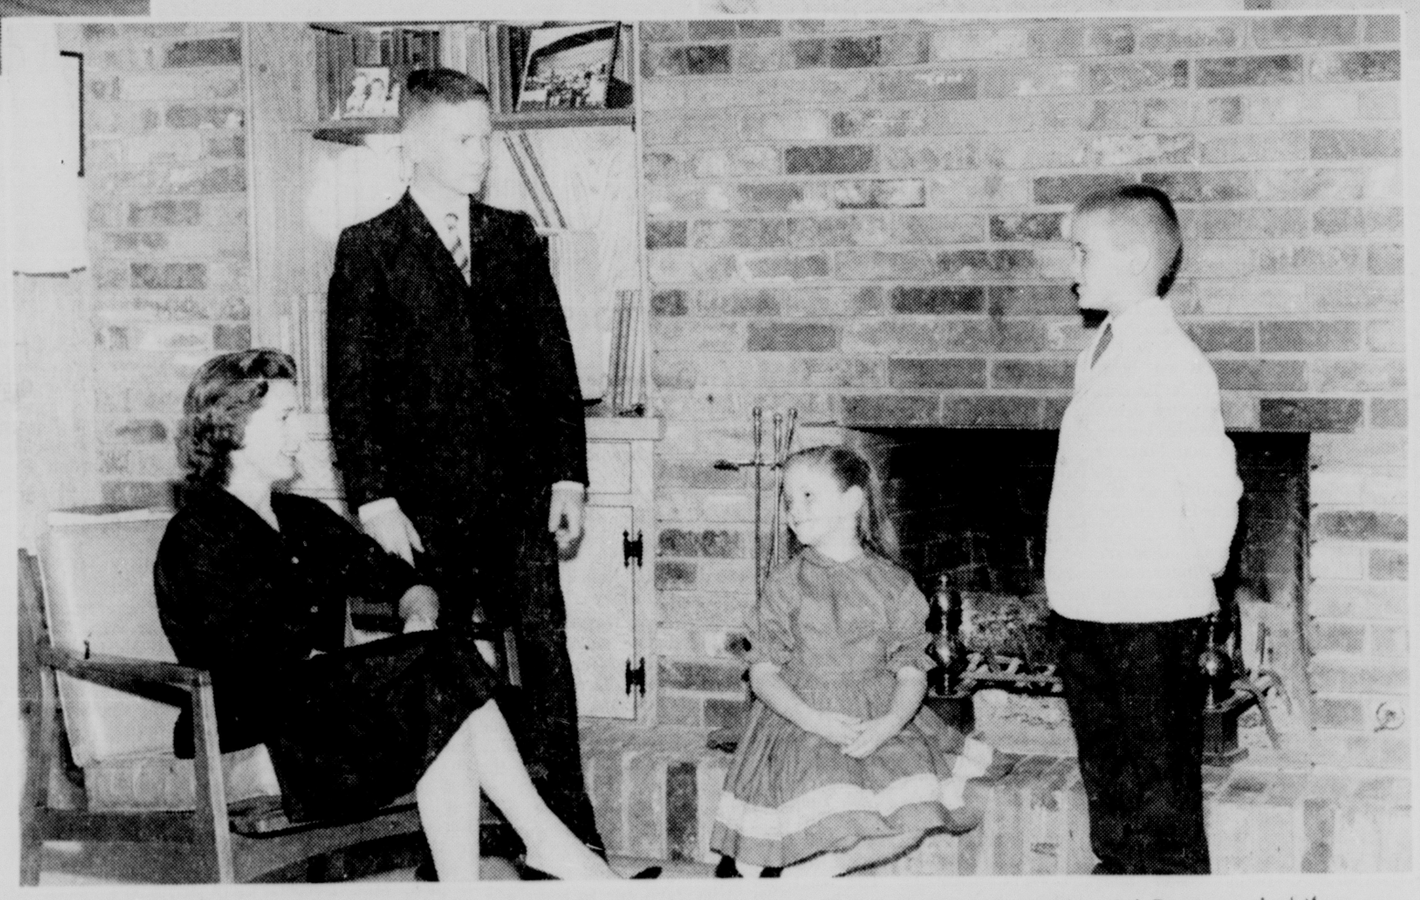
Established in their new home are Mr. and Mrs. Marion Lewis and 17-month-old son, Mac. Pictured in the living room of the home, located at 900 Middleton in Jamar Heights are Mrs. Lewis and son.

At right: Newcomer to Monroe is Mrs. Duane K. McCarter, who with her husband, Dr. McCarter has established residence at 1133 S. Grand. Mrs. McCarter is the former Sandra Jean Hatten, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Audis Hatten of Oak Grove. Dr. McCarter, who is chief of staff at Conway Memorial Hospital, is formerly of Topeka, Kansas. The couple was married in late December at the Danforth Chapel of the University of Kansas in Lawrence, Kansas.



Pictured in the spacious family room of their new home at 2201 Kentwood are Mrs. Ed Routt and children, Rusty, Deborah and Alan, who with Mr. Routt, recently returned to Monroe from Dallas, Texas. The newest member of the family is Lacy, three-weeks-old daughter, who was born since the family arrived here.

Below at left: Mrs. John McCarthy Ward, prior to her marriage Saturday, February 17 in Jesus the Good Shepherd Catholic Church, was Miss Sue Cauthorn Dickard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Dickard of this city. Mr. Ward is the son of the late Zeb Ward III of Dallas, Texas and the late Mrs. Mabel McCarthy Ward of Monroe. After a wedding trip to Florida the couple will be at home in Monroe.

Below at right: Solemnized Saturday, February 24 in the First Baptist Church of West Monroe was the wedding of Miss Judy Kay Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ward, and Jerry Lane Stovall, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lane Stovall, all of West Monroe. The couple will reside in Baton Rouge until Mr. Stovall's graduation from Louisiana State University, after which they will establish a home in New Orleans.

Engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Alice Gobble to Archie R. Gilliland Jr. is announced today by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Gobble of Monroe. The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Gilliland Sr., also of this city. The wedding will be an event of March 30 at 8 p.m. in Highland Park Baptist Church.

On Dit'

by Denise

Well, one would have to be as out of touch as Rip van Winkle not to know that this week John Glenn orbited the earth and Conrad Birdie came to Monroe. Both were highly successful ventures. The opening of "Bye, Bye, Birdie" at Strauss Playhouse Thursday night, marking the first amateur production of the musical, lived up to expectations: no mean feat.

Music and comedy and cast contribute to a fun evening: light, gay, young. Included among the players are a number who have participated in previous Little Theatre productions and several new faces, equally able. Among real, unsung heroes of "Birdie" are crew members. Sets and costumes are the most lavish yet seen hereabouts. A few rough spots which beset the first night's presentation have doubtless been ironed out.

"Bye, Bye, Birdie" will be presented twice today: matinee at two - fifteen this afternoon, and in the evening at eight - fifteen. Regular night performances will continue through the week at eight-fifteen.

The white covered refreshment table was centered with a bare branch hung with myriad tiny feathered bird figures. White Fuji mums were massed at the base. Over a hundred guests attended the party after the opening night show.

Traditional Mardi Gras symbols and colors were used in invitations mailed this week to Bayou DeSiard country club members announcing the Maskers' Dance Saturday, March 3, beginning at eight in the evening. The invitations, designed by ASKLEY HAMILTON, were mailed to adult members, who may obtain extras from the club office for college age young people, high school seniors, or out of town guests. The cards are to be presented at the door on Saturday. This party, gayest of the year at Bayou DeSiard, annually attracts a crowd of costumed merry-makers.

For the first time in several years, states chairman MARIE LOUISE SNELLINGS members of the club Board of Directors, who serve as dukes, will be attired in colorful court costumes. Maids are young girls in their first year out of high school, daughters of club members. This year for the first time the queen will be chosen at the ball, with the girls themselves pulling ribbons and the one drawing the gold charm being crowned queen. Presentation of the court will take place at nine Saturday evening, with dancing to follow to the music of the Last Straws, New Orleans band.

A George Washington theme was carried out at the bridge luncheon given Tuesday by JEAN HUENEFELD honoring FRANKIE CANNON, who is to move to Jackson, Mississippi the latter part of this week. A centerpiece of red and white camellias was used on the dining room table, with silhouettes of the first president placed on the white cloth. Small flags and hatchets and red, white and blue napkins were appointments on individual tables, and tallys were ornamented with eagles and flags.

Spaghetti with a choice of salads and cherry parfait for dessert was served to twenty-four ladies. Five tables of players enjoyed bridge games, with prizes of spring bulbs awarded to CISSY RYAN, high; ANN BELL, second; and VERA KELSO, travelling prize.

Wednesday morning, NELL FAULK was hostess for a seated coffee, also honoring Frankie. Sixteen guests gathered at the Faulk home for the party. Refreshments were served from the living room coffee table, which was decorated with a brandy snifter filled with fresh violets. Hot cheese and asparagus rolls and assorted sweets were passed with coffee.

Here this week en route from her home in Monterey, California, to Europe, has been JEAN FLATTERY, who is visiting her sister, LETA OLIVER. Jean will spend some time with her son, LIEUTENANT THOMAS FLATTERY, and his family in London before proceeding to Majorca for an extended stay. Wednesday Leta honored her visitor at luncheon at Bayou DeSiard country club. The party was held on the porch, where the table was centered with pink and white camellias and pink flowering quince. There were nine guests. Several informal parties have been planned for Jean.

Honoring her houseguests, LOUISE COOK of Albany, Georgia, and MARY GREY of New Orleans, CRARYS SMITH was hostess at an evening party last night. The hostess wore a spring dress of pale green silk, while Louise chose sky blue silk, and Mary a black silk sheath . . . The refreshment table featured an all-white spring arrangement using flowering peach, tulips, and Oriental magnolias. Oysters, shrimp, and assorted finger sandwiches were on the buffet served to friends who called between eight and ten.

For her fourteenth birthday, SANDRA CALLOWAY invited a group of twenty boys and girls for a supper dance at home. A Valentine theme was evident in red gladioli decorating the mantel and red and white cloth covering the dining table. The red and white birthday cake and cupid and heart formed the centerpiece. Hamburgers, potato salad and cake comprised the menu . . . The group danced to records, with a Twist contest highlighting the evening. A Twist record was awarded to first place winner PAM SHIPP; while PAT STOUT received a heart - shaped box of candy for second place.

Tuesday CLYDE WESTROM marked his fourth birthday with a circus party at home. Bubble pipes were favors given to fifteen children, who played outside with wheel toys and bubbles before going in for a picture show and ice cream and cake.

Twist contests are all the rage with young people's parties. MELANIE MILLSAPS' fifth birthday luncheon featured a contest, with MARION M'HENRY winning first. Twelve children and seven adults attended the party, which was held on the porch at Bayou DeSiard country club. Other games included Pin - the - Tail - on - the-Donkey, with JEFF COURTMAN and KATHY KUTNER coming closest; and a drawing contest with DEDE CALE and JACKIE RATLIFF, prizewinners . . . The birthday cake, encircled with camellias served as centerpiece. Favors at each place included tops for boys, make-up purses for girls, and hats for everyone.

For our poem today, these words on "Good and Evil" from Gibran's "The Prophet":

Of the good in you I can speak, but not of the evil. For what is evil but good tortured by its own hunger and thirst?

You are good when you are one with yourself. Yet when you are not one with yourself you are not evil.

You are good when you are fully awake in your speech,

Yet you are not evil when you sleep while your tongue staggers without purpose. Even stumbling speech may strengthen a weak tongue.

You are good when you walk to our goal firmly and with bold steps.

Yet you are not evil when you go thither limping. Even those who limp go not backward.

But you who are strong and swift, see that you do not limp before the lame, deeming it kindness.

You are good in countless ways, and you are not evil when you are not good, You are only loitering and sluggard.

Pity that the stags cannot teach swiftness to the turtles.

In your longing for your giant self lies your goodness; and that longing is in all of you.

But in some of you that longing is a torrent rushing with might to the sea, and in others it is a flat stream that loses itself in angles and bends and lingers before it reaches the shore.

But let not him who longs much to say to him who longs little, "Wherefore are you slow and halting?"

For the truly good ask not the naked, "Where is your garment?" nor the houseless "What has befallen your house?"

Mrs. Hinton Fetes Bosco HD

Mrs. H. L. Hinton entertained members of the Bosco Home Demonstration Club in her home February 20.

Mrs. W. L. Salisbury reported on the council meeting and Mrs. Roy Hart on family living.

MR. AND MRS. JIMMY CORDELL

MRS. EZA LEE ROARK

Methodist Church Scene Of Roark-Works Vows

A candlelight ceremony solemnized at Brownsville Methodist Chuch united in marriage Miss Doris Nell Works, daughter of Walter Works and the late Mrs. Velma Works of West Monroe, and Eza Lee Roark, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Roark of Jena, on Friday, February 9 at 7 p.m.

The Rev. Troy Garrett officiated at the double ring ceremony in the presence of family members and friends. Two standards of white gladioli and stock alternated with candelabra holding white tapers and southern smilax formed a background for the vows.

Escorted to the altar by her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride was wearing a gown of Alencon lace over satin. She carried a white orchid showered with satin streamers atop a white Bible.

Miss Sharon Wilbanks served as maid of honor. She wore a frock of aqua blue cotton with overskirt of matching organza and carried a bouquet of pink carnations. Bridesmaids were Miss Glenda Roberts, cousin of the bride and Miss Charlotte Moffett, who were dressed identical to the maid of honor. All wore headbands to match their dresses.

Candlelighters were Miss Patsy Turnage, who was also dressed identical to the other attendants, and Clayton Lawrence.

Serving as best man was Jess Bethard. Ushers were Harold Roberts, cousin of the bride and Charles Robinson.

Mrs. Alice Griggs, the bride's grandmother, wore a dusty rose lace over taffeta with pink accessories. An orchid corsage complemented her ensemble. The bridegroom's mother wore a navy blue suit with an orchid corsage.

A reception followed in the church reception room, where the bride's table covered with a pink cutwork cloth was centered with an arrangement of white stock and pink camellias, with pink tapers. The punch bowl and three tiered wedding cake were at opposite ends of the table. Those assisting were Mrs. Luther A. Branch, Mrs. Herbert Cady Jr., Miss Annette Frazier and Mrs. Roy L. Rawls, sister of the bride. Miss Patsy Turnage presided at the guest book.

The couple will reside at 205 South Third Street in West Monroe.

Miro Book Club Sends Delegates To Convention

Spring flowers were used in profusion about the home of Mrs. A. L. Peters in Edgewater Gardens, when she entertained members of the Miro Book Club at their semi - monthly meeting.

Pugh, Mrs. Louis Rolleigh, Mrs. F. L. Smith, Mrs. George Temple, Mrs. C. R. Tidwell , Mrs. R. L. Wood and Mrs. W. M. Greenwell.

Cordell-Toney Nuptials Read In Baptist Church

Vows uniting Miss Marie Toney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Toney, and Jimmy Cordell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Cordell, all of Holly Ridge, were solemnized February 9 at 7 p.m. in Holly Ridge Baptist Church. Rev. Benjamin Jordan performed the double ring ceremony.

Baskets of white gladioli and pompons flanked an arch entwined with comadore greenery, centered with a large white satin bow to form a setting for the exchange of vows. Single aisle candalabras, entwined with myrtle greenery and white pompons held white tapers and in the background were spiral and seven branched candelabra also entwined with myrtle greenery and pompons. Candles were also placed in each window.

Mrs. Philip Kulcke, organist, accompanied Philip Kulcke, who sang "Whither Thou Goest," and "I Love You Truly."

Given in marriage by her father the bride wore a gown of white embroidered lace and net, styled with scalloped neckline and long tapered sleeves. Tiers of net and lace formed the front of the long skirt the back of which in embroidered lace terminated in a chapel train. Her veil was attached to a crown of pearls and her bouquet was a semi - hogarth design of Frenched white carnations, lily of the valley, tulle and white velvet hearts centered with a white orchid, which she carried on a white Bible.

Miss Carolyn Turnage served as maid of honor and bridesmaids were Miss Rosemary Sones and Kay Dean. They wore identical full skirted dresses of light blue silk organza with blue tiara headdresses. Their bouquets of yellow pompon chrysanthemums and yellow velvet streamers were attached to hearts of yellow velvet.

Flower girls were Iris Roddy and Melody Dodson, who were dressed in frocks of light blue polished cotton with tiaras of blue velveteen flowers and leaves. They carried Frosty baskets of white satin and tulle holding rose petals

Serving as best man for the bridegroom was Claude Cordell and ushers were Elvin Russell and Ronald Thompson. Ringbearer was Bruce Crain.

Candlelighters were Miss Joyce Cordell, Miss Vickie Patrick, Johnny Cordell and Allen Crain. Miss Cordell and Miss Patrick wore full skirted frocks of light blue polished cotton with wrist corsages of white pompons.

The bride's mother wore a blue wool model with scoop neckline and three - quarter sleeves and an orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother chose a beige suit with brown fur collar and an orchid corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Patrick. The tiered wedding cake and crystal punch bowl were at opposite ends of the table which was centered with a silver candelabra holding white tapers, based with the attendants' bouquets. Miss Ann Fairley presided at the guest book at a table holding the bride's bouquet and a crystal candelabra and a cluster of white tulle and lily of the valley.

For a wedding trip to Shreveport the bride changed to a magenta wool suit with black accessories and the orchid corsage from her bouquet. Mrs. Cordell graduated from Holly Ridge high school and Bisn Mathis Institute. Mr. Cordell graduated from Holly Ridge and attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

Romanticism In Music Topic For Fine Arts

Fine Arts Club members were entertained for the February meeting Monday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Max Kulcke, with Mrs. B. L. Mulhern and Mrs. F. O. Seymour, assisting hostesses.

Colorful arrangements of spring flowers were placed on the coffee table and piano in the music room. Central decor in the den was an arrangement of King Alfred jonquils and cut pine in a silver pedestal bowl.

Mrs. W. B. Inabnet, president, gave a welcome and presided over a brief business session. Continuing the study for the year on "Our Artistic Heritage," John Cale gave a comprehensive discussion of Romanticism in Music.

Vocal selections on the program were The Prologue from I Pagliacci by Leoncavallo, sung by Davis Bingham and Serenade by Schubert, sung by Mrs. J. Norman Coon. A recording of Evening Star from Tannhauser by Wagner, sung by Veo Gray, accompanied by Ronnie Brothers, was played.

At conclusion of the program members were invited into the dining area for refreshments. Flowering quince and red camellias arranged heart shape graced the table which was overlaid with an embroidered white linen cloth. Mrs. Mulhern presided at the silver tea and coffee service, and Mrs. Kulcke and Mrs. Seymour served other refreshments.

Members present in addition to those named were Mrs. B. D. Albritton, Miss Eleona Brinsmade, J. Norman Coon, Mrs. Dolly Douglas, Leon Hammonds, Mrs. F. Everett Lawson, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mayo, Miss Louise Moore, Miss Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Newman, Miss Cliffie Olmstead, Miss May Read, F. O. Seymour and Mrs. W. J. Veazey.

Sue Cauthorn Dickard, John M. Ward Exchange Vows In Catholic Church

Jesus the Good Shepherd Catholic Church was scene of the ceremony at 5 p.m. Saturday, February 17 which united in marriage Miss Sue Cauthorn Dickard and John McCarthy Ward. Father Richard Fale officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Dickard of Monroe and Mr. Ward is the son of the late Zeb Ward III of Dallas, Texas and the late Mrs. Mabel McCarthy Ward, Monroe.

Large arrangements of white gladioli, white stock and pompon chrysanthemums were used in twin vases on the altar, at either side of which stood seven branch candelabra holding white tapers. Completing the setting for the exchange of vows were spiral candelabra with myriads of white tapers, entwined with smilax.

Preceding the ceremony appropriate music was presented by Mrs. B. D. Allbritton, organist and Mrs. Estelle Sanders, soloist. Selections included Ave Maria and Panis Angelicus and Lohengrin's Wedding March.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a princess silhouette gown of candlelight silk peau de soie, styled with modified bateau neckline of Rosepoint lace. Tiny self-covered buttons extended down the back of the fitted bodice with three-quarter sleeves and the full skirt featured a sunburst of unpressed pleats which extended into a cathedral train. Her full length veil was of Brussels lace mounted on illusion and her gloves were of candlelight kid. She carried an arrangement of white Japhet orchids and lily of the valley atop a white prayer book, with an heirloom lace handkerchief carried by her mother on her wedding day. Her only adornment was a strand of pearls, a gift of the bridegroom.

ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Nelson Abell, who served as matron of honor, wore a frock of empress blue lace and silk organza, styled with fitted bodice of Alencon lace with scoop neckline and a bell shaped skirt. She wore matching pumps and a headpiece of matching empress blue silk organza petals to which a nose veil was attached. She carried a cascade of white tulips with white velvet ribbon. Mrs. Aileen Guthrie, bridesmaid, was dressed identically to the honor attendant.

Flower girls, Pattie Riley and Suzanne Pierpont, wore dresses of white silk organza with applique of tiny white roses at the waistline and encircling the scalloped lace trimmed collars. They carried old fashioned nosegays of forget-me-nots and stephanotis.

Serving as best man for the bridegroom was his brother-in-law, Daniel Gallaher of Augusta, Georgia. Groomsman was John Pierpont and ushers were Fred Huenefeld, John Henry Vaughn, Julius Cahn, Bob Jones, Jim Tarver and Bennie Andrews.

For the occasion the bride's mother, Mrs. Dickard, wore a gown of oriental blue silk chiffon with scoop neck, draped bodice and three-quarter sleeves. The slim skirt in ballerina length featured side floating panels which extended to the hemline. Her hat was of oriental blue velvet and flowers and she wore a corsage of white orchids. The bridegroom's sister, Mrs. Dan Gallaher, wore a beige chiffon sheath with cape sleeves and satin midriff, and a hat of beige silk organza petals. Her corsage was also of white orchids.

RECEPTION

A white and antique gold cupid epergne holding a crystal bowl with an arrangement of white stock, stephanotis and tulips centered the punch table which was covered with a white embroidered and lace cloth. On either side of the epergne were matching candelabra holding white tapers. Presiding at the punch bowls at each end of the table were Mrs. James A. Noe and Mrs. Charles Reid.

Other members of the houseparty assisting in the courtesies were Mrs. H. K. Touchstone, Mrs. J. W. Swift, Mrs. Nelson Abell Sr., Mrs. Frank Jones, Mrs. Floyd Taylor, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Mrs. John Pierpont, Mrs. Roy Johns, Mrs. Gregor Goethals, and Mrs. Clem Dickard. Rice bags were presented the guests by Becky Huenefeld and Lisa Frazier.

FLORIDA TRIP

Mrs. Ward attended Northeast Louisiana State College and Louisiana State University and is a member of Delta Delta Delta. Mr. Ward attended Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe, Tulane University in New Orleans and Heidelberg University in Heidelberg, Germany. His fraternity is Phi Kappa Sigma.

Among the out-of-town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Bernhard Rothchild of Shreveport; Sibley Ward Jr., Little Rock, Ark., Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Gallaher, Miss Helen Hunter, Augusta, Georgia; Mr. and Mrs. Francis Grant, Miss Gay Ellis and Mr. and Mrs. Irving Ziedman, of Shreveport and Mr. and Mrs. James A. Noe Jr., of New Orleans.

Judy Kay Ward, Jerry Lane Stovall Marry In Baptist Church Saturday

In a setting of white gladioli and cathedral tapers in wrought iron candelabra garlanded with Southern smilax, Miss Judy Kay Ward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Ward, 401 Audubon Drive, became the bride of Jerry Lane Stovall, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lane Stovall, 300 Belmont Drive.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Dr. Clifton R. Tennison, Saturday, February 24 at 3 p.m. in the First Baptist church of West Monroe. A large fan shaped arrangement of white gladioli flanked by candelabra holding the white tapers, formed a background for the exchange of vows.

Ronnie Brothers, organist, presented a program of nuptial music and accompanied Bill Denton as he sang "Because," "I Love You Truly," and "The Lord's Prayer."

Wearing a princess style gown of white taffeta, which featured a circular chapel length train, the bride was given in marriage by her father. Appliques of Alencon lace, reembroidered with seed pearls and sequins accented the scoop neckline and encircled the lower part of the full skirt. Her fingertip veil of French illusion fell from a crown of seed pearls and rhinestones and her bouquet was a cascade arrangement of feathered chrysanthemums centered with a white orchid.

Miss Dealia Ann Miller, who served as maid of honor, wore a gown of mint green brocade, styled with sweetheart neckline, fitted bodice and bell shape skirt. A self material rose accented the back waistline and her headdress was a large rose of green brocade and silk organza. She carried a cascade of white pompon chrysanthemums and green dracenia leaves, with ribbon and nylon tulle of dress matching shade.

Bridesmaids, dressed identically to the maid of honor were Miss Sally McBride of Lafayette; Miss Jane Francis, Baton Rouge, and Miss Pat Stovall, sister of the bridegroom.

Flower girls were Miss Sandra Jean Ward, sister of the bride, and Miss Margaret Sue McLemore. They wore identical frocks of mint green silk organza over matching cotton satin, styled with puff sleeves and wide Obi sashes. They wore hats of green silk organza, centered with a rose and carried miniature replicas of the bridesmaids' bouquets.

Tommy Lolley attended Mr. Stovall as best man and groomsmen - ushers were Sammy Odom, of Minden; Mickey Mangham of Baton Rouge; Buddy Soefker of Memphis, Tenn., and Leon Miletello Jr. Troy Hamilton acted as ring bearer.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ward was wearing a sheath dress of pink Chantilly lace, with appliques of lace etching the round neckline. She wore matching hat and shoes, white gloves and a corsage of feathered chrysanthemums. Mrs. Stovall, mother of the bridegroom, wore a blue silk sheath with matching accessories and a corsage of feathered chrysanthemums.

A reception followed in the church social room. The lace-covered bride's table was centered with a mass arrangement of white roses and chrysanthemums, flanked with white tapers in silver candelabra. The wedding cake was served by Mrs. Quinten McLemore and Mrs. Milton Fine of Hattiesburg, Miss., and alternating at the punch bowl were Mrs. E. J. Miller and Mrs. George Cox. Miss Jo Ann Allen of Alexandria, presided at the guest book and tea girls were Miss Bobbie Faye Irvin, Miss Judy Wilhite and Miss Diane Machnik.

For a wedding trip to New Orleans the bride changed to a bone silk sheath with jacket of matching lace over silk. She wore a green hat and gloves and other accessories of bone and her corsage was a white orchid.

Mrs. Stovall was graduated from West Monroe high school and attended Louisiana State University and B.M.I. business school. She is a member of Pi Beta Phi sorority. Also a graduate of West Monroe high school, Mr. Stovall is presently attending L.S.U. in Baton Rouge, where the couple will reside until his graduation after which they will be at home in New Orleans.

Out - of - town guests included Mrs. Troy Sumrall, New Braunfels, Tex., Mrs. Milton Fine, Hattiesburg, Miss., Mrs. Tom Hornburg, Refugio, Tex., Mrs. Joanne Allen, Alexandria; Mr. and Mrs. George Watts, Tallulah; Mr. and Mrs. Bill Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Broussard, of Shreveport; Mike Morgan, Steve Ward, Miss Ann Mire, Bobby Flurly and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Taylor, all of Baton Rouge; Richard Choppuis, Lafayette; Miss Melinda Walker, Ringgold; David Henderson, Wichita, Kans., and Charles Vernon, Alexandria.

The couple left for a wedding trip to New Orleans and on their return will be at home in Hattiesburg, where Mr. Carter is attending Mississippi Southern College. Mrs. Carter was graduated in January from Louisiana State University and is a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority.

MRS. KENNETH DOYLE PINTON

Miss Landreaux Becomes Bride Of Kenneth Pinton

White gladioli in cathedral vases and tapered candles decorated the altar of St. Paschal's Catholic Church for the wedding of Miss Ethel Lee Landreaux and Kenneth Doyle Pinton. Father Vitus Dushinsky performed the double ring ceremony at 5:30 p.m. February 14.

The bride is the daughter of J. L. Landreaux, Rt. 4, West Monroe, and the late Mrs. Landreaux and Mr. Pinton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Pinton of Rt. 3, West Monroe.

Given in marriage by her father the bride was wearing a gown of delustered satin, fashioned on princess lines with a boat neckline and elbow length sleeves. Appliques of lace accented the bodice and were repeated on the bell skirt, the back of which was released into a chapel train. Her tiered veil of imported illusion fell from a tiara of pearlized orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white roses.

Ralph Kilpatrick served as best man and ushers were Roger Pinton, M. T. Austin, Gail Harkins and Jack Oglesbee. David Austin acted as ring bearer.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the First National Bank social room. The bride's table covered in red linen was overlaid with a white hand crocheted banquet cloth. Mrs. Gene Tarver served the tiered heart - shaped cake and Mrs. Billy Jo McKinney presided at the punch bowl. The bride's book was in charge of Miss Jane Hammons.

For a wedding trip to Gulfport, Biloxi and New Orleans, the bride changed to a canary yellow silk frock with matching sweater and accessories of black patent. Upon their return the couple will be at home at 706 Rochelle Street in Monroe. Mrs. Pinton was graduated from St. Matthew's high school, and Mr. Pinton, a graduate of Ouachita Parish high school attended Northeast Louisiana State College.

Couple Wed In Church Ceremony

Miss Jerry Lenell Lawrence and Ronald Leon Mock exchanged wedding vows February 14 at 7:30 p.m. in the Baskin Methodist-Presbyterian Church. Rev J. R. Sheppard officiated at the double ring ceremony.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Lawrence Jr. and Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Mock, all of Baskin.

Candelabra entwined with ivy and pink and white roses flanked the altar where green fern formed a background. The altar also was decorated with pink and white rosebuds and ivy and two wedding bells at the sanctuary entrance completed the setting.

Appropriate music was played by Miss Kathlyn Goforth, pianist, who also accompanied Mrs. J. W. Jarrette sas she sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full length gown styled with Chantilly lace over satin bodice and skirt of nylon organza and lace. The gown was designed with scalloped neckline, long tapered sleeves and a half circle of white satin roses accenting the back. Her veil of silk illusion fell from a teardrop pearl tiara. She wore a strand of cultured pearls and carried a white Bible topped with a bouquet of white carnations.

Miss Judy Lawrence, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. She wore a street length gown of pink cotton satin with overskirt of pink organza and a headdress of pink tulle. Her accessories were white and her bouquet of pink carnations was in the form of a cross.

Dressed identically to the honor attendant were the bridesmaid, Miss Donna Meyers, and candlelighters, Miss Linda Mock, sister of the bridegroom and Miss Pam Stephenson, cousin of the bridegroom, and the flower girl, Miss Rosemary McBroom.

Serving as best man for his brother was James Mock and groomsmen-ushers were Johnny Lawrence, brother of the bride and Charles Mock, and Harry Mock Jr., cousins of the bridegroom.

RECEPTION

Following the ceremony a reception was held in the reception room of the Baptist church. The lace-covered bride's table was centered with an arrangement of camellias. Mrs. Howard Watson, aunt of the bride, served the tiered wedding cake and Mrs. Emmett Stephenson, aunt of the bridegroom, presided at the punch bowl.

For a wedding trip to Hot Springs, Arkansas, the bride changed to a rust colored suit with black accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

Mrs. Mock graduated from Baskin high school and was attending Northeast Louisiana State College prior to her marriage. Mr. Mock is also a graduate of Baskin high school and of Northeast Louisiana State College. He will depart soon for Fort Lee, Virginia, where he has been assigned as a lieutenant in the army.

Bagwell, Mrs. Tommy Baskin, Mrs. Mickey Ferlicca and three guests, Mrs. Johnny Russell, Mrs. T. A. Landrum and Mrs. James Owen.

Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Owen became new members of the club. After recreation conducted by Mrs. Sturdivant the club adjourned to meet March 19 at 9:30 a.m. with Mrs. Paul North.

TO WED MARCH 9 are Miss Susan Lucille Chatham and Pfc. Marvin Arnold Davis, whose forthcoming marriage is announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy J. Chatham of Chatham. The future bridegroom is the son of the late J. A. Davis and Mrs. Pearl Davis, of Chatham. The ceremony will be performed in the Methodist Church at Chatham at 7:30 p.m.

Guests Attend Sterlington HDC At Sharp Home

Mrs. J. R. Troeltzsch and Miss Gwen Kennon were guests of the Sterlington Home Demonstration club when it met February 16 in the home of Mrs. S. O. Sharp.

Mrs. Frank Mardis presided over the meeting and opened with a poem, "Bomb Scare." Leader reports were given on Health and Safety by Mrs. L. R. McLain and on Family Life by Mrs. Philip Spencer.

"Planning Low Cost Meals" was the subject of a demonstration given by Mrs. S. O. Sharp and she served grilled cheese sandwiches and quick caramel pie to the group.

Recreation was conducted by Mrs. Philip Spencer with the prize going to Mrs. B. W. Wall. The hostess prize was won by Mrs. Mardis. Members present were Mrs. McClain, Mrs. Fred Larimer, Mrs. Wall, Mrs. C. R. Alexander, Mrs. Mary Jones, Mrs. J. M. Pratt, Mrs. Mardis, Mrs. O. H. Manhart, and Mrs. Spencer.

The next meeting will be Friday March 16 in the home of Mrs. B. W. Wall.

Neville Y-Teen Chapter Plans Supper-Dance

Plans for forthcoming activities were made by Neville Chapter of Y-Teens at a meeting Monday, February 19 in the school.

During the business session plans were discussed for a spaghetti supper and dance to be held March 10 at 6:30 p.m.

Plans were also made for underclassmen to attend Y-Teen Day March 17 in Shreveport. Miss Suzanne Moseley was elected to represent Neville at the Inter-club Convention and be a candidate for office of state secretary. The convention will be held in Bunkie, La. on April 7 and 8.

IT'S THE 'WISP'® FOR WONDERFUL HEARING!

You must see and hear this mere wisp of a Sonotone hearing aid to believe it. Half the size of a lipstick — women cover it with a curl, men just tuck it behind the ear. The smallest Sonotone ever, it weighs only ¼ of an ounce (aid shown without tube or eartip).

You owe it to your hearing to see the wonderful "Wisp."

Amusements

NOW SHOWING HERE

'Kings Of Kings' Considered Epic

The Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer production of "King of Kings" should be a "must" for everyone. It is a magnificent motion picture epic of the greatest story, the life of Christ.

Produced in 70 mm color and Super - Technorama, the scale on which it was produced certainly must have been one of the largest ever attempted by the titans of the movie industry. At any rate, the result gives that impression.

Now showing at the Jim Theatre, the picture stars Jeffrey Hunter as Jesus Christ, Robert Ryan and John the Baptist and Siobhan McKenna as the Virgin Mother. The cast literally includes thousands.

FILMED IN SPAIN

Filmed in various parts of Spain, the vastness of the area reflects the open spaces which must have faced those living during the times just before and during the life of Christ on earth.

Samuel Bronston, producer of the film, used a narrator to keep the continuity of the story. The producer was also pointed in keeping in the background, as much as possible, lesser plots.

The filming of the Sermon on the Mount, which actually had 81 individual camera setups and more than 7,000 extras, probably was the highlight of the film — even surpassing the Crucifixion —as far as technicalities were concerned. This particular scene was shot near Madrid, considered one of the most spectacular areas for motion picture filming. While the picture moved swiftly most of the time, there were times that it seemed to drag.

ANTI-CLIMAX

However, following the scenes from the Sermon on the Mount, the remainder of the film seemed to be anti-climax.

From a critical viewpoint, the photography far surpassed all other aspects of the production. The simplicity surrounding the birth of the Christ Child and the final hours of his life on earth were as well drawn and impressive as the pageantry of the Roman rulers and the vistas of the wilderness.

Miss McKenna was superb as the Virgin Mother who, although knowing in her heart the suffering that was to come, still through expressions on her face showed the pride and feeling of happiness which she must have felt. I know that I have seen the actress in films before, although I can't remember them. but, I'm sure I'll not forget her portrayal in this one.

Curtain Call

By BB STRON

Opening night for "Bye Bye Birdie" was a gala occasion at the Strauss Playhouse, to say the least. Slade Brown and Jane arrived, together with Mavis and Joe Powell.

Excitement prevailed as Robert H. Evans welcomed the Browns on behalf of the Monroe Little Theatre, and they were given an ovation. These guests were entertained at a small dinner party prior to the play.

APPRECIATION

Everyone was glad to see Miss Lallage Feazel back for the opening. Lallage is such a hard-working Little Theatre member, and has done such a terrific job on publicity, that we feel we can't do without her too long at a time. She even attended to her job while she had to be in Memphis, and we appreciate her immensely.

Hostesses for the remainder of the run of "Bye Bye Birdie" are: Monday, February 26: Mrs. R. E. Major, Jr., Mrs. H. K. Touchstone Sr., Mrs. Ed Hislop Jr., and Mrs. A. J. Lester; Tuesday, February 27: Miss Kathryn Sloan, Mrs. L. Underwood Fourmy, Mrs. L. Jack Hays, and Mrs. A. B. Gregory Jr.; Wednesday, February 28: Mrs. A. Milling Bernstein, Mrs. Thomas Frazier, Mrs. Duncan Cook and Mrs. W. E. Leigh; Thursday, March 1: Mrs. Travis Oliver Jr., Mrs. Ted Allen, Mrs. H. G. McDonald and Mrs. Haydn Cutler.

THANKS

Our thanks to the father - in-law of Patsy Pickett and to Clayton Boyette for the use of the conductor's uniform, and to William Ober for the motorcycle jacket worn by Birdie. Many thanks also to Ida Sophie Laudenheimer for the furs worn by Gloria Rasputin in the play.

Just so you will know how highbrow we are, we want to report that we have three Phd's in our backstage crew. They have been working hard on the construction of the scenery and in moving scenery, and are Dr. John Goorley, Dr. Beryl Franklin and Dr. DePoe. Everyone likes to get into the act. Aiso, we are glad to add that Bid Causey has been helping out backstage. Bid has always helped us whenever we needed him. You will remember that he has been in many plays and is a former board member.

ARRIVAL

The scrim has arrived. This may not sound like news to you, but be assured it is. It was ordered from the Oklahoma Scenic Company, and they were unable to furnish it, and it had to be ordered from Italy. It arrived in New York by air mail, cleared customs, was air mailed to Monroe, and arrived in the nick of time! (The show must go on!!)

Before closing rehearsals, Marilyn Taylor and Jean Hamilton were among the visitors to the set. An unexpected guest was Richard Clark's father, H. M. Clark, from Monahan, Texas. He is here to see the play and really surprised Richard and Pat.

Between the matinee this afternoon and the evening performance, the Little Theatre will serve supper to the cast and crew, which will afford them the opportunity to relax somewhat between shows, without having to remove makeup, dash home, etc.

There is still time for you to call the box office (FAirfax 3-1235) and make your reservation to see "Bye Bye Birdie."

Do it now!

Stamp News

Stamp collectors and cover enthusiasts have an opportunity to add an historic "first" to their albums.

Swiss oceanographer Jacques Piccard, who holds the world's deep sea diving record of 35,800 feet, will dispatch a cache (which he designed himself) from the watery depths when his newest vehicle, the Mesocaph (middle-depth ship) makes her maiden descent next year.

To help finance the project, which at present is planned without governmental aid, Piccard has agreed to return a cover to all who send a self - addressed envelope and $2 to the Piccard Mesocaph Fund, Kings County Trust Co., 342 Fulton St., Brooklyn, N.Y.

To commemorate the centenary of the city of Nassau, a special issue of two stamps has been issued by the Bahamas. The 8 pence green shows the Christ Church Cathedral. The 10 pence purple depicts the Nassau Public Library. Each stamp includes the Annigoni portrait of Queen Elizabeth with the St. Edward's Crown.

The statute establishing the city of Nassau was issued by Queen Victoria in 1861. It stipulated in part . . . "And whereas we have resolved in pursuance of all powers and authorities whatsoever by statute or otherwise however vested in us to establish within the territorial limits of the said late Diocese of Jamaica a certain new separate and distinct Diocese to be called "The Diocese of Nassau .... and do ordain that the whole town of Nassau aforesaid shall henceforth be a city and be called the City of Nassau."

From Cyprus comes word that a new definitive set in 13 values will soon be issued. Each stamp will be inscribed in Greek and Turkish. The designs and values are as follows: 3 mills — iron age vase; 5 mills — grapes; 10 mills — head of Apollo; 15 mills — Agia Sophia; 25 mills — St. Barnabus Church; 30 mills — Sanctuary of Apollo; 35 mills — Head of Aphrodite; 40 mills — Ski at Troodos; 50 mills — Salamis Gymnasium; 100 mills — Hala Sultan Tekke; 250 mills — Moufflon; 1 lira — St. Hilarion.

'ONE, TWO, THREE'

Wilder Comedy Opening Today

"One, Two, Three," Billy Wilder's whacky comedy about an American heirness and an East Berlin beatnik, will open today at the Paramount Theatre, through United Artists release.

Starring James Cagney, Horst Buchholz, Pamela Tiffin and Arlene Francis, "One, Two, Three" was filmed in Panavision, in Berlin.

Co - starred in the comedy are Howard St. John and Lilo Pulver. I. A. L. Diamond, whose previous collaborations with Billy Wilder include "Some Like It Hot" and the Academy Award winning "The Apartment," has again teamed with Billy to write an even Wilder story — in another "Oscar" try.

In the film, James Cagney has one of his most frantic roles playing an American soft drink executive whose campaign to sell his product behind the Iron Curtain (now a wall!) blows up in his face when his boss' beautiful daughter — Miss Tiffin — becomes involved with a shaggy East Berliner: Buchholz.

The pretty teenaged Tiffin has until now been seen mostly on the covers of national magazines and in one other film; now "One, Two, Three" provides an important showcase for her talent as well as her beauty.

Miss Pulver also is revealed in a different kind of role than that which she usually portrays as one of Europe's outstanding actresses . . . and Arlene Francis' TV fans will be delighted with her portrayal of Cagney's long suffering, slow burning wife — who boils over when he begins to cook up something more than sauerbraten with his blond secretary.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Spring Touch Seen In Flower Display

By MRS. JOHN TOLAR

The Highland Park Garden Club of Monroe presented the T. V. and Garden Center Show last week. Mrs. W. K. Easley is the president of the club.

Four members brought arrangements that were judged by Mrs. C. C. Lucky, accredited flower show judge of the 5th district. Beauty, which is the first thing we strive for in flower arranging was certainly portrayed in each of these lovely arrangements.

HIGHEST SCORE

The highest score went to two ladies, Mrs. W. A. Lewis and Mrs. W. B. Hollingsworth, who made an arrangement using pussy willow and daffodils in the Japanese manner. The pussy willow was curved gracefully into three groupings depicting the Heaven, man and earth design. These were secured into a needle point holder which was placed off balance in a low tan ceramic bowl.

The daffodils were placed very cleverly within the line of the pussy willow. The largest one was placed low in the base of the design. To finish this design a lovely bambo mat was used as a base. This gave the whole design good balance and blended in perfectly with the other parts of the pattern. The holder was hidden from view by the placement of several brown irregular shaped rocks. This gave the design an appearance of true nature — flowers growing by a small pond. It was lovely in every detail.

SECOND

The second place went to Mrs. William G. Kelly Jr., who used the graceful curving branches of quince for her line material. These were secured in a needle point cup holder which had been placed on a black oval shaped straw mat. Within this line of curving quince she placed a triangle of lovely deep pink camellias. The holder was concealed by the placement of charcoal —very cleverly used. Perching up high on the branches were two red cardinals. This truly gave a real picture of spring.

Mrs. Jack O'Neal used clipped pine and daffodils for her Spring arrangement. The pine was placed in a crescent design in a footed black ceramic bowl. The daffodils were placed within this line ranging from small to large (King Alfreds) in the focal area. The coloring of this design was beautiful — looked like a spash of sunshine.

When using the pine it is well to clip it quite a lot since the needles are so thick. This way we get a cleaner cut design, Mrs. Lucky explained. Then, too, use less flowers so that each flower will make more individual show. And, in making a crescent we must remember to keep the flowers within the crescent line and be careful not to get the line too heavy.

To achieve better balance in case our pine is heavy more weight should be used in the overall design.

CLEVER

The last arrangement was made by Mrs. R. F. Bealle. She cleverly used several types of foliage to create an all - green design. Using several kinds of foliage creates interest in a design. We still must keep balance in mind in selecting our materials—also, proportion is very important. Mrs. Lucky brought this out. The main line of this design was made by the placement of three slender equisedium stalks. Yucca leaves were placed next within the massed triange design. Three small aspidestra leaves were rolled and placed in a tiered fashion within this main line.

Four Magnolia leaves were placed - two on either side at the base of the design. Clusters of ivy leaves forming rosettes were placed in the focal area. To add a final spring touch — a small yellow ceramic bird was perched to one side of the ivy leaves near the base. The container for this arrangement was a low black ceramic bowl. This is a lovely type arrangement to use when we need a long - lasting design in our homes.

Congratulations to these ladies from Highland Park Garden Club for presenting such a lovely spring show this week. As I said—Beauty was the result of their efforts as well as clever workmanship.

Next week we welcome Mrs. J. D. Murry, parliamentarian for the La. G. C. F. as well as an accredited flower show judge. Mrs. Murry is from Ruston, and she will make flower arrangements for us.

Camera Notes

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

The year's big annual photographic trade show takes place in Chicago at this time (March 5-9). This is the occasion at which the industry parades its newest products which eventually will reach the nation's camera fans. From advance reports, here are some of the items to be shown there.

Two new fully automatic 35 mm cameras top the Kodak offerings. Both of these electric-eye cameras with f-2.8 44mm lenses feature a built-in, pop-up flash unit. The unit does not add to the over-all size of the camera when folded away and not in use. The flash unit, powered by two high-energy, long-life "N" size batteries, fires tiny AG-1 flashbulbs. However, there is also provision for electronic or other flash sources through an outlet.

The Automatic 35F and the Motormatic 35F achieve proper exposure controls both indoors and out. For available light, it is done in the usual was by setting the proper ASA film being used, after which the photo-electric meter automatically gauges and sets the right lens opening. For flash pictures it is necessary only to set the proper flash guide number according to the film and flash being used. After that, the act of focusing the camera for the correct subject - to - camera - distance automatically sets the proper lens opening. In both cameras the flash setting automatically shifts the shutter speed mechanism internally to 1-40th of a second.

The major difference between the cameras is the addition of a spring power drive in the Motormatic which permits shooting of 10 pictures — in rapid-fire sequence, if desired — without stopping to wind film between shots.

This innovation is a feature of two new low-silhouette Keystone 8 mm projectors, the K-104 and the K-107R, along with automatic threading, zoom projection lenses and a swing-away viewer-editor.

The Satellite Remote Control unit, as it is called, has four push buttons for easy-chair operation. A fingertip push starts the projector running; another holds a single frame for close inspection; still another sends the film in reverse while the fourth button turns the machine off . . . all from a distance.

All the controls plus a rewind are found on a single knob on the projector itself for normal operation. It also has a built-in transformer and reheostat control which adjusts the motor automatically to changes in house current. This provides normal flickerless projection or special speed-up or slow-down effects.

In the electronic flash field, an 800 watt-second unit with a very fast three-second recycling time holds potential interest for serious amateur and professional photographers.

It's the new Ascorlight A614B assembly which has a built-in automatic voltage regulator for light output stabilization. It uses a circular plug-in flashtube along with a low cost modeling lamp so that the light can be studied in advance. The power supply—only 19 pounds—has push - button operation for either full or half power.

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Pink Carpet Of Beauties

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

Tiny pink spring beauties carpeted the cemetery at Holly Springs, Mississippi last week when I went there to identify a pine tree, after the Garden Seminar at The University of Mississippi. Spring beauties are some of our most charming wild flowers of early spring.

They are native to nearly the whole South, and it is interesting that everybody calls them "spring beauties" everywhere.

WIDESPREAD

These tiny pinkish flowers are so widespread and so small that we have never thought of cultivating them since they seem almost like weeds. There are many variations in the little flowers, however, and some kinds would be well worth cultivating because they are bright pink or red, much larger than the pale ones and produced in such profusion that you would not recognize them for the smallish pale kind.

In my travels over the Southern State, I have seen some very showy kinds here and there. For instance, all through the rice producing section of south-east Arkansas, spring beauties are as showy as any phlox. In fact, I thought they were some species of phlox when I went through this area some years ago. The kind that grows there should be cultivated in gardens.

Spring beauties belong to the Purslane Family. If you look at them very closely, you will see how much they resemble portulacca and purslane weed. The leaves and stems are succulent and used to be eaten by the Indians. Whether or not the Indians also ate the fat bulb - like roots, nobody seems to know.

The beautiful name, Claytonia, is the Latin name given to spring beauties by Linnaeus, the famous Swedish botanist who described so many of our plants.

Linnaeus wanted to honor John Clayton, a Virginian who came to America with his father in 1705. John Clayton was one of our very first Americans botanists. During his lifetime, he travelled all over Virginia collecting and studying the wild plants, trees and shrubs. In 1722, he was appointed clerk of Gloucester County, an office which gave him both the support and the leisure time to travel widely over the colony — even as far as the Blue Ridge. At this time, much of Virginia was still inhabited by Indians, and Clayton learned much from them.

COLLECTIONS

Clayton made collections of dried plants and kept adding to his store of knowledge of the plants of the New World. He corresponded with most of the learned men of his day and apparently was collecting the material for a book on Virginian plants. Although he never published the book, the Dutch Botanist, Gronovius, in collaboration with Linnaeus did publish a list from dried plants sent to them by Clayton, and Gronivius' son later published the FLORA VIRGINICA with a map of Clayton's travels, one of the very earliest books on American plants.

Old Standby Tile Is Used

NEW YORK (UPI) — An ally in the growing trend toward practicality and beauty combined in homes is an old standby material in new dress — ceramic tile.

Once relegated chiefly to the bathroom, ceramic tile today is appearing around the home in such diverse uses as decorative walls, planters, room dividers, fireplaces, garden walls and facades. It is being used, of course, in baths and kitchens, entryways, game rooms, patios and throughout the house on stair treads, window sills, table tops and wall shelves.

Perhaps the biggest force in the comeback of ceramic tile has been color. Once available in only a few shades, today there are literally hundreds. There are, too, new shapes and textures, patterned tiles and mass - produced tiles to duplicate designs that once had to be hand-painted.

'Plant Early' Advice Given

By AUDREY DAWSON

If your gardening plan calls for gladiolus, better get some planted early. Don't worry about frost and light freezes because young gladiolus will stand this without any appreciable injury. The plants grow best at moderate temperatures and they do not bloom satisfactorily in very hot weather.

A large number of gladiolus varieties are available. New varieties are introduced every year and some varieties are discarded. This means that recommended varieties will change considerably as the years pass.

MANY SHADES

There are many shades and many beautiful varieties of pink gladiolus: Pecardy, Spic and Span, My Dear, Friendship, King Size, Pink Chiffon, Jessie Mae and Ethel Cave Cole are all good pinks.

The old variety Valeria is still one of the best all-around reds. Other reds include Harrisburger, Dieppe, New York, Dark David, Ace of Spades, and Burma. The reds range from orange red to dark red. All of the dark colors seem to burn very easily.

The yellows have not proven as satisfactorily as some of our other colors, but great improvement has been made in recent years. Fort Knox Gold, Cynthia and Miss Bloomington are some of the varieties that have proven more satisfactory.

There are ever so many other colors and varieties. Try some new ones this year.

In planting gladiolus cormes (more often called bulbs) they should not be spaced closer than three per foot in the row, and if planted in beds, the rows should be at least one foot apart. If plants are spaced too close together, they will be spindly. It would be better to have fewer good plants in an area than to crowd them too close together.

It's time to fertilize and use a good complete fertilizer as 8-8-8 for your shrubs and trees. Also, remember to fertilize your native iris and roses. The same fertilizer is used for these. If you have poor soil on your plot and you want a good lawn, I suggest you mix cotton seed meal with the 8-8-8.

Mrs. Rankin Earle, chirman of the Farm Bureau Women's organization, urges you, Mrs. Farm Bureau member, to attend the meeting Monday at 9:30 a.m. at the parish library building on North 18th Street, Monroe. This will be a most important meeting so come and help make your organization better.

FROZEN WHIPPED CREAM

If you have whipped too much cream, then freeze it. The cream can be frozen and stored for about four weeks. Place a layer of waxed paper or foil on a baking sheet and drop mounds of whipped cream onto it. Set the whole thing uncovered, into the freezer until the cream is frozen solid. Then quickly remove each mound with a cold spatula and drop at once into a plastic bag or other moisture vapor proof container. Seal and put back into the freezer immediately.

It will be a sunbright season for cotton this spring and summer from fragile pastels to vivid shock tones. Colors include flag waving shades of red, white and blue, and warm citrus colors of lemon, lime, and orange. In contrast, neutral beige and gray, as well as sophisticated combinations of black and white are favored.

The family of blues, sky blue, porcelain blue, lightened navy, and clear aqua, will be big news this coming season. These colors are favorites for day — evening designs.

A THOUGHT

Why do some of us use money we don't have, to buy things we don't need, to impress people.

Youth Revival Is Scheduled At Olla Church

A youth revival will open today at the Olla Assembly of God Church at Olla, and will continue through next Sunday.

Evangelist Don R. Logan of Jackson, Miss., will preach at services daily at 7:30 p.m., and F. C. Chamberlain of Hodge, will serve as music director.

In its regular schedule the church has Sunday school sessions, and morning and evening worship on Sunday, and mid-week services every Wednesday.

N.O. MAYOR RACE

Carnival Events May Reduce Vote

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The state of the gay Carnival season vied with politics for public attention Saturday as a close and hard-fought mayoral campaign entered its final week.

With the start of daily parades building up to Mardi Gras itself, March 6, observers wondered what affect Carnival would have on Saturday's Democratic runoff between State Sen. Adrian Duplantier, the first primary leader, and Mayor Victor Schiro.

Two parades scheduled for Saturday are expected to cut the vote some from the 168,000 who voted in the first primary Jan. 27. Registration is up slightly to 211,000 for the second primary.

Most political observers speculated that the election might well be decided by which side got its voters to the polls. Both camps remained confident of victory. The primary winner will serve a four-year term starting May 1, although he must first defeat Republican E. Ross Buckley in the April 3 general election that is no more than a formality.

In addition to the mayor's race, voters will pick a district attorney, two councilmen-at-large, two district councilmen (three were elected in the first primary) and several other city and parish officials.

Polls will be open from 6 a.m. to 8 p.m. Saturday.

Duplantier, who will be 33 two days after the election, has the backing of organized labor, most Negro leaders and many of the civil leaders who supported deLesseps Morrison during his four successful races for the mayoralty.

Morrison, now U.S. ambassador to the Organization of American States, is backing Duplantier but has played little part in the campaign.

Schiro, 58, who succeeded Morrison last summer, has backing from the Regular Democratic Organization, the staunchly pro-segregationist Citizens Council and the state administration of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis. Davis has not made an outright endorsement but has been at odds with Duplantier, who helped defeat his plan to raise the state sales tax to support private, segregated segregated schools.

The city's two newspapers, the morning Times-Picayune and the afternoon States-Item, are both backing Duplantier.

Both candidates were invited to debate on the city's four television stations Sunday night, but Schiro rejected the invitation on grounds it would serve no useful purpose.

Likewise, Schiro was the only city-wide candidate to reject an invitation to appear this Wednesday on the city's educational television station.

In the district attorney's race, insurgent Jim Garrison, 40, backed by Duplantier, is considered to have a strong chance of unseating incumbent Richard Dowling, 70, backed by the RDO (but not Schiro).

But Dowling, who led by 1,800 votes in the first primary, is believed to have gained ground by a vigorous performance in a televised debate last Sunday. Three anti - Dowling candidates polled 85,000 votes to 47,000 for Dowling in the first primary.

In the councilman-at-large race, James Fitzmorris, on Schiro's ticket, and former Tulane football star Eddie Price, on Duplantier's slate, are favored. Their opponents are state Rep. Maurice Landrieu, on Duplantier's ticket, and attorney Joseph Di Rosa, running with Schiro.

Another well-known sports name running is former New Orleans Pelican and New York Giant first baseman Harold (Tookie) Gilbert, who is running for civil sheriff on Schiro's ticket.

DISABILITY PAYMENTS

Veterans Protest Delay On Raises

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two million veterans looking for increased disability compensation payments are caught in a congressional cross fire which has blocked the raises since last summer.

Congressional committees and legislators concerned with the problem reported Saturday a steady flow of mail protesting the delay.

President Kennedy requested the cost-of-living increases in a message last April 27. Both House and Senate are enthusiastically for the compensation boosts, which would total about $88 million annually, and voted for them four times in the 1961 session.

But still no final legislation ever was sent to the President because of Senate insistence on and House resistance to a provision dealing with another subject—reopening of National Service Life Insurance.

The battle between the Senate and House over this provision goes back to 1956, but it reached its most acrimonious stage last year.

The Senate six times has added the provision to House bills, several times by unanimous votes. Each time it was killed by the other branch.

The provision, sponsored by Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., would permit World War II and Korean War veterans to take out $10,000 NSLI policies if they failed to do so while in service or permitted their policies to lapse.

These policies are considerably cheaper than comparable commercial insurance. Veterans organizations have strongly urged the reopening. However, it was just as strongly opposed by the Eisenhower administration and President Kennedy has taken the same view.

Long and other Senate sponsors of the provision contend it would not cost the government anything except perhaps some small administrative expense. And they see it as a justified benefit for veterans who could not afford the insurance when they were eligible to take it out or else had no family responsibilities at that time.

Tear Gas Used In San Quentin Prison Uprising

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Thirteen rebellious convicts shouted and screamed at officers in San Quentin Prison for an hour and a half Saturday before they were quieted by tear-gas bombs.

Trouble started when they were told their exercise period was up.

"They refused to leave the yard in the face of repeated orders to do so," said Capt. C. C. Hocker.

They then cursed and insulted four officers in the area.

They also shouted at other prisoners to join in the rebellion.

After a few minutes, Hocker said, "the agitation began to communicate itself to both the isolation area, which is adjacent to the adjustment center, and also to the main yard.

"This was building up to something big so I finally gave the order to throw tear gas into their midst."

The tear gas quieted the shouting inmates immediately.

Hocker said nobody was hurt.

More than an hour later, he said, "All is now quiet and normal at the prison."

Study Grant Tests Slated

The competitive examination for outstanding high school students seeking Northeast Louisiana State Grants and for State Board of Education scholarship grants at Northeast State will be held Friday and Saturday, March 9-10.

The test will begin at 8 a.m. each day in Gunby Dining Hall on the Northeast State campus. Students seeking the scholarships may take the examination either day, but not on both days.

In March, the College will award 15 Foundation grants valued at $800 each plus an additional 15 academic grants valued at $600 each.

To be eligible for the scholarships, students must have a "B" average, be recommended by their high school principal, and compete on the qualifying examination.

Scholarships granted on these two programs do not require a service to be rendered by the student.

Persons wishing application forms or additional information should write or telephone the Dean of Student Services, Northeast Louisiana State College, Monroe, La., telephone FA 5-6361, extension 367.

Former Monroe Resident Dies

Mrs. Sibyl Miller, former resident of Monroe and sister of several local persons, died in Albuquerque, N. M., after a brief illness.

Funeral services will be held in Albuquerque at the Strong Thorne Mortuary. Mrs. Miller was an active member of the First Christian Church in Albuquerque and had been a nurse at the Abbott Health Service for the past 12 years.

She is survived by one son, Don Stroud Jr., Houston, Tex.; four sisters, Mrs. J. F. Dudding and Mrs. G. E. Merideth, both of West Monroe, Mrs. Sam Armstrong, Rayville, and Mrs. Bernice Durden, Decatur, Ga.; two brothers, Otto Miller, West Monroe, and O. J. Miller, Monroe; and five grandchildren.

Military Ball At NLSC Set For March 3

Highlighting this year's social activities of the Reserve Officers Training Corps at Northeast Louisiana State College will be the annual military ball, scheduled for March 3 from 8 to 12 p.m. in Gunby Dining Hall on campus.

The formal event is being sponsored by the Scabbard and Blade under the command of Cadet Capt. Larry Denmon from Forest, and the Pershing Rifles, commanded by Cadet Capt. Elbert Dyer, Monroe. Both organizations are national honorary military fraternities.

A special feature of the formal affair will be the presentation of the Northeast coed who will reign as queen over the evening's festivities.

The queen's title will go to the girl who will be selected by secret ballot. Voting will be done at the dance by attending cadets. Nominees from which her majesty will be chosen are Sonya Bowden, sophomore medical technician major from Tallulah; Judy Cathy, freshman health and physical education major from West Monroe; Sylvia Hayden, sophomore education major from West Monroe; and Pansy Riser, senior accounting major from Columbia.

The Constellations will play during the evening.

4 Youths Hurt In 3-Car Crash On North Fourth

Four youths were injured, but none seriously, in a three - car collision on North Fourth Street around 10:30 p.m. Saturday.

The most seriously hurt of the four, Miss Virginia Bray, 17, of 2900 Jersey St., West Monroe, sustained a severe cut in the upper lip and a laceration over the eye when she was riding.

The driver of the vehicle in which she was riding, John Wells, 17, of 1401 S. 5th St., Monroe, suffered a cut on the lip. Both were treated.

Another driver, Donald E. Worley, 20, of 119 Glenwood Dr., Monroe, and his passenger, Sue Wellerman, 17 of 1001 Parkwood Dr., Monroe, were taken to St. Francis hospital for examination. They had no visible injuries.

The pile-up occurred in the 600 block of North Fourth Street when the Wells boy failed to stop for a line of traffic and smashed into the rear of the Worley vehicle, knocking it into a third car driven by Robert Holdsworth, 16 of 1509 S. 5th St., Monroe.

Worley said that the car in front of him driven by Holdsworth had started slowing down for a long line of traffic that had stopped for the red light on Louisville Avenue. He said that he had already stopped when the Wells' vehicle smashed into the rear of his car.

The youth said they were enroute home from the movie. Police had made no charges in the accident at midnight pending completion of the investigation.

3 Are Booked On DWI Charges By City Officers

James Campbell Steele III, 19, of 201 Arlington St., West Monroe, was booked for DWI, reckless driving and damage to property after he allegedly smashed another boy's car window with his fist.

Steele was apprehended in the 200 block of St. John Street, in front of Monroe city hall, when he gave chase to the other youth who police also booked on a wreckless driving charge. He was identified as Ronald Walter McClain, 20, of 11 Filhoil Ave., West Monroe.

Police booked them both, and Steele was released under a $500 bond and McClain was released under a $100 bond. Both will be tried in municipal court.

Others booked for DWI include Negroes Murry Hill, 38, of 3906 Dunlap St., and George Harris, 58, of 2110 Cypress St., West Monroe.

Hill was apprehended at Ninth and Oak Streets at 4:12 p.m. and held under a $500 bond. Harris was apprehended at Sixth and Harrison Streets at 7:35 p.m. and held under a $450 bond.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

Winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for the best suggestion this week is Mrs. Ruth Pawelski, Vista, California. Here is her helpful tip:

"To eliminate tearing the last buttonhole either just below the waistline or near the hem of a dress, don't finish the buttonhole on the facing. Sew the button on firmly through all layers of fabric. It will look like the other buttons but will work wonders for you because it can't tear out."

"Dear Eunice,

"Now I do believe I've heard everything. What on earth does "naked wool" mean? I've seen this expression so often this spring when advertisements have described ready to wear garments, and my curiosity has gotten the best of me. Is this fabric available to the home sewer and what is it?"

Mrs. D.J.

NAKED WOOL

Dear Mrs. D.J.:

Because this is such a timely question, and such an involved one, I am devoting today's column exclusively to it. I would suggest that all of you clip and save it.

The term "naked wool" refers to a new, light, airy wool that is not closely woven. It is claimed to be a year around fabric in dress, suit, or coat weight.

a. To hold their shape and allow smoother fit in closely fitted garments.

b. To prevent horizontal wrinkles in front and "seating out" in back of slim skirts.

c. Because of the open weaves, your under - lining will keep seams from showing through in very sheer wools.

Lining has been the customary practice of fine dressmakers, custom designers in better ready made garments. Fabrics suitable for under - lining these garments are China silk, a very fine cotton batiste, or a sheath lining of cotton and acetate. Any of these fabrics must be very firm, but light weight. China silk is the most difficult to work with because of its slippery quality.

UNDER-LINING

After cutting your garment out and before unpinning the pattern, you may lay it on the under-lining fabric and cut it exactly the same. Facings and collars will not need under - lining because you will be using an interfacing for them. Put your markings for darts etc., on the lining fabric instead of your garment fabric.

When under - lining anything, you must work on a FLAT surface, preferably larger than the section of your garment. Follow these directions in the exact order given.

1. Lay the lining fabric on the table first. Now lay your garment fabric over it, with the right side of the fabric facing you.

2. If the section of your garment is very large, baste down the center first. (a), Next, baste diagonally through the two layers of fabric, (b) and (c). Now baste through the CENTER of all darts (d). You will now be ready to baste around the entire outer edges of the garment, this basting should be about ½" from the cut edge. The above basting refers to "hand basting" and not machine basting. You will now treat each lined section as if it were ONE piece of fabric. Mercerized thread is usally used for machine stitching all woolens.

USE PRESS CLOTH

The "naked woolens" press beautifully with a steam iron for seams and darts. However, for any faced edges, it is better to use a press cloth that has been chemically treated. You do not use the steam iron, but dampen the press cloth slightly with a moist sponge and use a hotter iron. Never let your press cloth become too wet because the wool will lose its sharp press as the wool dries.

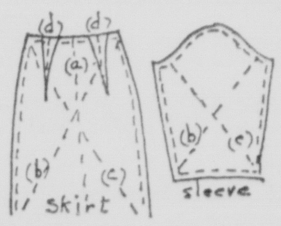
If there are any marks from darts or seams that show from the right side, caused by heavy pressing, lift the dart or seam and press under it.

It is not necessary to stay-stitch any part of a garment that has been under-lined.

When hemming these sheer woolens, you may cut the lining off even with the fold of the hem. Now baste hem up near the fold and press carefully and apply hem tape to the cut edge. Hems should be approximately 2 to 3" wide. Loosely slip-stitch hem tape to the LINING ONLY, except at the seams. Your stitches must be loose so the hem will not have a pulled look.

If fabric does not ravel, it could be machine stitched close to the cut edge and then pinked. Fold back the edge slightly and slip stitch to lining.

Jackets and coats of "naked wool" also must be completely under-lined. They will also need a woven type interfacing for the fronts of these garments and the collars. Your regular lining of plain or printed fabric must not be too stiff or heavy for the garment fabric, a crepe or soft silk would be best.



YOUR SEWING GLOSSARY: Under - lining: This is a term used when the garment fabric needs extra body to retain its shape. You use a soft, firm type of fabric and baste the two layers together; they are then treated as one.

Please send all questions and suggestions to Sew Simple in care of Monroe Morning World.

SALESMAN WANTED!
Experience Unnecessary

THE man we are looking for must have a pleasing personality, he must be neat, he must be at least 24 years of age, he should have a good education. (Of course, we realize that education isn't everything but of our present sales force of 6 men, 3 are college graduates, 2 have 3 years of college, and the other has 1 year of college, so you see, we feel that we have an above average sales force), but most of all he must be ambitious — he wants to get started right now on a bigger job and a bigger paycheck.

EVEN if he's had no experience at all in the automotive sales field, we will be glad to train him and he will make good money while he's in training!

WE feel that our offer is as good, if not better than any other type of sales work! Our product has enioyed a success unequaled by competition in the past few years, our compensation plan is one of the best to be found anywhere and working conditions are excellent.

IF you think that you can qualify for this job, stop in today and ask for Mr. Tubbs, Sales Manager. Northeast Motors, 319 N. 3rd. Cor. Breard.

If you have sales experience and own a car, you can join our top man, mostly over 50, who earn $8,000, $11,000 to $15,000 in a year, plus a New Car as Bonus. Write F. E. Swallow, Pres., Southwestern Petroleum Co., Box 789, Ft. Worth, Texas.

SELL INVESTMENTS AND LIFE INSURANCE, and enjoy income from two sources. Be a top citizen in your community selling exclusive products. Complete training program, yearly bonus, group life insurance and major medical insurance. Qualifications: Age 25-45, presently employed in selling or a closely related activity, desire full - time career with America's top sales team. All inquiries confidential. Call or write Myrl J. Hodson, Divisional Sales Manager, Investors Diversified Services, Inc., Suite 202, 621 Louisiana Avenue, Shreveport, Louisiana, Telephone 424-7733.

NEIGHBORHOOD

AN old saying in the real estate world is that the 3 most important elements in choosing a fine home are (1) neighborhood, (2) neighborhood, and (3) neighborhood. There is a lot of truth in it, when you stop to think that neighborhood regulates the price range within which it is wise to buy or build a home. Neighborhood determines the kind of people who live by you, and whose children will influence the conduct of your children. Neighborhood is a contributing factor in privacy, appreciation, and resale value. Look at this lovely home on Jasmine St. 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, den, separate dining room. AT BATON ROUGE MEET

Board To Decide On PAR Survey

BATON ROUGE (AP)—A private group's proposal to back a study of what makes some high schools put out fine graduates will get a hearing Wednesday by the Louisiana Board of Education.

The $250,000 survey of high school excellence proposed by the Public Affairs Research Council (PAR) has drawn both criticism and praise.

Members of the education board will consider how they will stand on the matter at a hearing called especially for that purpose.

Board President William J. Dodd has cautiously commented the survey could greatly benefit the people providing professional and high-ranking Louisiana educators are called upon to evaluate the results. He said he had not taken any official stand and was speaking only for himself.

State Sen. B. H. Rogers, Grand Cane, who said he was stunned by the bitterness of early opposition to the proposal, blamed what he called "the well-oiled education lobby machine headed by" state Supt. Shelby M. Jackson. But Jackson has declined to comment.

Former Gov. Sam H. Jones, Lake Charles, vice president of PAR, said the organization's records showed "only 15 of the 67 school boards ever disapproved the proposed survey; and this was accomplished only after an intense campaign by certain professional lobbyists."

Jones said only one board ever disapproved the survey after "getting the correct information from PAR as to its nature."

A publication of the Louisiana Teachers' Association, "Louisiana Schools," questioned whether it could be that PAR, "by its own decision, is trying to supercede the constitutionally and legally designated bodies and officials?"

The publication said, "we are not opposed to a survey of instruction in Louisiana, or to a survey of any other phase of the operation of the schools in the state if it is done by competent group and authorized legally."

"Let it be made in a completely open and above-board manner," the publication said, "without any secrecy; let the decision for the survey be made by legally constituted authority so that the people of the state, generally, will know about it, and let it be made in a well-planned manner by professionally competent people."

Dodd, who said he was speaking for himself, said it was hard for him to understsnd why some educators opposed the survey.

BUS PLUNGES OFF ROAD

LIMA, Peru (AP)—A bus carrying 26 passengers plunged off a mountain road down a 150-foot precipice in northern Peru Friday, killing nine persons, including the driver. The other 18 persons were reported seriously hurt. The accident, blamed on brake failure at a curve near Yanac, was the second of its kind in Peru in two days. Twenty-six persons perished in a bus accident near La Merced Wednesday.

Solons Cancel Censor Hearing To See Glenn

WASHINGTON (AP) — A scheduled Monday hearing on censorship of speeches made by military men was canceled Saturday to avoid conflict with Washington's welcome to astronaut John H. Glenn Jr.

Glenn, who orbited the earth three times on Tuesday, is to address a joint session of Congress on Monday.

Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss., chairman of the Senate Armed Services subcommittee, said that group would resume on Tuesday its investigation of charges that military officers have been prevented from speaking out against communism.

NEW ART MUSEUM

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A national museum containing 65,000 Mexican art objects dating back to the early centuries will be inaugurated in March in the home of the late painter Diego Rivera.

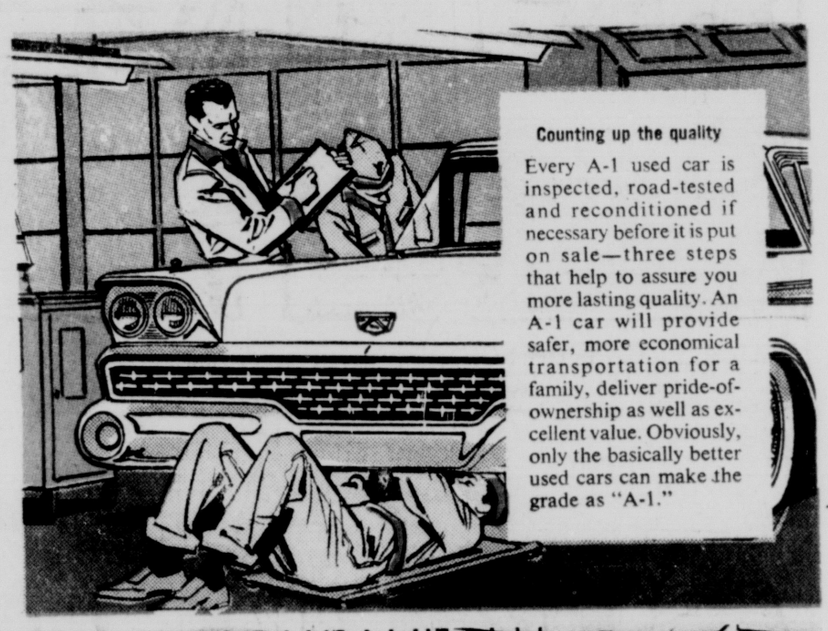
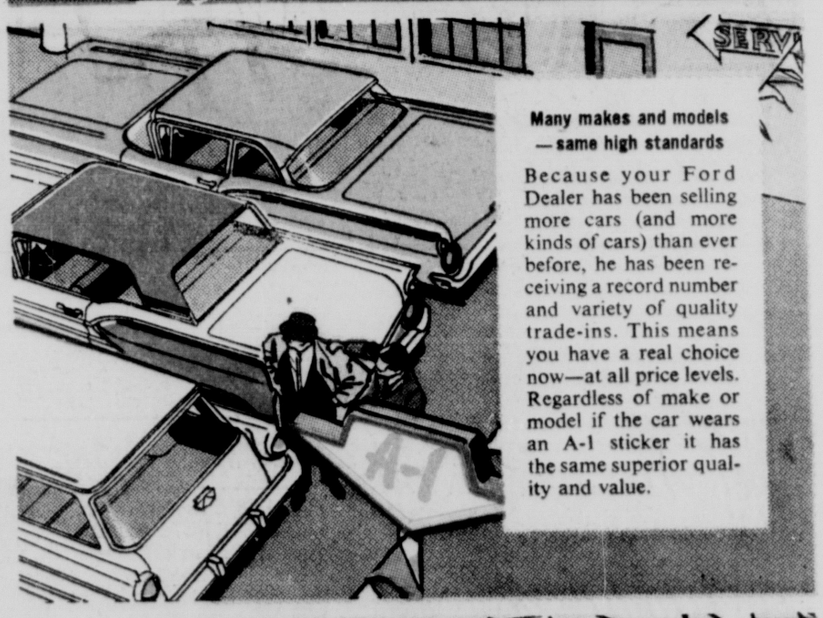
How the A-1 sticker on a used car assures you of a higher standard of quality

"A-1" on a used car at your Ford Dealer's tells you this is far more than just an ordinary used car. First, the car is the pick of the trade-ins your Ford Dealer takes in on his big new-car volume. Then it is a car which has had to demonstrate its superiority—prove its worth to used-car specialists who know their business. And behind every A-1 used car is your Ford Dealer's reputation for selling quality products at a fair price and dealing honestly with every customer.



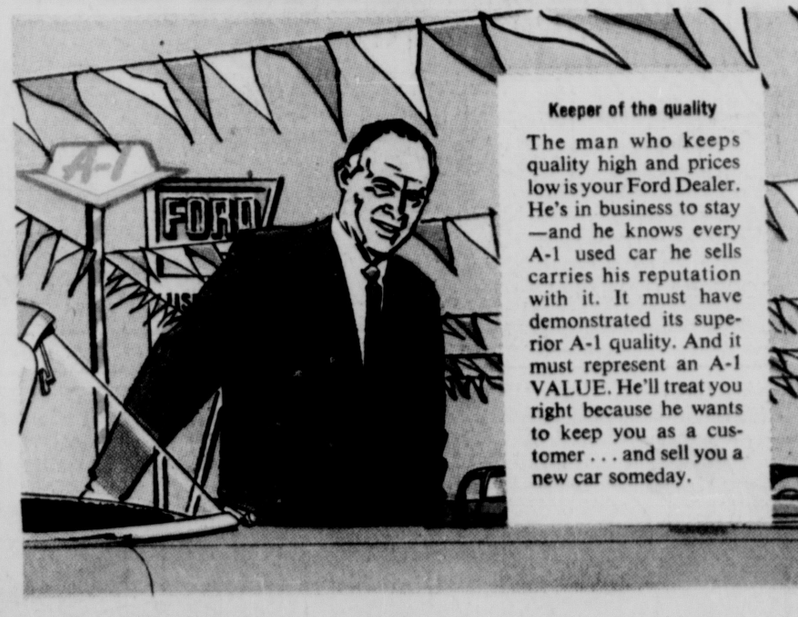
Counting up the quality

Every A-1 used car is inspected, road-tested and reconditioned if necessary before it is put on sale—three steps that help to assure you more lasting quality. An A-1 car will provide safer, more economical transportation for a family, deliver pride-of-ownership as well as excellent value. Obviously, only the basically better used cars can make the grade as "A-1."



Many makes and models —same high standards

Because your Ford Dealer has been selling more cars (and more kinds of cars) than ever before, he has been receiving a record number and variety of quality trade-ins. This means you have a real choice now—at all price levels. Regardless of make or model if the car wears an A-1 sticker it has the same superior quality and value.



Keeper of the quality

The man who keeps quality high and prices low is your Ford Dealer. He's in business to stay—and he knows every A-1 used car he sells carries his reputation with it. It must have demonstrated its superior A-1 quality. And it must represent an A-1 VALUE. He'll treat you right because he wants to keep you as a customer . . . and sell you a new car someday.

The used cars with more future...from your Ford Dealer

GETTING THE SNIFFLES, MARY?

I HOPE I HAVEN'T CAUGHT PETE'S COLD! HIS IS A DILLY— HE SHOULD BE HOME IN BED...

...INSTEAD OF GOING ALL THE WAY OUT TO MORGANA D'ALEXIUS'S PLACE AGAIN!

MEANWHILE...

COME IN, MR. FLETCHER. GENUINELY HAPPY TO SE I KNEW YOU WEREN'T TO HOLD A GRUDGE. W AFRAID I'D CANCEL THE ST

...WHATEVER IT IS, THE TIME HAS COME TO HUMANIZE YOUR IMAGE, AND YOU NEED "VIEW" MORE THAN IT NEEDS YOU.

OH, THAT'S MARVELOUS! RIGHT BETWEEN THE EYES! YOU'RE RIGHT, OF COURSE!

THIS STORY WILL PROVE THAT THEY CAN'T GET ALONG WITHOUT ME. YOU DON'T HAVE TO SWEETEN IT— JUST TELL IT STRAIGHT. WE WON'T HAVE ANY TROUBLE. WE SPEAK THE SAME LANGUAGE.

I'M NOT SURE THAT'S A CHOO COMPLIMENT.

THAT'S A TERRIBLE COLD! YOU SHOULD HAVE STAYED IN BED TODAY!

SURE MAKES ME JUMPY KNOWIN' THERE'S A SPY WITH A SHORT WAVE OUTFIT RIGHT HERE 'MONG US, BUT NOBODY CAN FIGGER WHO HE IS!

"OUR TEMPERATURES DIFFER IN CAPACITY OF HEAT, OR, WE BOIL AT DIFFERENT DEGREES"-EMERSON. ELWOOD'S BOILING POINT IS ABOUT ZERO, WHEN HIS HAT'S SHOT OFF!

OH, WELL, NO DANGER, LEASTWISE NOT TODAY, WITH 'MOST EVER'BODY TAKIN' A HIKE OR HAVIN' A PICNIC! JUNGLE'S FULL O' FOLKS!

YEP! THERE'S TH' CHIEF O' "DADDY'S" FILE DEPARTMENT WITH HALF A DOZEN FRIENDS, BUT TH' FRIENDS? NEVER SAW THEM BEFORE!

HEY! THAT WAS FOR REAL! WHAT KIND O' GUY'D EVER TRY T'KILL LITTLE ELWOOD?

POP!

I DON'T BLAME ELWOOD FOR BEIN' SORE! WHAT'S HE GETTIN' OUT O' THAT HOLE? A STONE OR SOMETHIN'?

HA! THIS TIME I'LL.....

BANG

LEAPIN' LIZARDS! THAT WAS A GRENADE!

THERE-THERE, ELWOOD! WE'LL GET YOUR HAT FIXED GOOD AS NEW! GEE! I BET Y'BROKE THAT GUY O' SHOOTIN' AT POOR DEFENSELESS LITTLE FELLAS LIKE YOU!

WHAT AM I SAYIN'? YOU, "DEFENSELESS"? OH, BRU-THER!

LOOK, PAPA! THAT MAN IS PAYING WITH MONEY!

HATLO'S HISTORY

GEORGE F. GRANT INVENTS THE WOODEN GOLF TEE, BOSTON, 1899...

SO THAT'S WHERE MY SPOOLS OF THREAD GO! WHAT ARE YOU WHITTLING NOW?
